Child born in wedlock.

68. A child born not before one hundred and eighty days from the celebration of the marriage, nor after three hundred days from the dissolution or annulment of the marriage, shall be deemed to have been conceived in wedlock.

Presumption of conception during wedlock.

69. The husband cannot repudiate a child born before the lapse of one hundred and eighty days after the marriage in any of the cases following:

When husband may not repudiate child.

- (a) if, before the marriage, he was aware of the pregnancy;
- (b) if he himself has made the declaration required for the drawing up of the act of birth, acknowledging himself to be the father of the child;
- (c) if the child be declared not viable.

When husband may repudiate child.

Substituted by: XXI. 1993.37. Amended by: VIII. 2007.4.

70. (1) The husband can repudiate a child conceived in wedlock -

- (a) if he proves that during the time from the three hundredth day to the one-hundred-and-eightieth day before the birth of the child, he was in the physical impossibility of cohabiting with his wife on account of his being away from her, or some other accident; or
- (b) if he proves that during the said time he was de facto or legally separated from his wife:

Provided that he may not repudiate the child if there has been, during that time, a reunion, even if temporary between him and his wife; or

- (c) if he proves that during the said time he was afflicted by impotency, even if such impotency was only an impotency to generate; or
- (d) if he proves that during the said time the wife had committed adultery or that she had concealed the pregnancy and the birth of the child, and further produces evidence of any other fact (which may also be genetic and scientific tests and data) that tends to exclude such paternity.

(2) The declaration alone of the mother to the effect that the husband is not the father of the child shall not be sufficient to exclude the paternity of the husband.

(3) The court may in an action of disavowal invite all or any of the parties including the child whose filiation is in dispute to submit to the tests necessary to establish the genetic proof that may be relevant to the case. The court shall be entitled to draw such inferences as may be justified by the refusal to submit to such tests. Where the child whose filiation is in dispute is a minor, the court itself shall determine whether the child shall submit to the tests.

(4) With regard to a child born before the 1st December, 1993, the husband may also repudiate the child conceived during wedlock for the reasons listed in subarticle (1), as these were in force after that date, if the cause for the repudiation of the child is presented in court not later than the 31st December, 2008.

Provided further that where an action to disown a child is instituted by the husband after the lapse of the periods stipulated in paragraphs (a), (b) or (c) in accordance with the first proviso to this article, any judgement whereby the child is disowned shall not have the effect of changing the surname of the child or of any other person who took his surname from the child unless the court, upon the demand of any of the parties made either in the sworn application whereby the action is commenced or in a separate application made during the action, provides otherwise.

74. Where the husband dies without having brought the action for disavowal, but before the expiration of the time provided in article 73(a), (b) or (c), the heirs may bring such action within six months to be reckoned from the day on which the property of the deceased shall have passed into the hands of the child, or from the day on which the heirs shall have been by the child disturbed in the possession of such property.

- (3) Where no set-off arises under sub-article (2) of this article the usufructuary may take away those improvements which may be removed with profit to himself, and without damage to the tenement, unless the owner prefers to retain them, on payment to the usufructuary of a sum corresponding to the profit which the latter might obtain by removing them from the tenement.

(3) Unless otherwise provided in the act creating the usufruct, the expenses of the inventory shall be borne by the usufructuary.

Security to be given by usufructuary.

352. (1) It shall likewise be unlawful for the usufructuary, unless he has been exempted by the act creating the usufruct, to commence to exercise his rights over the things subject to the usufruct before he has given security that he will enjoy the things so subject as a bonus paterfamilias, that he will restore the movables, refund the values of the things mentioned in article 329, and make good any damage that might happen through his negligence whether to the movables or to the immovables.

(2) The sum of the security, for the purposes of the hypothecary registration, shall be regulated by the amount of the capitals that are to be delivered to the usufructuary or that may be restored to him during the usufruct, by the value of the movables, and by the cost of such repairs in the immovables as may probably be required during a period of five years and as are, according to law, at the charge of the usufructuary.

(3) It shall be lawful for the court, according to circumstances, to fix a lesser sum; and in such case, should the sum of the security be spent or become insufficient before the termination of the usufruct, the usufructuary shall be bound to give a further security, and, in default, the provisions of article 355 shall apply.

Persons who are not bound to give security.

353. The following persons, however, are not bound to give security:

354. The owner may demand the security, where required, either before or within one year after the usufructuary shall have commenced to exercise his rights over the things subject to the usufruct; after the expiration of the said year, it shall not be lawful for the owner to demand the security unless he proves that the condition or the conduct of the usufructuary has so changed that the fulfilment of his obligations is thereby endangered.

Where usufructuary fails to give security.

355. If the usufructuary fails to give security, where required, within the time fixed by the court, the court shall, upon the demand of the owner, appoint a competent person to administer the things subject to the usufruct, in the interest of both the owner and the usufructuary.

Administrator to sell movables, etc.

356. The administrator shall sell the movables, investing at interest the proceeds thereof; he shall likewise invest any other sum of money included in the estate or which may be derived from the return of capitals during the usufruct.

357. (1) The administrator may, with the consent of the owner and the usufructuary, deviate from the rule laid down in the last preceding article.

Administrator may deviate from rule laid down in art. 356.

(2) The court may also, on good cause being shown, upon the demand of the owner or the usufructuary, dispense with the sale of the movables, or order that the moneys be invested otherwise than as laid down in the last preceding article, provided this can be done without prejudice to the interests of the defendant.

358. If the usufructuary declares on oath that he has been unable to find security, the court may order that an urban tenement and the necessary furniture for the habitation and the personal use of himself and his family be delivered to him, without security, subject to the obligation of restoring them at the termination of the usufruct.

359. (1) The administrator shall yearly render an account of his administration to the usufructuary, and pay the balance to him.

Fruits due to usufructuary.

363. The usufructuary is only liable for ordinary repairs. Extraordinary repairs shall be at the charge of the owner, unless they have been occasioned by the non-execution of the ordinary repairs, including those that have been required at the commencement of the usufruct, in which case the usufructuary shall be liable therefor.

Repairs of property subject to usufruct.

364. The repairs to walls and vaults, the replacing of beams, and the entire renewal of the roof, staircase, or pavement of any part of a building, are extraordinary repairs.

Extraordinary repairs.

365. (1) No action shall lie in favour of the usufructuary to compel the owner to carry out the repairs which are at his charge; but, if the owner refuses to carry out such repairs, it shall be lawful for the usufructuary to demand that he be authorized by the court to effect such repairs, and to recover from the owner, at the termination of the usufruct, the amount of the expenses incurred, without interest, provided the utility of the repairs subsists at the time of the termination of the usufruct:

Reimbursement of expenses incurred by usufructuary for repairs which are at charge of owner.

Provided the usufructuary shall be entitled to recover only the value of such repairs as determined by means of a valuation, regard being had to the time of the demand, if he fails to give to the owner an account of the expenses incurred by him together with the respective vouchers within six months from the day on which the repairs shall have been completed.

(2) The account shall be considered as accepted by the owner, if he shall not, within two months, declare his intention to contest it.

Where owner consents to carry out extraordinary repairs.
Amended by: XXII. 2005.81.

366. (1) If the owner consents to carry out the extraordinary repairs, he shall be entitled to recover from the usufructuary, during the continuance of the usufruct, the interest on the amount of the expenses which he shall prove to have incurred.

(2) The said interest shall run from the day on which the account of such expenses shall have been approved by the usufructuary, or by the court upon a sworn application issued against the usufructuary.

Where part of building falls down through age, etc.

367. (1) The provisions of the last two preceding articles shall likewise apply in the case where a building or a part of a building constituting an accessory necessary for the enjoyment of the tenement subject to the usufruct, or an accessory part of the building constituting the principal subject of the usufruct, falls down through age or by a fortuitous event.

(2) For determining whether the part which has fallen off the building which constitutes the principal subject of the usufruct, is an accessory part, regard shall be had not only to the destination of such part, but also to the expense required for reconstructing such part as against the expense which would be required for the reconstruction of the whole building.

Usufructuary cannot prevent owner from carrying out repairs.

368. The usufructuary cannot prevent the owner from carrying out, in the manner least inconvenient to the usufructuary, the repairs and works referred to in the last three preceding articles.

- 371. The usufructuary of one or more particular tenements is not bound to pay the debts for which any of such tenements may be hypothecated, nor is he bound to pay any annuity with which such tenements stand charged; and if he is compelled to pay, he may claim relief against the owner. Usufructuary of particular tenements not to pay charges on such tenements.
- 372. (1) The usufructuary of an entire estate, or of a portion of an estate, is bound to pay, in proportion to his enjoyment, and without any right of recovery, any maintenance allowances, any perpetual or life annuity, and any interest on debts to which the estate may be liable. - (2) Where any capital has to be paid, if the usufructuary is willing to advance the amount, such amount shall be returned to him by the owner, without any interest, at the end of the usufruct.
- (3) If the usufructuary is not willing to make such advance, the owner may effect the payment either with his own money, in which case the usufructuary shall pay to him interest thereon during the continuance of the usufruct, or by causing a portion of the property subject to the usufruct to be sold, to the extent of the sum due.
- 373. (1) The costs of lawsuits relating to the usufruct exclusively shall be borne by the usufructuary. Costs of lawsuits concerning usufruct, etc.

- 376. (1) The same rule shall apply where the subject of the usufruct is a herd, and the whole herd perishes without the fault of the usufructuary. Where subject of usufruct is a herd.
- (2) Where, however, the herd does not perish entirely, the usufructuary shall be bound to replace the heads which have perished, but not beyond the number of the animals born since the commencement of the usufruct and existing in his possession and of those born after the herd commenced to be deficient in its original number.

379. (1) Usufruct may also terminate by reason of the wrongful use which the usufructuary makes of his right, either by causing injury to the tenements, or by suffering them to run into ruin for want of ordinary repairs.

(2) In any such case the court may, according to the gravity of the circumstances, instead of ordering the absolute termination of the usufruct, either appoint an administrator, or order that the property be returned to the owner, subject to the condition, however, of paying annually to the usufructuary, or to those claiming under him, a fixed sum during the continuance of the usufruct.

(3) The usufructuary, as well as any of his creditors, may prevent the termination of the usufruct, the appointment of an administrator, or the return of the property as aforesaid, by offering to carry out the necessary repairs, and by giving security for the performance of this obligation within a time to be fixed by the court, provided the offer be made and the security given before judgment is delivered on the demand of the owner, or within fifteen days from the day on which the judgment has become a res judicata.

(3) Such waiver, where competent, shall not relieve the party making it of his liability for such repairs or reconstruction as may have been occasioned by him.

412. Where a common wall supports a building which the owner wishes to demolish, he may not release himself from his liability for the repairs or reconstruction of the wall by waiving his right of co-ownership, unless he carries out for the first time such repairs and works as are necessary so as to avoid causing to the neighbour any damage by the demolition of the building. 418. (1) Every owner may also make common, in whole or in part, a wall contiguous to his tenement by reimbursing to the owner of the wall one-half of its total value, or one-half of the value of that portion which he desires to make common, and one-half of the value of the land on which the wall is built, and by carrying out such works as may be necessary to avoid causing damage to his neighbour.

(2) The provisions of this article shall not apply in the case of buildings destined for public use.

Works to or on common wall, or deposit of manure, etc., against common wall.

419. It shall not be lawful for one of the neighbours -

- (a) to make, without the consent of the other neighbour any cavity in the body of a common wall;
- (b) to cause any new work to be affixed to or to lean against a common wall, without the consent of the other neighbour, or, in case of his refusal, without having first determined by means of experts the necessary measures to be taken in order that the new work shall not injuriously affect the rights of the other neighbour;
- (c) to deposit manure or other corrosive or damp substance in such a manner as to be in contact with the common wall;
- (d) to heap earth or other matter against a common wall without taking the necessary precautions in order to prevent such heaps from causing, by pressure or otherwise, damage to the other neighbour.

Repairs to walls separating courtyards, etc.

420. Any person may compel his neighbour to contribute to the construction or repair of walls separating courtyards, gardens, or fields, up to the height specified in article 408, regard being had to the nature and level of the tenement of the defendant.

Construction or repair of party-wall between two tenements having different level.

421. Where a wall separates two tenements, one of which is at a higher level than the other, the owner of the higher tenement shall bear the whole expense of the construction and repair of the wall up to the level of his own tenement: the portion of the wall from that level up to the height specified in article 408 shall be constructed and repaired at joint expense.

422. Saving the provisions of article 418, where, in the cases referred to in the last two preceding articles, a neighbour is unwilling to contribute to the expense of construction or repair of the wall, he may release himself therefrom by giving up his half of the land on which the party-wall is to be built, and waiving his right of co-ownership of such wall.

Where neighbour is unwilling to contribute to expense of construction or repair to wall.

423. Where the several storeys or other parts of a building belong to different owners, the contribution of each of the owners to the expense of the repairs or reconstruction which may be required shall be in proportion to the benefit which the respective part of the building derives from such repairs or reconstruction.

Where several storeys or parts of building belong to different owners.

424. Where a common wall or a house is reconstructed, any active or passive easement shall be maintained also with regard to the new wall or house, provided such easement is not rendered more burdensome, and such reconstruction is made before prescription has been acquired.

Old easements in regard to new common wall.

425. It shall not be lawful for one of the neighbours without the consent of the other to make in the party-wall any window or other opening.

Openings in party-walls.

426. When the storeys of a house belong to different owners, each of such owners may, in his own storey, make, in the external wall, a balcony, window, door or other opening, provided the stability of such wall is not affected thereby.

Owners of storeys may make balconies, etc., in external wall.

427. (1) The person in whose building there are stairs leading to the roof, is bound to raise at his own expense the party-wall to the extent of one metre and eighty centimetres above the level of the roof.

Raising of party-wall if building has stairs leading to roof.

(2) The portion of the wall above the level of the roof must be of the same thickness as the party-wall below such level.

(3) Where both neighbours have stairs leading to their respective roofs, each of them may compel the other to contribute half the expense necessary for raising the height of the party-wall as aforesaid.

428. Each of the neighbours is bound to carry out in his own tenement such works as may be necessary to prevent any damage which may be caused to the party-wall by the cisterns or sinks existing in his tenement or by any flow of water or filth.

Neighbours to avoid causing damage to party-wall.

429. In the absence of any title or mark to the contrary, any ditch between two tenements, if it is proved to be private property, is presumed to be the common property of the owners of those tenements.

Ditch between two tenements is presumed to be common to both owners.

430. Where the earth excavated for the formation of the ditch, or the refuse accumulated therein for a period of three years, is only on one side of the ditch, this shall be an indication that the ditch is not common, and the ditch is presumed to be the exclusive property of the party on the side of whose tenement the earth or the accumulated refuse is found.

Indications that ditch is not common.

Where ditch serves for the drainage of the lands of one owner only.

431. Where the ditch serves for the drainage of the lands of one owner only, this shall be an indication that the ditch is not common.

Repair of common ditch.

432. A common ditch shall be kept in repair at joint expense:

Provided that it shall be lawful for any co-owner to relieve himself of such obligation by waiving his right of co-ownership.

Trees existing on boundary-line between two tenements.

433. The trees which are on the boundary-line between two tenements shall, in the absence of proof to the contrary, be deemed to be common; and each of the neighbours may demand that such trees be uprooted or cut if he proves that the damage they may cause to his tenement is greater than the benefit he himself may derive therefrom.

§ III. OF DISTANCES REQUIRED IN CERTAIN CASES

Construction of walls, etc. on boundary-line of tenements.

434. Every person may construct any wall or building on the boundary-line of his tenement, saving the right of the neighbour to acquire co-ownership of the wall as provided in article 418.

Space to be left when not building on boundary-line.

435. (1) Even where the construction is not made on the boundary-line, the neighbour may, if a distance of at least one and one-half metres has not been left, demand co-ownership of the wall, and may build up to, and against such wall, on paying, besides the value of half the wall, the value of the ground which he would thus occupy, unless the owner of the ground prefers to extend his building, at the same time, up to the boundary-line.

(2) If the neighbour does not wish to avail himself of such power, he must construct his wall or building in such a manner that there shall be a distance of three metres from the wall or building of the other party.

(3) The same rule shall be observed in any other case where the construction of the other party is at a distance of less than three metres from the boundary.

(4) The mere raising of the height of a house or wall already existing is deemed to be a new construction.

Exception.

436. The provisions of the last two preceding articles shall not apply in the case of buildings destined for public use, or of walls bordering on public squares or streets.

Planting of trees, etc.
*Amended by:
II. 1920, 2, 3.*

437. (1) It shall not be lawful for any person to plant in his own tenement tall-stemmed trees at a distance of less than two metres and forty centimetres, or other trees at a distance of less than one metre and twenty centimetres from the boundary between his tenement and that of his neighbour.

(2) Vines, shrubs, hedges, and all other dwarfed trees not exceeding the height of two metres and ten centimetres, may be planted at a distance of not less than forty-five centimetres from the said boundary.

(3) The neighbour may, unless the period required for prescription has elapsed, demand that trees planted at a lesser distance, or which, notwithstanding the observance of the aforesaid distance, are causing him damage, be uprooted at the expense of the owner.

(4) The court, however, may grant to the owner of such trees the option either to uproot them, or to cause ditches or other works to be made at his expense sufficient to prevent all damage to the tenement of his neighbour.

(5) The provisions of this article shall not apply in cases where the adjoining tenements are separated by a wall, provided the aforesaid trees, shrubs or plants are so kept as not to exceed the height of the wall.

438. (1) A person over whose tenement the branches of the neighbour's trees extend, may compel him to cut such branches, and may gather the fruits hanging from them.

Branches of trees overhanging adjoining tenement.

(2) Moreover, if the roots extend into his tenement, he may cut them off himself.

439. It shall not be lawful for any person to dig in his own tenement, any well, cistern or sink, or to make any other excavation for any purpose whatsoever at a distance of less than seventy-six centimetres from the party-wall.

Digging of wells, etc.

440. (1) Notwithstanding the observance of the distance prescribed in the last preceding article, whosoever makes any excavation, shall be bound to make good any damage caused by such excavation to his neighbour's building, provided such building has been constructed according to the usages and the rules of art prevailing at the time of its construction.

Damage consequent on excavations.

(2) Nevertheless, no liability for damages is incurred, if the excavation is made at the distance which the court, upon the demand of the party wishing to make the excavation, shall have fixed, according to circumstances, or if such party has executed such works as, according to circumstances, shall have been ordered by the court so as to avoid causing any damage to the neighbour.

441. (1) Any sink-pipe or any pipe for water dripping from the roofs, or for water raised by means of a pump or other mechanical device, shall be at a distance of at least one metre from the boundary, to be measured from the nearest point of the external part of such pipe.

Distance of sink-pipes or water-pipes.

(2) The observance of such distance is not required if the pipes used are such as do not allow any dampness to penetrate into the wall, or if other means are used fit to prevent the passage of any such dampness.

(3) Nevertheless, if, notwithstanding the observance of the distance prescribed under sub-article (1) of this article, or the use of such pipes or means as are mentioned in sub-article (2) of this article, damage is caused to the neighbour, the owner of the pipes shall be bound to make, at his own expense, any other work that may be necessary for preventing the continuance of the damage, and, if necessary, even to remove the pipes to a greater distance.

Where cistern extends under tenement of neighbour.

442. (1) Where a cistern extends under the tenement of the neighbour, such neighbour may bore a hole and make use of the water, subject to his obligation to refund to the owner of the tenement in which the excavation of the cistern was commenced one-half of the expense incurred.

(2) Each of the two neighbours may demand that the part of the cistern which exists under his tenement be separated from that existing under the other tenement by means of a wall to be constructed and, when necessary, repaired at joint expense.

(3) Where, however, the part of the cistern existing under the tenement of one of the neighbours is considerably larger than the part existing under the tenement of the other, the court may, according to circumstances, in ordering the separation, direct the former to refund to the latter a proportionate part of the sum which he may have paid for the excavation of the cistern.

Distance of windows, etc., from party-wall.

443. (1) It shall not be lawful for the owner of any building to open windows at a distance of less than seventy-six centimetres from the party-wall.

(2) In the case of balconies or other similar projections, the distance prescribed under sub-article (1) of this article shall be measured from the external line of that side of the balcony or other projection, which is nearer to the party-wall, to the internal line of such wall.

Distance of ovens from party-wall.

444. (1) It shall not be lawful for any person to construct any oven except at a distance of at least thirty centimetres from the party-wall, and with a passage for air between the wall and the oven.

(2) Kitchen-stoves shall be at a distance of at least fifteen centimetres from the party-wall.

§ IV. OF EAVESDROP

Construction of roofs.

445. Every owner shall construct the roofs of his building in such a manner that the rainwater shall not fall on the neighbouring tenement.

§ V. OF RIGHT OF WAY AND OF WATERCOURSE

Access to and passage over tenements.

446. Every owner is bound to grant access to and a way over his tenement, provided such access or way be necessary, for the purpose of repairing a wall or other work belonging to his neighbour or held in common.

447. (1) Any owner whose tenement has no outlet to the public road, may compel the owners of the neighbouring tenements to allow him the necessary way, subject to the payment of an indemnity proportionate to the damage which such way may cause.

Tenement having no outlet to public road.

(2) Such right of way shall be exercised over that part where it will be least injurious to the person over whose tenement it is allowed.

448. Where the tenement has become enclosed on all sides in consequence of a sale, exchange, or partition, the vendors, the parties to the exchange, or the co-partitioners are bound to grant a foot-way, horse-way or cart-way, as the case may be, without any indemnity.

Tenement becoming enclosed on all sides.

449. Where the right of way granted as aforesaid shall, in consequence of the opening of a new road, or of the incorporation of the tenement with another tenement contiguous to the public road, cease to be necessary, the owner of the servient tenement may demand the discontinuance of such right of way on restitution of the indemnity received or the cessation of the annual payment agreed upon.

Discontinuance of right of way.

450. (1) Any person who cannot receive water into his own tenement from fountains or other deposits of public water, except through rural tenements belonging to other persons, may compel the owners of such tenements to grant him, in such manner as shall least injuriously affect them, the right of watercourse, subject to the payment of an indemnity proportionate to the damage.

Right of watercourse.

(2) It shall not be lawful for such person to compel the said owners to allow him to make new channels, if they grant to him watercourse by means of the existing channels; in which case the indemnity shall be determined having regard to the value of such channels, and the expense necessary for their first repair, and the person who makes use of them shall remain bound to contribute to the expense of their upkeep as provided in article 452.

451. The action for the payment of the indemnity under articles 447 and 450 is subject to prescription: and the right of way or of watercourse may continue to be exercised, although the action for the payment of the indemnity can no longer be maintained.

Action for indemnity subject to prescription.

452. Any person who is entitled to make use of the channels made for the passage of water is bound to contribute to the expenses for their necessary repairs, saving his right to relief, where competent, against the persons through whose fault the channels have been damaged.

Contribution towards necessary repairs of channels.

453. (1) Where the enjoyment of the way or the watercourse can be had in or over two or more tenements belonging to different owners, the easement shall be imposed on that tenement to the owner of which it is least injurious.

Where enjoyment of way or of watercourse can be had in or over two or more tenements.

(2) Where the easement will not affect one tenement more injuriously than another, the easement shall be imposed on that tenement where it shall be more convenient to the person demanding it, and it shall not be lawful for such person to choose another tenement without the consent of its owner.

OF EASEMENTS CREATED BY THE ACT OF MAN

§ I. OF THE DIFFERENT KINDS OF EASEMENTS WHICH CAN BE CREATED BY THE ACT OF MAN, AND OF THE MANNER IN WHICH SUCH EASEMENTS ARE CREATED

Creation of easements.

454. It shall be lawful for owners to establish, in accordance with article 400, any easement which is in no way contrary to public policy.

Continuous or discontinuous, apparent or non-
easements.

455. (1) Easements are continuous or discontinuous, apparent or non-apparent.

(2) Continuous easements are those the enjoyment of which is or may be continuous without the necessity of any actual interference by man: such as the easement of watercourse, eavesdrop, prospect and others of a like nature.

(3) Discontinuous easements are those the enjoyment of which can only be had by the actual interference of man: such as the easement of right of way, of drawing water, and others of a like nature.

(4) Apparent easements are those the existence of which appears from visible signs: such as a door, a window, or an artificial watercourse.

(5) Non-apparent easements are those which have no visible signs of their existence: such as the prohibition to build on a certain land or to build above a specified height.

Affirmative or
easements.

456. (1) Easements are, moreover, affirmative or negative.

(2) Affirmative easements are those which consist in the right of making use of the servient tenement.

(3) Negative easements are those which consist in the right of restraining the owner of the servient tenement from the free use thereof.

Creation of
apparent
easements.

457. Continuous and apparent easements may be created -

(a) by virtue of a title;

(b) by prescription, if the tenement over which such easements are exercised may be acquired by prescription;

(c) by the disposition of the owner of two tenements.

- 458. The title creating an easement is null unless it results from a public deed; and where the easement is created by a deed inter vivos, the easement shall not be operative as regards third parties before the deed is registered in the Public Registry as provided in article 330, on the demand of any of the parties interested, or of the notary receiving the deed.
- Title to result from public deed. Registration thereof.
- 459. (1) The owner of a tenement may, without the consent of the usufructuary, establish any easement over the tenement, provided the right of usufruct is not in any way prejudiced thereby.
- Creation of easements over tenements subject to usufruct.
- (2) With the consent of the usufructuary, the owner may establish even an easement diminishing the right of usufruct.
- 460. (1) An easement granted by one of the co-owners of an undivided tenement, shall not be deemed to be established until the other co-owners shall have also, jointly or separately, granted it.
- Easement granted by co-owner.
- (2) Any grant made under any title whatsoever by one of the co-owners remains in abeyance until a like grant is made by all the others.
- (3) Nevertheless, any grant made by a co-owner, independently of the other co-owners, shall operate so as to restrain not only the grantor but also his successors, even if singular, or any person claiming under him, from obstructing the exercise of the right so granted.
- 461. An easement granted by one of the co-owners over an undivided tenement, shall be deemed to be fully established as soon as the grantor becomes the sole owner of the tenement.
- Where co-owner granting easement becomes sole owner of tenement.
- 462. (1) In order to acquire an easement by prescription, possession for a period of not less than thirty years is necessary.
- Where easement is acquired by prescription.
- (2) If the servient tenement is subject to entail, or belongs to a church or any other pious institution, the prescriptive period is forty years.
- (3) In the cases referred to in this article, the person pleading prescription is not bound to produce a title, and no plea on the ground of bad faith can be set up against him.
- 463. (1) In the case of affirmative easements, possession to found prescription commences from the day on which the owner of the dominant tenement has commenced to exercise the right of easement.
- Prescription with regard to affirmative or negative easements.
- (2) In the case of negative easements, possession commences from the day on which the owner of the dominant tenement, shall have, by means of a judicial letter, protest, or other judicial act, restrained the owner of the servient tenement from the free use thereof.
- 464. Where the easement is in respect of a flow of water issuing from a tenement belonging to others, or from a spring existing in such tenement, and consists in the right of preventing the diversion of the water, any visible and permanent works which the owner of the dominant tenement may have made in the servient tenement in order to collect the water, or to facilitate its flow in his own tenement, shall be equivalent to the restraint mentioned in the last preceding article.
- Where easement is in respect of water flowing from neighbouring tenement.

Where emphyteuta, etc., suffers exercise of easement.

465. Any easement which the emphyteuta, usufructuary or tenant suffers to be exercised over the tenement, without any pre-existing title, shall not prejudice the dominus or the owner of such tenement, notwithstanding any length of time during which the easement may have been exercised.

Owner of tenement subject to easement of receiving rain-water falling on neighbouring building, may cause such easement to cease.

466. The owner of a tenement subject, in virtue of an easement constituted without title, to receive the rain-water falling on the roofs of a neighbouring building, may, at any time, on payment of an indemnity, compel the owner of such building to cause such easement to cease.

Owner of building subject to easement of allowing rain-water falling on such building to flow to neighbouring tenement, may cause such easement to cease.

467. The owner of a building in which there is no cistern, who, in virtue of an easement constituted without title, is obliged to allow the rain-water falling on the roofs of that building to flow to a neighbouring tenement, may, at any time, on payment of an indemnity, cause such easement to cease if he has constructed in such building a cistern for the collection of such rain-water.

When easement is said to be created by "the disposition of the owner of two tenements".

468. An easement is created by "the disposition of the owner of two tenements" if it is proved that the two tenements, now divided, belonged to the same owner, and it was such owner who placed or left things in the state which gives rise to the easement.

Easements that cannot be acquired by prescription.

469. (1) Continuous non-apparent easements, and discontinuous easements, whether apparent or non-apparent, can only be created by a title; they cannot be created by prescription or by the disposition of the owner of two tenements.

(2) Nevertheless, the easement of right of way for the use of a tenement may be acquired by the prescription of thirty years, if such tenement has no other outlet to the public road; and any other easement which, on the 11th February, 1870, was already acquired under previous laws, may not be impeached.

§ II. OF THE MANNER IN WHICH EASEMENTS ARE EXERCISED

Principal easement to include secondary easements.

470. The creation of an easement shall be deemed to include the granting of all that is necessary for the enjoyment of such easement with the least possible damage to the servient tenement. Thus the right of drawing water carries with it the right of way, and the right to cause water to be led over another person's tenement includes the right of way along the sides of the channel in order to watch over the flow of the water, and to clean the channel and make the necessary repairs.

471. Any person to whom an easement is competent may carry out at his expense and in such manner as to cause as little inconvenience as possible to the owner of the servient tenement, the works that are necessary for the exercise and preservation of the easement.

Right to carry out works necessary for enjoyment and preservation of easement.

472. Where the owner of the servient tenement is bound, in the terms of the title, to bear the expense necessary for the exercise or preservation of the easement, such obligation shall remain attached to that tenement, even though it passes into other hands:

When owner of servient tenement is bound to carry out repairs.

Provided that the possessor of such tenement may release himself from such obligation by abandoning, in favour of the owner of the dominant tenement, that part of the servient tenement over which the easement is exercised.

473. If a severance of the dominant tenement takes place, the easement which attached to the tenement will continue to attach to the several portions, without, however, increasing the burden on the servient tenement. Thus, where the easement is that of right of way, the owners of all the portions of the tenement so divided shall make use of the same path.

Where dominant tenement is divided.

474. (1) The owner of the servient tenement cannot do anything which tends to diminish the exercise of the easement or to make such exercise more inconvenient. He may not alter the condition of the tenement, nor may he assign for the exercise of the easement any part of the tenement other than that over which it was originally established.

Owner of servient tenement cannot do anything injurious to easement.

(2) Nevertheless, if the exercise of the easement in or over the part originally assigned has become more burdensome to the owner of the servient tenement, or if such owner is thereby prevented from carrying out works, repairs, or improvements in his tenement, he may offer to the owner of the dominant tenement a part equally convenient for the exercise of the easement, and the latter may not refuse it.

(3) The part of the tenement assigned for the exercise of the easement may likewise be changed upon the demand of the owner of the dominant tenement, if he proves that such change will be of considerable advantage to him, and will cause no damage whatsoever to the servient tenement.

475. Any person having a right of easement shall exercise such right in the terms of his title, and it shall not be lawful for such person to make either in the servient or in the dominant tenement, any alteration which may increase the burden on the servient tenement.

Owner of dominant tenement may not render easement more burdensome.

476. In case of doubt as to the extent of an easement, its exercise shall be restricted to what is necessary, having regard to the destination of the dominant tenement at the time the easement was created and to the convenient use of such tenement, with the least damage to the servient tenement.

Doubt as to extent of easement.

Duty of person granting water from a spring or channel.

477. In the absence of an agreement, the owner or other person making a grant of water from a spring or a channel is bound, towards those who, under such grant, are entitled to make use of such water, to carry out the works required to lead the water from its source to the place from which the water is to be taken.

Owner of tenement subject to easement in respect of flow of water may freely use such water.

478. The easement in respect of a flow of water, does not deprive the owner of the servient tenement of his right of freely using such water to his advantage.

§ III. OF THE MANNER IN WHICH EASEMENTS ARE EXTINGUISHED

Easements are extinguished when they can no longer be exercised,

479. (1) An easement is extinguished when the things subject thereto are in such a condition that it can no longer be exercised.

(2) Nevertheless, the easement will revive if the things are restored in such a manner that it can be again exercised, unless a period of time sufficient to raise a presumption of the extinguishment of the easement under article 481 shall have elapsed.

by merger or unity of possession,

480. (1) An easement is extinguished where the dominant and the servient tenements become united in the ownership of one person.

(2) Where, however, a visible sign of an easement exists, and the owner disposes of one of the said tenements without there being in the contract any declaration as to the easement, such easement shall continue to be operative, actively or passively, in favour of, or over, the tenement so alienated.

by non-user.
*Amended by:

481. (1) An easement is extinguished by non-user for the period of forty years, in the case of property belonging to the Government of Malta or to a church or other pious institution, and of thirty years, in the case of any other property.

(2) The provisions of this article shall not apply where the non-user was due to the conditions referred to in article 479 provided the owner of the dominant tenement could not, according to law, cause such conditions to cease.

Running of periods of non-user.

482. The periods of non-user referred to in the last preceding article, shall begin to run, according to the different kinds of easements, either from the date of the last exercise thereof, if the easement is discontinuous, or from the date of the first act done in contravention thereof, if the easement is continuous.

Prescription in favour of third party in possession.

483. In regard to a third party in possession of the servient tenement, the easement shall be extinguished by the lapse of the time required for the prescription of the ownership of the tenement itself according to the provisions relating to prescription under Title XXV of Part II of Book Second of this Code.

Prescription as to manner of use of easement.

484. The manner of enjoying an easement may be prescribed as the easement itself.

- 485. Where the dominant tenement belongs to two or more persons in common, the use of the easement made by any one of the co-owners shall operate so as to bar prescription with regard to all the co-owners. Interruption of prescription by a co-owner.
- 486. (1) Where among the co-owners there is one against whom prescription could not run, such fact shall operate so as to preserve the right of all the others. Suspension or interruption of prescription with regard to a co-owner.
- (2) Any act which interrupts prescription with regard to one of the co-owners shall benefit also the others.
- 487. Where two buildings which belonged to one owner, are about to be divided, it shall be competent to each of the co-partitioners to demand, before proceeding to the partition, the cessation of any easement between the two tenements, provided this can be done without any serious prejudice. Cessation of easement on partition.
- 488. (1) Any easement acquired by the husband in favour of a dotal tenement, or by an emphyteuta in favour of the emphyteutical tenement, shall not be extinguished on the dissolution of the marriage or on the termination of the emphyteusis. Easements acquired in favour of dotal or emphyteutical tenements.
- (2) Easements, however, imposed over the said tenements by the said persons shall be extinguished.

OF COMMUNITY OF PROPERTY

Sub-title I

OF THE NATURE OF THE COMMUNITY OF PROPERTY, AND OF THE RIGHTS OF THE CO-OWNERS DURING THE COMMUNITY

- 489. (1) Community of property exists where the ownership of one and the same thing, or of one and the same right, is vested pro indiviso in two or more persons. Definition of community of property.
- (2) In the absence of any special agreement or provisions, the community of property shall be governed by the following rules.
- 490. (1) The shares of the co-owners shall, unless the contrary is proved, be presumed to be equal. Share of co-owners.
- (2) Every co-owner shall participate in the advantages and burdens of the community in proportion to his share.
- 491. Each of the co-owners is entitled to make use of the common property, provided - Right of co-owner to make use of common property.
- (a) that the use be made according to the destination of the property as established by usage;
- (b) that it be not made against the interest of the community, or in such a manner as to prevent the other co-owners from making use of the common property according to their rights.

Contribution towards expenses.

492. Each of the co-owners may compel the others to share with him the expense necessary for the preservation of the common property, saving the right of any of such other co-owners to release himself from his liability therefor by abandoning his right of co-ownership.

No alterations to be made without consent of co-owners.

493. It shall not be lawful for any co-owner to effect any alteration in the common property without the consent of the other co-owners, even though he claims that such alteration is beneficial to all.

Power of court to appoint administrator of common property.

494. (1) Where the co-owners fail to agree, the court shall give the necessary directions as to the management and better enjoyment of the common property, and may appoint an administrator, even from among the co-owners themselves.

(2) The court shall give effect to the opinion of the majority, regard being had to the total number of the co-owners, unless the dissentient co-owners show they will be prejudiced thereby.

Each co-owner has full ownership of his share.
*Amended by:
XVIII. 2004.45.*

495. (1) Each co-owner has the full ownership of his share and of the profits or fruits thereof.

(2) He may freely alienate, assign, or hypothecate such share, and may also, subject to the provisions of article 912, substitute for himself another person in the enjoyment thereof, unless personal rights are concerned:

Provided that the effect of any alienation or hypothecation shall be restricted to that portion which may come to the co-owner on a partition.

(3) Where the heirs in an inheritance continue to hold in common, property deriving from the succession for more than ten years and no action has been instituted before a court or other tribunal for the partition of the property within ten years from the opening of the succession and the portions of the heirs in the said inheritance are the same in respect of all the assets of the inheritance, each co-owner shall be deemed to be co-owner of each and every item of property so held in common:

Provided that this subarticle shall not apply:

- (a) when property held in common is subject to any right of habitation, use or of usufruct, for such time during which such right is in force; or
- (b) when the property held in common consists of property which of its very kind has of necessity to be kept indivisible; or
- (c) when persons who are holding the property deriving from the succession in common agree otherwise:

495A. (1) Except in cases of condominium or necessary community of property, where co-ownership has lasted for more than ten years and none of the owners has instituted an action before a court or other tribunal for the partition of the property held in common, and the co-owners fail to agree with regard to the sale of any particular property, the court shall if it is satisfied that none of the dissident co-owners are seriously prejudiced thereby, authorise the sale in accordance with the wish of the majority of co-owners regard being had to the value of the shares held by each co-owner.

The application shall also indicate the date on which the co-ownership arose and the circumstances thereof.

(3) The application shall be served on the co-owners who do not agree with the sale as well as on curators to be appointed by the court to represent such of the co-owners who are unknown or who cannot be traced. The registrar shall cause a copy of the application to be published in the Gazette and in one daily newspaper.

(4) A declaration that any co-owner is not known or cannot be traced shall be confirmed on oath by one of the applicants.

(6) In assessing whether there will be serious prejudice to any of the co-owners, the court shall take into consideration all relevant factors including the value of the property and the price of the sale, and may for this purpose order that the property be appraised in accordance with the provisions of article 306 of the Code of Organization and Civil Procedure.

Cap. 12.

PARTITION OF COMMON PROPERTY

Each co-owner may demand partition of common property.

496. (1) No person can be compelled to remain in the community of property with others, and each of the co-owners may, at any time, notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary, demand a partition, provided such partition has not been prohibited or suspended by a will under the provisions of article 906.

(2) Nevertheless, an agreement to the effect that property shall continue to be held in common for a fixed period not exceeding five years is valid; and any agreement for a longer period, is null in so far as it exceeds five years.

(3) Any such agreement may be renewed.

Power of court to order dissolution of community notwithstanding prohibition of testator, etc.

497. (1) Notwithstanding the prohibition or agreement referred to in the last preceding article, it shall be lawful for the court, if serious and urgent reasons so require, to order the dissolution of the community of property, and any waiver of the right to demand a partition in similar cases is null.

(2) Where any of the co-owners has, through his fault, given cause to the existence of the reasons referred to in sub-article (1) of this article, the court may, according to circumstances, in ordering the dissolution, condemn such co-owner in all damages.

Partition may be demanded even if co-owner enjoyed separately a portion of the property.

498. Partition may be demanded even though one of the co-owners may have enjoyed separately a portion of the common property, unless there has been a partition or a possession sufficient to give rise to prescription.

499. (1) A partition of immovable property is null unless it is made by a public deed.

(2) As to the effect of any such partition in regard to third parties, and as to the registration of the deed of partition, the provisions of article 330 shall apply.

Manner and form of partition.

500. (1) Subject to the provisions of the last preceding article, where all the co-owners are present and capable of alienating property, the partition may be made in any manner and form they may deem convenient.

(2) In the absence of an agreement to the contrary, the following rules shall be observed, both in the partition of the bulk of the property as well as in any sub-division which may be necessary.

501. (1) The property shall be appraised by experts chosen by the parties, or appointed by the court as provided in the Code of Organization and Civil Procedure.

Cap. 12.

(2) The experts shall state in their report, whether the property can be conveniently divided without being injuriously affected, and, in case the property can be so divided, the experts shall in the same report determine each of the portions which may be made up and the value thereof, regard being had, as far as it is practicable without considerable damage, to the provisions contained in the next following three articles.

502. Each of the co-owners may claim his share of the property in kind.

Right of co-owner to have his share in kind.

503. A co-owner possessing property immovable by its nature adjacent to any of the immovables in community about to be divided, may demand that such immovables be assigned to him upon a valuation, provided there be other immovables in community out of which an approximately equal portion may be assigned to each of the other co-partitioners.

Right of co-owner possessing immovables adjacent to those in community.

504. In forming and making up the shares, the dismemberment of tenements or the creation of easements shall be avoided; and it shall be sought to include in each share the same quantity of movables, immovables, rights or claims of the same nature and value.

Payment of a sum of money in case of inequality of shares.

506. (1) It shall be lawful for the court, according to circumstances, to order, in lieu of the payment of the sum of money mentioned in the last preceding article, the imposition of a rent-charge on the larger share in favour of the smaller share, secured by the hypothecation of one or more of the immovables included in such larger share.

Rent-charge in lieu of sum of money.
Amended by:
XIII.1983.5;
L.N. 407 of 2007.

(2) For the purposes of sub-article (1) of this article, the experts shall, unless exempted by the co-partitioners themselves, establish in their report the amount of such rent-charge as may be required for owelty of partition.

(3) The provisions of this article shall not apply unless the inequality exceeds the sum of one hundred and sixteen euro and forty-seven cents (116.47) and is greater than the value of one-fourth part of the larger share.

507. The provisions of the last preceding article shall also apply where the immovables held in community cannot be divided in such a manner as to include a portion thereof in each share, and, in consequence, one of the shares will consist entirely of money or other movables; in any such case it shall be lawful for the court,

Other cases where rent-charge may be imposed.

	according to circumstances, to order that the share which contains no immovables be made up of a rent-charge on the immovables included in the other shares.
Limitation of amount of rent-charge.	508. Nevertheless, the rent-charge imposed on any immovable shall in no case be greater than the fifth part of the estimated annual rental value of such immovable on lease.
Formation of shares.	509. Where the experts, chosen or appointed to make the valuation of the property, are not competent to make up the shares, such shares shall be made up by one of the co-partitioners or by any other person, if the choice is agreed upon by all, and if the party so chosen accepts to act. Otherwise the shares shall be made up by a person to be appointed by the court.
Drawing of lots.	510. (1) The shares shall be drawn by lot. (2) Where, however, the shares of the co-partitioners are not equal, the court shall determine whether the shares are to be drawn by lot, or whether the partition is to be carried out by assignment in whole or in part.
When partition is to be made with the assistance of the judge or magistrate.	511. (1) Where any of the co-owners is subject to tutorship or curatorship, or is an absentee represented by a curator appointed by the court, the partition is null unless it is made with the assistance of the judge or magistrate of the court of voluntary jurisdiction. (2) The judge or magistrate shall countersign the draft deed. (3) A partition made with the assistance of such judge or magistrate cannot be impeached, even by the persons mentioned in sub-article (1) of this article, on the ground of non-compliance with the rules laid down in the foregoing articles.
Delivery of documents relating to the subjects of the partition.	512. (1) Each of the co-partitioners shall, on completion of the partition, be put in possession of the documents relating to the things allotted to him, if such documents exist among the things held in community. (2) The documents relating to a thing which has been divided shall be kept by the party having the greatest portion thereof, subject to his obligation to show such documents, whenever requested, to such of the co-partitioners as may be interested therein. (3) The documents relating generally to all the property formerly held in community shall be delivered to the party chosen by all the co-partitioners, or, failing their agreement, by the court, as a depositary thereof, subject to his obligation to show such documents, whenever requested, to any of the co-partitioners.

the property allotted or assigned to one of the co-partitioners is, having regard to the time of such partition or other act, less than three-fourths of the fair value of the share to which such co-partitioner was entitled, such co-partitioner shall be entitled to demand from the other co-partitioner a supplement in money.

(2) No action for a supplement under sub-article (1) of this article may be maintained where difficulties arisen between the co-partitioners have been settled by a compromise, even if no suit had been commenced in relation thereto; nor may such action be maintained in the case of a sale of the right of co-ownership made without fraud to one of the co-owners at his risk and peril by the other co-owners or any of them.

(3) The action for demanding a supplement in money under sub-article (1) of this article shall be barred by the lapse of two years from the date of the partition or other act terminating the community, and the provisions of sub-article (2) of article 1407 shall apply in respect of the running of such period of limitation.

(4) The mere omission from a partition of a thing held in community shall only give rise to a supplementary partition.

(1) A sale by licitation which takes place with the consent of all the co-owners, is not subject to any formality, and may be made by means of any person and in whatsoever manner the co-owners may agree upon; but in any such case there is no sale until the highest bid has been accepted and, if the licitation is in respect of immovable property, until a contract is made by means of a public deed.

No formalities required where licitation takes place with the consent of all co-owners, Amended by: XIII.1983.5; L.N. 407 of 2007.

519. Licitation under authority of court, to be carried out as a judicial sale.

521. (1) Where under the provisions of the last preceding article the sale by licitation takes place under the authority of the court, it shall be carried out according to the rules laid down for judicial sales by auction, in so far as such rules are applicable, unless the court deems it more beneficial for the parties interested that it should be carried out otherwise.

(2) In all cases, strangers shall be invited to bid.

(3) The adjudication made by the registrar shall be equivalent to the deed of sale, even if the sale relates to immovable property.

Applicability of certain provisions relating to sale of immovables.

522. In case of sale of immovables by licitation, the provisions relating generally to the sale of immovables shall apply with regard to the registration of the contract or of the act of adjudication, in the interest of third parties.

Sub-title III

OF THE RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS AS BETWEEN THE POSSESSOR AND THE OWNER

§ I. OF THE FRUITS OF THE THING POSSESSED, OF THE EXPENSES INCURRED IN CONNECTION THEREWITH AND OF THE RIGHT OF RETENTION

540. A possessor in good faith acquires the fruits of the thing possessed, even though such thing be an inheritance; and he is not bound to restore except such fruits as he shall have collected, or, by the exercise of the diligence of a bonus paterfamilias, could have collected, after a judicial demand:

Right of possessor in good faith with regard to fruits of thing possessed.

Provided that he shall not be bound to restore the price of unplucked or uncut fruits, received by him before the judicial demand, even though, at the time of such demand, the fruits may be as yet unplucked from the trees or uncut from the ground.

541. A possessor in bad faith is bound to restore all the fruits which he has collected, or, by the exercise of the diligence of a bonus paterfamilias, could have collected from the day of his unlawful occupation.

Possessor in bad faith.

542. (1) A possessor in good faith may demand from the owner the reimbursement of the necessary expenses whether their effect continues or not.

Right of possessor in good faith as to expenses.

(2) As regards useful expenses, the owner is bound either to refund to the possessor the cost of the work or, at his option, to pay to him a sum corresponding to the enhanced value of the thing.

(3) The court may, according to circumstances, direct that the refund of the expenses made on an immovable, be effected by the owner by means of a rent-charge secured by the hypothecation of the immovable, or in any other manner as to fully satisfy the debt and which is at the same time less onerous to the debtor.

Possessor in bad faith.

543. (1) In relation to a possessor in bad faith, the owner has, in respect of necessary expenses, and of useful expenses for meliorations which cannot be removed, the same obligations as an owner has in relation to a possessor in good faith, provided possession of the thing shall not have been obtained by theft or some other offence which does not fall under the class of contraventions.

(2) As regards useful expenses for meliorations which can be removed, the owner may elect either to retain such meliorations or to compel the possessor to remove them.

(3) If the owner demands the removal of such meliorations, the possessor shall remove them at his expense without any right to indemnity, and he shall be bound to make good to the owner any damage which the latter may have suffered.

(4) If the owner elects to retain the meliorations, he shall, at his option, either refund to the possessor the cost thereof or pay to him a sum corresponding to the enhanced value of the thing.

Rights of possessor as to decorative expenses.

544. With regard to decorative expenses the possessor, whether in good or bad faith, shall only be entitled to take back the adornments in kind, provided this be advantageous to the possessor and not injurious to the thing, unless the owner desires to retain such adornments, and pay to the possessor a sum corresponding to the profit that the latter might make by taking them away.

Definition of necessary, useful and decorative expenses.

545. (1) Necessary expenses are those without which the thing would have perished or deteriorated.

(2) Useful expenses are those which ameliorate the thing by making it more convenient, or capable of yielding more fruit, but the omission of which is not prejudicial to the thing.

(3) Decorative expenses are those which serve only to adorn the thing, without rendering it more convenient or capable of yielding more fruit, and which if omitted would not cause the thing to deteriorate.

(4) Decorative expenses may, however, in certain cases, be considered as useful expenses, regard being had to the condition of the owner, or to the existence of particular circumstances which may afford the owner an immediate opportunity of deriving profit from such expenses.

Possession of thing obtained by theft or other offence.

546. Any person who shall have obtained possession of the thing by theft or any other offence, not being a mere contravention, shall not be entitled to any indemnity for any kind of expenses, or to remove any meliorations made on the thing; and he may be compelled by the owner to remove at his expense, and without any right to indemnity, such objects as may be removed, and also to make good any damage which the owner may have suffered.

547. The set-off of the fruits against the expenses mentioned in the foregoing articles shall take place even with regard to the possessor in good faith:

Set-off of fruits against expenses.

Provided such possessor shall, besides the fruits which he is bound to restore according to the provisions of article 540, be bound to bring into account only the fruits which he shall have collected during the five years preceding the judicial demand of the owner.

548. The possessor, whether in good or bad faith, shall not be bound to restore, or to bring into account for the purposes of the set-off mentioned in the last preceding article, the fruits of any meliorations which, under the provisions of the foregoing articles, he has the right to remove, or for which he is to be indemnified by the owner, unless the owner agrees to pay to him interest on the cost of such meliorations.

Where possessor in good or bad faith is not bound to restore fruits of meliorations.

549. (1) The expenses for the production or preservation of the fruits of a thing are not comprised in those referred to in the foregoing articles of this sub-title.

Expenses for the production or preservation of fruits.

(2) Such expenses shall always be deducted from the said fruits.

550. Where under the provisions of the foregoing articles, a possessor, whether in good or bad faith, is entitled to recover the expenses made on a thing belonging to others, either by taking back the subject of such expenses, or by the reimbursement of the said expenses, he shall, saving the provisions of article 2079, be entitled to retain the thing until he shall have obtained what is due to him, provided his demand for the recovery of such expenses is made, even orally, during the hearing of the action, before judgment is delivered on the demand of the owner for the restoration of the thing.

Right of retention competent to possessor.

§ II. OF THE OBLIGATIONS OF THE POSSESSOR WITH REGARD TO THE RESTORATION OF THE THING

551. A possessor in good faith is bound to make good such damage as, by his own act or otherwise, even before the judicial demand of the owner, may have been caused to the thing, but only to the extent of the benefit which he has derived from such damage.

Possessor in good faith to make good damage.

552. Where the thing possessed is an inheritance or a portion of an inheritance, the possessor, even if in good faith, who has alienated any hereditary thing, is, moreover, bound to restore, but always to the extent of the benefit which he has derived from such alienation, the value of such thing.

If the thing possessed be an inheritance.

Where possessor is deemed to have derived a benefit.

553. For the purposes of the provisions of the last two preceding articles, the possessor is deemed to have derived a benefit from the said damage or alienation in each of the following cases only:

- (a) if the subject of the benefit so derived is found, at the time of the judicial demand, to exist separately from the things belonging to the possessor;
- (b) if, where the subject of such benefit has been intermixed with things belonging to the possessor, his estate is found, at the time of such demand, to have been enhanced thereby;
- (c) if, where the subject of such benefit has been consumed by the possessor, such possessor has in consequence saved his own things, and such saving still exists:

Provided that it shall be lawful for the possessor in any of the foregoing cases to retain the subject of such benefit on paying to the plaintiff the value of the things at the time he shall have disposed thereof or their value at the time of the demand, whichever is the greater.

Possessor in good faith not bound to restore value of things given, etc.

554. A possessor in good faith is not, even in the case of possession of an inheritance, bound to restore the value of things given, lost or destroyed without profit.

Applicability of ss.552, 553 and 554 to possessor of other universitas rerum.

555. The provisions of the last three preceding articles shall apply to the possessor of any other universitas rerum.

Possessor in bad faith to restore things wrongfully occupied by him.

556. (1) A possessor in bad faith shall in all cases be bound to restore all the things which he has wrongfully occupied.

(2) Where such possessor has, whether voluntarily or through his own fault, ceased to possess any of such things, he shall be bound to restore to the plaintiff any profit which he may have derived therefrom or, at the option of the plaintiff, to pay to him the value of the thing at the time of the cesser of possession or the value thereof at the time of the demand, whichever is the greater, notwithstanding that, in such case, he shall not have derived any profit therefrom.

Possessor in bad faith answerable for damage caused to thing.

557. A possessor in bad faith shall also be liable for all damage which may have been occasioned by his own act as well as for that occasioned by a fortuitous event unless, whatever the manner in which he may have obtained possession of the thing, he shows that the thing would have equally perished or deteriorated if it had been in the possession of the owner.

§ III. OF THE PARTICULAR EFFECTS OF THE POSSESSION OF MOVABLES

558. (1) In the case of movables by nature, or securities to bearer, possession shall produce in favour of third parties in good faith the same effects as the title, saving, in regard to vessels, the provisions of any other law.

Possession of movables by third parties in good faith.

(2) The provisions of this article shall not apply in the case of a universitas of movables.

559. (1) It shall, nevertheless, be lawful for any person who has lost a thing, or has been robbed thereof, to recover it on indemnifying the possessor.

Owner of thing lost or stolen may recover it.

(2) Such person may even recover the thing without any obligation to indemnify the possessor if the latter has not obtained the thing in good faith, under an onerous title, from a party who was presumably the owner thereof or a person charged by the owner to dispose of it.

Retrospective effect of acceptance of inheritance.

849. The acceptance of an inheritance shall retroact as from the day of the opening of the succession, saving any right which may have been acquired by third parties in virtue of agreements made in good faith with the apparent heir.

Acceptance may be express or implied.

850. (1) Acceptance may be either express or implied.

(2) It is express, if the status of heir is assumed either in a public deed or in a private writing.

(3) It is implied, if the heir performs any act which necessarily implies his intention to accept the inheritance, and which he would not be entitled to perform except in his capacity as heir.

Effects of judicial declaration as to status of heir.

851. A person who, by a judgment of the competent court, has been declared to be the heir, or has been condemned expressly in such capacity, shall be deemed to be the heir with regard to all the legatees and creditors of the inheritance.

Amended by:

852. (1) Arrangements made for the funeral, acts of mere preservation, or of provisional administration, shall not, unless the status of heir has also been assumed, imply acceptance of the inheritance.

(3) Subarticle (2) shall only apply if the person entitled to succeed states in the action that he is acting in his capacity of de jure curator.

Acts implying acceptance.

853. (1) Any donation, sale, or assignment of his rights of succession by one of the co-heirs, whether in favour of a stranger or of all or any of his co-heirs, shall imply his acceptance of the inheritance.

(2) The same applies -

- (a) with regard to a renunciation made, even if gratuitously, by one of the heirs in favour of one or more of his co-heirs;
- (b) with regard to a renunciation made, even in favour of all his co-heirs indiscriminately, when such renunciation is made under an onerous title.

854. Where the renunciation is made gratuitously by one of the co-heirs in favour of all those co-heirs, whether testamentary or heirs-at-law, upon whom, on failure of the party renouncing, his portion of the inheritance would have devolved, it shall not imply acceptance of the inheritance.

When renunciation of one co-heir in favour of other co-heirs does not imply acceptance of inheritance.

855. If the heirs do not agree as to accepting or renouncing the inheritance, the party accepting shall alone acquire all the rights, and become subject to all the liabilities of the inheritance.

Where heirs do not agree as to accepting or renouncing an inheritance.

856. Where a person to whom a succession has opened dies without having renounced or accepted it, the right to accept such succession shall vest in his heirs; and in such case the provisions of the last preceding article shall also apply to such heirs.

Right of acceptance transmissible to heirs.

857. The heirs who have accepted the inheritance of the person from whom the right referred to in the last preceding article is derived, may nevertheless renounce the inheritance devolved upon, but not yet accepted by such person:

Rights of such heirs.

Amended by:
XVIII. 2004.92.

861. The heir who renounces a testate succession forfeits all rights to the intestate succession:

Provided that it shall be lawful for such heir to make, in the act of renunciation, a reservation in respect of the reserved portion of the property to which he may be entitled under any of the provisions of articles 614 to 653.

Heir renouncing inheritance may claim legacy.

862. (1) The heir who renounces is considered as if he had never been an heir.

(2) Nevertheless, his renunciation shall not operate so as to deprive him of the right to demand any legacy bequeathed to him.

Devolution of share of person renouncing, in intestate succession.

863. (1) In intestate successions, the share of the person renouncing accrues to his co-heirs.

(2) If the person renouncing is the sole heir, the succession devolves upon the person next in degree.

No person may take as representative of person renouncing.

864. (1) No person may take as the representative of an heir who has renounced.

865. In testate successions, the share of the person renouncing shall devolve upon the co-heirs or the heirs-at-law as provided in articles 737 and 741.

Creditors of renouncing heir may accept in his stead.
Amended by:
XLVI.1973.64.

866. (1) The creditors of a person who renounces an inheritance to the prejudice of their rights, may apply to the court for authorization to accept such inheritance in the place of their debtor.

(2) In the case referred to in sub-article (1) of this article the renunciation is annulled not in favour of the renouncing heir, but in favour of the creditors, and only to the extent of the rights of such creditors.

(3) It shall be lawful for any of the co-heirs of the person renouncing to oppose the action of the creditors by paying the sums due to them, and the co-heir effecting payment shall ipso jure be subrogated to the rights of the creditors whose claims he has satisfied.

Renouncing heir may still accept vacant inheritance.

867. (1) An heir who has renounced an inheritance may yet accept such inheritance provided -

(a) the right of acceptance shall not, in his regard, have lapsed by prescription; and

(b) the inheritance shall not have been already accepted by other heirs.

(2) Nevertheless, such acceptance shall not operate so as to prejudice any right which may have been acquired by third parties over the property of the inheritance either by prescription, or by virtue of acts validly made with the curator of the vacant inheritance.

868. The court shall, on the demand of any person interested, fix the time of one month, which may, on good grounds, be extended to another month, within which the heir whether testamentary or heir-at-law shall be bound to declare whether he accepts or renounces the inheritance; and in default of such declaration within the said time, original or enlarged, the inheritance shall be deemed to have been renounced.

Heir may be compelled to declare whether he accepts or refuses.

869. Notwithstanding the provisions of the foregoing articles, the persons entitled to succeed, having the actual possession of the property of the inheritance, shall, on the lapse of three months from the opening of the succession, or from the day on which they had knowledge of the devolution thereof, forfeit the right to renounce such inheritance, unless they have complied with the provisions relating to the benefit of inventory; and, they shall be deemed to be pure and unconditional heirs, even though they claim to be seized of such property under a different title.

Heir having actual possession cannot renounce inheritance after lapse of three months.

870. Any heir who misappropriates or conceals any property belonging to the inheritance, shall forfeit the right to renounce such inheritance, and shall, notwithstanding any renunciation remain pure and unconditional heir.

Heir misappropriating property of inheritance forfeits rights of renouncing inheritance.

871. Saving other provisions of this Code with regard to renunciations in contemplation of marriage, it shall not be lawful to renounce the inheritance of a living person, or to alienate any eventual rights thereto, except on taking the vows in a monastic order or a religious corporation of regulars.

Renunciation of inheritance of a person living, is null.

872. A renunciation made on taking the vows in a monastic order or a religious corporation of regulars must be made in a manner that the person renouncing and the order or corporation, may in no case succeed to the property so renounced.

Renunciation of inheritance by person entering into a monastic order, to be absolute, except with regard to the power of reserving a life annuity.

873. It shall, nevertheless, be lawful for the person renouncing as aforesaid to reserve a life annuity on the property so renounced, and, in any such case, the order or corporation may, upon the death of the person renouncing, demand the payment of any amount of the annuity which shall not have been paid to him provided he shall have expressly declared the default of payment and the debt is not barred by prescription.

874. The renunciation mentioned in article 872 may be made even by a minor, provided he has the age required by law for taking religious vows.

875. The renunciation mentioned in article 872 shall be operative in regard to the persons in whose favour it has been made even though such persons shall not have been present, and shall not, up to the time of the opening of the succession to the property renounced, have accepted such renunciation.

Effect of renunciation.

Annulment of vows brings about the annulment of the renunciation.

876. (1) The annulment of the religious vows shall also bring about the annulment of the renunciation.

(2) Nevertheless, any alienation of the property renounced which may have been made before the annulment of the vows, shall remain effectual, saving the right of the person renouncing to claim an indemnity from such other persons as may be liable, according to law.

OF THE BENEFIT OF INVENTORY

Nullity of testamentary disposition restraining heir from entering upon inventory.

877. It shall be lawful for the heir, notwithstanding any prohibition of the testator, to avail himself of the benefit of inventory.

Declaration of intention to assume status of heir under benefit of inventory.

878. (1) The declaration of an heir that he does not intend to assume the status of heir except under the benefit of inventory shall be made in the registry of the court of voluntary jurisdiction of the island in which the deceased resided at the time of his death, or in which the person whose succession is concerned has taken the vows in a monastic order or religious corporation of regulars.

(2) Where the opening of the succession has taken place in virtue of a judgment declaring that, on account of a long period of absence, the person whose succession is concerned is to be presumed to have died, the said declaration shall be made by the heir in the registry of the court of the island in which such judgment shall have been given.

879. The declaration aforesaid shall be ineffectual if it is not preceded or followed by an inventory of the property of the inheritance in accordance with the provisions contained in the Code of Organization and Civil Procedure.

880. (1) If among several heirs one is willing to accept the inheritance under the benefit of inventory, and one or more without such benefit, the inventory must be made.

(3) The benefit is only competent to the heir making the declaration.

Heir having actual possession of property of inheritance to make up inventory within three months.

881. The heir having the actual possession of the property of the inheritance, is bound to make up the inventory within three months from the day of the opening of the succession, or from the day on which he knew that the inheritance devolved upon him.

882. Where the heir has not, within the first three months, commenced the inventory or has not completed it within the said time, or within such further time as may have been allowed to him, he shall be deemed to have accepted the inheritance without the benefit of inventory.

Heir failing to commence or complete inventory within prescribed time to be deemed to have accepted inheritance without benefit of inventory.

883. When the inventory is completed, the heir who has not yet made the declaration of accepting the inheritance, shall be allowed the time of forty days, to be reckoned from the day of the completion of the inventory, to deliberate whether he would accept or renounce the inheritance; and if, within the said time, the heir has not made in the registry of the said court a declaration renouncing the inheritance, or accepting it under the benefit of inventory, he shall be deemed to have accepted it under the benefit of inventory.

Time for deliberating after inventory is completed.

(2) Where no claims are brought against such heir, he shall continue to have the right to make up the inventory until such time as the right of accepting the inheritance shall not have lapsed by prescription.

885. Minors and persons interdicted shall not be deemed to have forfeited the benefit of inventory except on the expiration of one year from the day on which they shall have attained majority, or the interdiction shall have ceased, as the case may be, unless, within such time, they shall have complied with the provisions of the foregoing articles.

Minors and persons interdicted.

886. (1) During the continuance of the time allowed for making up the inventory and for deliberating, the person entitled to succeed is not bound to assume the status of heir.

Pending inventory, heir is considered as curator of inheritance.

(2) Nevertheless, such person shall be considered as curator de jure of the inheritance, and, as such, he may be sued as representing the inheritance to answer claims brought against it.

(3) If such person fails to appear, the court shall appoint a curator to represent the inheritance in the proceedings.

887. Where in the estate there are things which cannot be preserved, or the preservation of which entails a considerable expense, the heir may, during the continuance of the said times, obtain from the court of voluntary jurisdiction, or, in case of opposition, from the competent court, leave for such things to be sold in such manner as the court shall deem expedient:

Heir may obtain leave to sell hereditary property which cannot be preserved.

956. (1) Any partition which is not made among all the children existing at the time of the opening of the succession and the descendants of predeceased children entitled to succeed shall be null in toto.

(2) In any such case, both the children or descendants who were not comprised in the partition, as well as those among whom such partition was made, may demand a fresh partition.

Nullity of partition does not invalidate dispositions.

958. The nullity of the partition shall not operate so as to invalidate the dispositions in execution of which the partition has been made, even though a stranger may have benefited by the act of partition.

Provided that when trust property is reduced, the excess property shall be held by the trustee absolutely for the heirs of the settlor or for the benefit of the person entitled thereto as the case may be.

(3) When the beneficiary entitled to property which is in excess of what is permissible at law is a spouse of the settlor, such excess property shall be held under separate trust for use and enjoyment of fruits for the lifetime of such spouse and subject to the terms of the trust, thereafter for the heirs of the settlor absolutely.

prejudicing the interests of the said beneficiary, the trustee may apply to the Court and the Court may order that the property not be sold, divided or reduced until the death of the said beneficiary. Furthermore, and in such case -

- (a) the person claiming to have suffered the damage has, on becoming aware of the improper behaviour of the officer or employee, given such notice to the Government or the body corporate, as the case may be, to take such preventive measures as are reasonable in the circumstances to prevent the commission of the act of corruption;

- (b) the person claiming to have suffered the damages has not himself in relation to the same matter induced any officer or employee to commit the act of corruption, or in any manner been party to it;
- (c) the person suffering the damage has taken all action against the person liable for the damages in accordance with subarticle (3) to recover the damages; and

Provided that the Government or the body corporate, as the case may be, shall only be liable for such part of the damages as are not recovered from the persons liable therefor in accordance with subarticle (3).

(5) No right for compensation for damages shall lie where the party claiming to have suffered the damages has himself wilfully been a party to the act of corruption:

Provided that nothing in this subarticle shall be construed as precluding any person from recovering any payment made or thing given, or the value thereof, where the payment has been made or the thing has been given for an unlawful consideration.

(6) An action to recover damages under this article shall be brought before the lapse of three years from the date that the person claiming damages becomes aware or should have reasonably become aware that damage has occurred or that an act of corruption has taken place and of the identity of the person responsible therefor or before the lapse of ten years from the date of the act of corruption, whichever is the earlier, and no action may be brought after the lapse of such time.

Provided that no action may be brought after the lapse of ten years from the date of the act of corruption.

OF THE VARIOUS KINDS OF OBLIGATIONS

§ I. OF CONDITIONAL OBLIGATIONS

OF CONDITIONS IN GENERAL AND OF THEIR VARIOUS KINDS

- 1052. An obligation is conditional when it is made to depend upon an uncertain future event, either by suspending it until the event happens, or by dissolving it if the event happens or does not happen. Definition of conditional obligation.
- 1053. (1) A condition is casual when it makes the obligation depend upon a fortuitous event beyond the control of the debtor and of the creditor. Casual and potestative conditions.
- (2) A potestative condition is that which makes the obligation depend upon an event which the one or the other of the contracting parties has the power to bring about or to prevent.
- (3) A mixed condition is that which makes the obligation depend upon the will of one of the contracting parties, and, at the same time, upon the will of a third party or upon a fortuitous event.
- 1054. Any condition contrary to morals, or to public policy, or prohibited by law, or which imposes the performance of an impossible thing, is void, and annuls the agreement dependent thereon. Condition contrary to morality, etc.
- 1055. (1) The condition to forbear to do an impossible thing does not void the obligation contracted on that condition. Effect of condition to forbear to do an impossible thing, etc.
- (2) The condition, however, to forbear to do a thing contrary to morals or to public policy or prohibited by law may void the obligation.
- 1056. (1) Where an obligation is contracted on a condition which makes the obligation depend solely upon the will of the obligor, the obligation is null. Obligation is null if contracted under condition depending solely upon obligor.
- (2) Nevertheless, where the obligation depends upon an event the happening of which is within the power of the obligor, he is bound if the event happens.
- 1057. Every condition must be fulfilled in the manner in which the parties have in all likelihood desired and intended that it should be fulfilled. Condition to be fulfilled according to the intention of the parties.
- 1058. (1) Where an obligation is contracted on condition that an event shall happen within an appointed time, such condition shall be deemed to have failed if the time expires without the event having happened. Where obligation is contracted on condition that an event shall happen within a certain time.
- (2) Where no time is fixed, the condition shall not be deemed to have failed until it is certain that the event will not happen:
- Provided that, where the condition consists in an act which can be performed by the obligee, it shall be lawful for the court, according to circumstances, to fix a time for the fulfilment of the condition, and if, on the expiration of such time, the condition has not been fulfilled, the obligation ceases.

Where obligation is contracted on condition that an event shall not happen within a certain time.

1059. (1) Where an obligation is contracted on condition that an event shall not happen within an appointed time, the condition shall be deemed to be fulfilled both if the time expires and the event has not happened, as well as if, before the expiration of the time, it is certain that the event will not happen.

(2) Where no time is fixed, the condition is not fulfilled until it is certain that the event will not happen:

Provided that, where the condition consists in an act within the power of the obligor, it shall be lawful for the court to fix a time, and if the time expires and the event constituting the condition does not occur, the condition shall be deemed to be fulfilled, and the obligor shall be bound to perform the obligation.

When a condition is deemed to be fulfilled.

1060. (1) The condition shall be deemed to be fulfilled if the debtor who is bound under such condition is the person who has impeded the fulfilment thereof.

(2) The provision of this article shall not apply in any case in which the impediment is due to the exercise of a lawful right not contemplated in the agreement.

Retroactive effect of condition.

1061. (1) A condition, on being fulfilled, shall have a retroactive effect.

(2) If the creditor dies before the fulfilment of the condition, his rights vest in his heirs.

Creditor may secure his rights before condition is fulfilled.

OF THE SUSPENSIVE CONDITION

Definition of suspensive condition.

1063. (1) A suspensive condition is that which makes the existence of the obligation depend upon a future and uncertain event.

(2) An obligation under a suspensive condition does not exist before the event happens.

Where thing perishes or deteriorates before fulfilment of condition.

1064. Where an obligation is contracted under a suspensive condition, and the thing forming the subject-matter of the agreement perishes or deteriorates before the condition is fulfilled, the following rules shall be observed:

- (a) if the thing perishes entirely, without any fault of the debtor, the agreement shall be ineffectual;
- (b) if the thing perishes entirely, through the fault of the debtor, such debtor shall be liable to the creditor for damages;

- (c) if the thing perishes in part only, or deteriorates, without any fault of the debtor, the loss shall be borne by the creditor, who shall be bound to receive the thing in the state in which it is without any abatement of the price thereof;
- (d) if the thing perishes in part, or deteriorates, through the fault of the debtor, the creditor may elect either to demand the dissolution of the agreement, or to claim the thing in the state in which it is, with damages.

1065. An obligation contingent on an event which has already happened, but is not yet known to the parties, shall be effectual as from the day on which it was contracted, but the debtor may not be compelled to perform it until the unknown event is ascertained.

Where obligation is contingent on event which has already taken place.

OF THE RESOLUTIVE CONDITION

1066. (1) A resolute condition is that which, on being accomplished, operates the dissolution of the obligation, and replaces things in the same state as though the obligation had never been contracted.

Definition of resolute condition.

(2) Such condition does not suspend the performance of the obligation, but, if the event provided for by the condition happens, the creditor shall be bound to restore that which he may have received.

1067. Where the resolute condition is expressly stated in the agreement, such agreement shall, upon the accomplishment of the condition, be dissolved ipso jure, and it shall not be lawful for the court to grant any time to the defendant.

Effect of express resolute condition.

1068. A resolute condition is in all cases implied in bilateral agreements in the event of one of the contracting parties failing to fulfil his engagement:

Resolute condition is implied in bilateral contracts.

Provided that in any such case, the agreement shall not be dissolved ipso jure, and it shall be lawful for the court, according to circumstances, to grant a reasonable time to the defendant, saving any other provision of law relating to contracts of sale.

1069. (1) Where the resolute condition, whether express or implied, relates to any case in which one of the parties fails to fulfil his engagement, the party who is the creditor in the undischarged obligation may, at his option, upon the accomplishment of the condition, either demand the dissolution of the contract, or compel the other party to perform the obligation, if this is possible.

Rights of creditor in an undischarged obligation.

(2) In either case the defendant may be condemned in damages.

§ II. OF OBLIGATIONS WITH A LIMITED TIME

Time for performance of obligation.	1070. (1) Time is the period fixed for the performance of an obligation. (2) A time may be established either by fixing a certain specified day, or by reference to an event which will certainly happen, although on an uncertain day.
Time does not suspend obligation.	1071. Time shall not suspend the obligation, but shall only delay the execution thereof.
Thing may not be claimed before expiration of time.	1072. What is only due at a certain time, cannot be claimed before the expiration of such time, but what has been paid in advance, cannot be recovered even though the debtor at the time of payment may not have been aware of the stipulation as to time.
Time to be presumed stipulated in favour of debtor.	1073. Time shall always be deemed to be stipulated in favour of the debtor, unless it appears from the stipulation or from the circumstances that it was also agreed upon in favour of the creditor.
Computation of time.	1074. In computing a time the day shall be reckoned at twenty-four hours: the month and the year according to the calendar.
Dies a quo not to be computed.	1075. The day on which an obligation with a limited time is contracted, or from which the time is to commence to run, shall not be computed in the time itself.
Public holidays. Amended by: XXII.1976.4.	1076. (1) Public holidays shall not suspend the running of the time: Provided that where the last day of the time is a public holiday the time shall not be deemed to have elapsed before the next following day, not being a public holiday, shall have expired. (2) For the purposes of this article, public holidays are those days in which no ordinary court sitting may be held as provided in article 109 of the Code of Organization and Civil Procedure.
Cap. 12.
Where no time is fixed for performance of obligation.	1077. Where no time has been fixed for the performance of an obligation, it shall be carried into effect forthwith, unless the nature of the obligation, or the manner in which it is to be carried into effect, or the place agreed upon for its execution, implies the necessity of a time to be, if necessary, fixed by the court.
Where time for performance of obligation is left to the will of the debtor.	1078. Where the time for the performance of the obligation has been left to the will of the debtor, or where it has been agreed that the debtor shall discharge the obligation when it will be possible for him to do so, or when he will have the means for so doing, the following rules shall be observed: (a) if the subject-matter of the obligation is the payment of a sum of money, such obligation shall be performed within two years, if the sum is due without interest, or, within six years if the sum is due with interest; (b) if the subject-matter of the obligation is other than the payment of a sum of money, the time within which the obligation is to be performed shall be fixed by the court according to circumstances.

1079. A debtor can no longer claim the benefit of time if he has become insolvent, or if his condition has so changed as to endanger the payment of the debt, or if by his own act he has diminished the security which under the agreement he had given to the creditor, or if he has failed to give the security agreed upon.

When debtor cannot claim benefit of time.

§ III. OF ALTERNATIVE AND POTESTATIVE OBLIGATIONS

1080. (1) The debtor in an alternative obligation is released therefrom by the delivery of one of the two things included in the obligation.

How alternative obligation is discharged.

(2) The debtor may not compel the creditor to receive a part of one thing and a part of the other.

1081. The option shall belong to the debtor, unless it has been expressly granted to the creditor.

Option granted to debtor.

1082. (1) Where the party entitled to the option fails to exercise such option within the time expressly agreed upon for the purpose, the right of option shall vest in the other party.

Where party entitled to option fails to exercise it.

(2) Where no such time has been agreed upon, it shall be competent to the court to fix a time, and if the party having the option shall fail to exercise it within such time, the right of option shall vest in the other party.

1083. Where one of the two things promised could not form the subject-matter of the obligation, such obligation shall be deemed to be pure and simple with regard to the other thing.

Where one of two things promised could not form the subject of an obligation, 1084. (1) An alternative obligation shall become pure and simple with regard to the thing which remains, if one of the two things promised perishes, or can no longer be delivered, even if this happens through the fault of the debtor. The value of the thing which perished cannot be offered in its stead.

(2) If both things perish and the debtor is in fault with regard to one of them, he shall be bound to pay the value of the thing which perished last.

1085. Where, in any of the cases referred to in the last preceding article, the right of option, under the agreement, was granted to the creditor, the following rules shall be observed:

When right of option is competent to creditor.

- (a) if only one of the things perishes, but without the fault of the debtor, the creditor is bound to receive the thing which remains: if the debtor is in fault, the creditor may claim either the thing which remains or the value of the thing which perished;
- (b) if both things perish, and the debtor is in fault with regard to both or even to one of them, the creditor may demand the value of either of such things, at his choice.

Where both things perish without the fault of the debtor.

1086. Where both things perish, without the fault of the debtor, and before he is in default for delay in the delivery, the obligation is extinguished in accordance with the provisions of article 1207.

Where alternative obligation includes more than two things.

1087. The same rules shall apply where the alternative obligation includes more than two things.

Definition of potestative obligation.

1088. (1) Where in an obligation having for its subject-matter a determinate thing, it is competent to the debtor to release himself by offering another thing, such obligation is said to be potestative.

(2) In any such case the creditor may only demand the thing specified in the agreement.

(3) If such thing perishes, the obligation is extinguished, saving any other provision of the law in cases where the debtor is in default for delay in the delivery of the thing, or the thing perishes through his fault.

§ IV. OF JOINT AND SEVERAL OBLIGATIONS

Obligation not to be presumed to be in solidum.

1089. Joint and several liability is not presumed. If not declared by law, it must be expressly stipulated.

OF JOINT AND SEVERAL CREDITORS

Obligation in solidum in favour of several creditors.

1090. An obligation is joint and several in favour of two or more creditors when it expressly vests each of such creditors with the right of demanding the payment of the whole sum due, and the payment made to any one of them discharges the debtor, even though the benefit accruing from the obligation may be divided between the several creditors.

Option of debtor to pay any one of the joint and several creditors.

1091. It shall be at the option of the debtor to pay any one of the joint and several creditors unless previous notice shall have been given to him by one of such creditors, by means of a judicial demand or other judicial act.

Interruption and suspension of prescription.

1092. (1) Every act which interrupts prescription with regard to one of the joint and several creditors shall also benefit the other creditors.

(2) The suspension of prescription in favour of one of the joint and several creditors shall not benefit the other creditors.

Effect of remission by one of the joint and several creditors.

OF JOINT AND SEVERAL DEBTORS

- 1094. Debtors are jointly and severally liable when they are all bound to the same thing in such a way that each of them may be compelled to discharge the whole debt, and the payment made by one of them operates so as to release the others as against the creditor. Joint and several debtors.
- 1095. An obligation may be joint and several even though one of the debtors is bound differently from the others for the payment of the same thing, as when the obligation of one is conditional and that of the other is pure and simple, or when one is allowed a time for payment which is not granted to the other, or when the debtors are bound to pay in different places. Obligation may be joint and several even though debtors are differently bound.
- 1096. The creditor may enforce his claim against any of the joint and several debtors, at his option, and it shall not be lawful for the debtor to set up the benefit of division. Creditor may sue any of the joint and several debtors.
- 1097. A judicial demand made against one of the joint and several debtors shall not operate so as to bar the creditor from bringing a similar action against any of the others, even though, in making the first demand, the creditor shall not have expressly reserved such right. Judicial demand against one of the debtors in solidum does not bar a similar demand against any of the others.
- 1098. A demand for the payment of interest, where competent, made against one of the joint and several debtors, shall cause interest to run against all the debtors. Demand for payment of interest.
- 1099. (1) Where proceedings have been taken by the creditor against a co-debtor jointly and severally liable, it shall be lawful for such co-debtor to set up all such pleas as are personal to himself, as well as those which are common to all the other co-debtors. Pleas which may be set up by joint and several debtors.
- (2) Nevertheless, such co-debtor may not set up any pleas which are purely personal to any one only of the other co-debtors.
- 1100. An acknowledgment of the debt by one of the joint and several debtors, and every other act capable of interrupting prescription with regard to any one of such debtors, shall interrupt prescription also with regard to the other debtors and their heirs. Interruption of prescription.
- 1101. (1) An acknowledgment of the debt by one of the heirs of one of the joint and several debtors, and every other act executed against such heir, shall not, even though such acknowledgment or act may interrupt prescription with regard to such heir, interrupt prescription with regard to the other co-heirs, even though the debt be a hypothecary debt, unless the obligation be indivisible. Acknowledgement of debt by one of the heirs of the joint and several debtors.
- (2) The interruption of prescription against one of the heirs of one of the joint and several debtors, shall not be operative against the other co-debtors except with regard to the part of the debt for which such heir is liable.
- (3) Nevertheless, where prescription has been interrupted against all the heirs of the deceased co-debtor, such interruption shall be operative against all the surviving co-debtors for the whole debt.

Where thing perishes through the fault of one or more of the debtors in solidum.

1102. (1) Where the thing due perishes through the fault of one or more of the joint and several debtors, or during the time in which he or they is or are in default for delay in delivering the thing, the other co-debtors shall not be released from the obligation of paying the value thereof, but they shall not be liable for damages.

(2) The creditor can only claim damages from the debtor or debtors through whose fault the thing perished or who was or were in default.

Where one of the debtors becomes the heir of the creditor, etc.

1103. Where one of the debtors becomes the heir of the creditor, or when the creditor becomes the heir of one of the debtors, the joint and several debt shall, as a result of such merger, be extinguished with regard to the portion of such debtor.

Where creditor consents to the division of the debt in favour of one of the debtors.

1104. Where the creditor consents to the division of the debt in favour of one of the debtors, he shall not thereby be barred from exercising his joint and several action against the other debtors in respect of the whole debt.

Where creditor receives part-payments.

1105. (1) The receipt of a portion of the debt in one or more payments, from one or more of the joint and several debtors, shall not imply any renunciation of the joint and several obligation, either in regard to the debtor or debtors who shall have paid such portion of the debt, or in regard to the others, even though the creditor, in receiving such portion, shall not have expressly reserved his joint and several action or his rights in general.

(2) The same rule shall apply with regard to any judicial demand made by the creditor against one or more of the co-debtors for a portion of the debt.

(3) Such renunciation shall not be presumed, even if the sum received or claimed is equal to the share of the debt to which the debtor who has paid, or against whom the demand for payment is made, would be liable as between himself and the other co-debtors.

Debtors among themselves bound ratably.

1106. The obligation contracted jointly and severally in favour of the creditor, is ipso jure divided among the debtors who, amongst themselves, are bound each for his share only.

Co-debtor discharging debt may only claim from the other co-debtors their respective shares.

1107. (1) Where one of the co-debtors has wholly discharged a joint and several debt, he may only claim from the other co-debtors the share of each of them, together with interest as from the day of payment, notwithstanding any assignment of rights.

(2) Where one of such other co-debtors is insolvent, the loss occasioned by such insolvency shall be apportioned amongst all the solvent co-debtors, including the one who has made the payment, in proportion to each one's share of the debt.

Where creditor discharges one of the co-debtors from his joint and several liability.

1108. Where the creditor has renounced his joint and several right of action with respect to one of the debtors, and one or more of the other debtors becomes or become insolvent, the shares of those who are insolvent shall be apportioned amongst all the debtors, including those previously discharged by the creditor from their joint and several liability, in proportion to each one's share of the debt.

1109. Where the matter in regard to which the joint and several liability has been contracted, concerns only one of the co-debtors, such co-debtor shall be liable for the whole debt towards the other co-debtors, and the latter, in relation to such co-debtor, shall be considered merely as sureties.

Where subject-matter of joint and several liability concerns one of the co-debtors only.

§ V. OF DIVISIBLE AND INDIVISIBLE OBLIGATIONS

1110. An obligation is divisible or indivisible according as to whether the thing or fact forming the subject-matter thereof, is or is not susceptible of division, physically or intellectually.

Divisible obligation.

1111. An obligation is indivisible if, although the thing or fact forming the subject-matter thereof is of its nature divisible, the manner in which such thing or fact has been considered in the obligation does not admit of a performance in part.

Indivisible obligation.

1112. An obligation shall not be deemed to be indivisible solely on the ground that it is a joint and several obligation.

Joint and several obligation does not imply indivisibility.

OF DIVISIBLE OBLIGATIONS

1113. (1) An obligation, although susceptible of division, must be performed, as between the creditor and the debtor, as if it were indivisible.

How divisible obligation is performed as between creditor and debtor.

(2) The divisibility shall only be applicable in regard to their heirs, who can claim or are liable to pay the debt only to the extent of the shares competent to them, or for which they are liable as representing the creditor or the debtor.

1114. (1) The rule as to the divisibility of the obligation in regard to the heirs of the debtor shall not apply in the following cases:

When rule of divisibility does not apply to heirs of debtor.

- (a) when a determinate thing is due;
- (b) when, under the instrument of title, one of the heirs alone is charged with the performance of the obligation;
- (c) when from the nature or the subject-matter of the obligation or from the purpose of the agreement it appears that the intention of the parties was that the debt should not be discharged in separate parts.

(2) In the cases referred to in paragraphs (a) and (b) of sub-article (1) of this article, the heir who is in possession of the thing, or who is alone charged with the debt, and, in the case referred to in paragraph (c) of that sub-article, each of the heirs, may be sued for the whole, saving his right of relief against the other co-heirs.

OF INDIVISIBLE OBLIGATIONS

Liability of obligors under an indivisible obligation.

1115. (1) Where two or more persons have jointly contracted an indivisible debt, each of such persons is liable for the whole of the debt, although the obligation has not been contracted jointly and severally.

(2) The same rule shall apply with regard to the heirs of a person who has contracted a similar obligation.

Rights of heirs of creditor in an indivisible obligation.

1116. (1) Each of the heirs of the creditor may demand the entire fulfilment of an indivisible obligation.

(2) He cannot alone remit the whole of the debt, or receive, instead of the thing, the value thereof.

(3) Where one of the heirs has alone remitted the debt, or received the value of the thing, it shall not be lawful for any of the other co-heirs to demand the indivisible thing without taking into account the portion of the heir who has remitted the debt or received the value.

Right of co-heir of debtor to demand that the other co-heirs be made parties to the suit.

1117. The heir of the debtor, on being sued in respect of the whole debt, may demand an adjournment to join his co-heirs as defendants in the suit, provided the debt be not of such nature that it can only be discharged by the heir so sued, in which case judgment may be given against such heir alone, saving his right of relief against the other co-heirs.

§ VI. OF OBLIGATIONS WITH A PENALTY CLAUSE

Definition of penalty clause.

1118. A penalty clause is a clause whereby a person, for the purpose of securing the fulfilment of an agreement, binds himself to something in case of non-fulfilment.

Effects of nullity of principal obligation and of penalty clause.

1119. (1) The nullity of the principal obligation produces the nullity of the penalty clause.

(2) The nullity of the penalty clause does not produce the nullity of the principal obligation.

Penalty to represent compensation for damages.

1120. (1) The penalty represents the compensation for the damage which the creditor sustains by the non-performance of the principal obligation.

(2) The creditor may sue for the performance of the principal obligation instead of demanding the penalty incurred by the debtor.

(3) He cannot demand both the principal thing and the penalty, unless the penalty shall have been stipulated in consideration of mere delay.

When penalty becomes due.

1121. (1) Where the obligation consists in forbearing to do something, the penalty becomes due as soon as the contravention takes place.

(2) Where the obligation could not be performed except at a certain time, the penalty shall be incurred as soon as such time expires, unless another time has been fixed by agreement.

(3) In any other case, the penalty shall be incurred when the debtor is put in default as provided in article 1130.

1122. (1) It shall not be lawful for the court to abate or mitigate the penalty except in the following cases: Abatement or mitigation of penalty.

- (a) if the debtor has performed the obligation in part, and the creditor has expressly accepted the part so performed;
- (b) if the debtor has performed the obligation in part, and the part so performed, having regard to the particular circumstances of the creditor, is manifestly useful to the latter. In any such case, however, an abatement cannot be made if the debtor, in undertaking to pay the penalty, has expressly waived his right to any abatement or if the penalty has been stipulated in consideration of mere delay.

(2) Where an abatement is to be made under this article, the penalty shall be reduced in proportion to the unperformed part of the obligation.

1123. Where the subject-matter of the principal obligation contracted with a penalty clause is an indivisible thing, the penalty is incurred even where only one of the heirs of the debtor infringes the obligation; and in such case, the penalty may be claimed either - Penalty clause in indivisible obligation.

- (a) against the defaulter, for the whole amount, or
- (b) against each co-heir for his respective share, or, where a hypothecary action is competent, even for the whole amount, saving the right of relief against the defaulter.

1124. (1) Where the principal obligation contracted with a penalty clause is divisible, and one of the heirs of the debtor infringes the obligation, the penalty shall be incurred only by such heir, and only for the share of the principal obligation for which he is liable, and no action shall lie against those who have performed the obligation. Penalty clause in divisible obligation.

(2) The rule laid down in sub-article (1) of this article shall not apply to cases where the penalty has been stipulated in order that payment should not be made in part, and one of the co-heirs has prevented the performance of the obligation in its entirety. In any such case, such co-heir is liable for the entire penalty, and the others are liable for their respective shares only, saving their right of relief against the defaulter.

(4) Without prejudice to the duty of a fiduciary to carry out his obligations with utmost good faith and to act honestly in all cases, a fiduciary is bound, subject to express provision of law or express terms of any instrument in writing excluding or modifying such duty, as the case may be - debt.

1147. (1) Every payment implies a debt, and what is paid without being due may be recovered.

(2) Nevertheless no action for recovery shall lie if the payment was made in discharge of a natural obligation.

By whom payment may be made.

1148. (1) An obligation may be extinguished by payment made by any person concerned in it, such as a co-obligor or a surety.

(2) An obligation may also be extinguished by payment made by a third party not concerned in the obligation, provided such third party acts in the name and for the discharge of the debtor, or, if he acts in his own name, provided he shall not be subrogated to the rights of the creditor.

1149. (1) A creditor cannot refuse payment tendered by a third party, if the debtor is benefited thereby.

Creditor cannot refuse payment by third party.

(2) The same rule shall be applicable even in the case of an obligation to do, provided, in such case, the creditor is not interested in having the obligation performed by the debtor himself, and the performance is offered by the third party at the request of the debtor.

1150. (1) Where the payment has for its object the transfer to the creditor of the property of the thing paid, such payment shall not be valid unless it is made by the person who is the owner of the thing.

Where payment transfers the property of the thing.

(2) Nevertheless, the payment of a sum of money, or of some other thing which is consumed by use, cannot be recovered from the creditor who has consumed such sum or thing in good faith, although the payment has been made by a person who was not the owner of the money or thing.

1151. Any payment made by a person incapable of alienating may, in the interest of such person, be annulled.

Annulment of payment made by person incapable of alienating.

1152. (1) Payment must be made to the creditor, or to a person authorized by him, or by the court or by law, to receive it.

Payment made in good faith to person in possession of debt.

1154. Payment made to the creditor is not valid if he is under any disability to receive payment, unless the debtor proves that the thing paid was applied to the benefit of such creditor.

When payment made to creditor incapable of receiving it, is valid.

1155. Payment made by a debtor to his creditor in contravention of a garnishee order, or any other order of the court shall not be valid with regard to the persons in whose favour the order was issued or given; and such persons may, so far as their rights are concerned, compel the debtor to pay again, saving his remedy against the creditor.

Payment by debtor in contravention of garnishee order, etc.

1156. A creditor cannot be compelled to receive a thing different from that which is due to him, although the value of the thing tendered is equal, or even greater; or to receive payment of part of the debt, although the debt is divisible.

Creditor cannot be compelled to receive a different thing, or a part-payment.

1157. The debtor of a certain and determinate thing is discharged by delivering it in the condition in which it is at the time of delivery, provided he was not in default for delay before any deterioration supervened, and such deterioration was not caused through the fault of the debtor or of other persons for whom he is responsible.

Delivery of thing determinate only as to its species.	1158. Where the debt relates to a thing which is only determinate as to its species, the debtor, in order to be discharged, is not bound to deliver a thing of the best quality, but he cannot deliver a thing of the worst quality.
Where payment is to be made.	1159. (1) Payment must be made at the place specified in the contract. (2) If no place is specified, and the thing due is certain and determinate, payment must be made at the place where the thing forming the subject-matter of the payment was at the time of the contract. (3) Where the thing to be given in payment is a sum of money or any other thing which can, without expense, be carried or sent, and both the creditor and the debtor reside in the same island, payment must be made at the house of the creditor. (4) In any other case payment must be made at the place of abode of the debtor.
Presumption of payment in the case of rent, interest or other periodical payments.	1160. In the case of rent, interest, or other periodical payments, if it appears from receipts that the debtor has paid the sums falling due at three consecutive periods, without any reservation as to sums fallen due previously, the latter sums shall be presumed to have been paid.
Presumption of payment in other cases.	1161. The debt shall likewise be presumed to have been paid if - (a) a general account has been taken between the parties of what is due by the one to the other, at least three times after the debt fell due, without any mention of such debts or any other reservation including it; and (b) the demand in regard to such debt is made after the death of the debtor, or after a period of not less than three years from the day of the acquittance relating to the last general account.
Inapplicability of presumption.	1162. In each of the cases mentioned in the last two preceding articles, the presumption of payment shall not arise if there are circumstances from which it appears improbable that the debt was paid, or from which it appears that there was some good reason for not making a mention of the debt on the occasion of the payments or accounts made or taken after the debt became due.
Expenses relating to payment.	1163. (1) The expenses relating to the payment shall be at the charge of the debtor. (2) The payer may require that the acquittance be, at his expense, recorded in a public deed.

1165. (1) The payer shall be subrogated to the rights of the creditor, by agreement - Subrogation by agreement.

(a) when the creditor subrogates the payer to all his rights against the debtor, provided such subrogation is expressly stated, and made simultaneously with the payment;

Provided that such subrogation shall not be valid unless -

(i) the loan and the discharge are made by a public deed,

(ii) it is stated in the deed of loan that the sum has been borrowed in order to discharge the debt, and

(iii) it is stated in the discharge that the payment has been made with the money furnished for the purpose by the new creditor.

(2) The subrogation referred to in paragraph (b) of sub-article (1) of this article shall take place independently of the consent of the creditor.

(d) any heir with the benefit of inventory who, with his own money, has satisfied debts of the inheritance.

1167. Subrogation, whether by agreement or by operation of law, takes place against both the sureties and the debtors; but shall not operate to the prejudice of the creditor when he has only been paid in part; and, in any such case, the creditor may claim the balance due to him in preference to the person from whom he shall have received the part payment. Subrogation takes place both against sureties and debtors.

OF APPROPRIATION OF PAYMENTS

Debtor may apply payment to the discharge of a particular debt.

1168. (1) It shall be competent to any debtor owing several debts to declare, in making a payment, that such payment is to be applied to the discharge of a particular debt.

(2) Nevertheless, the debtor may not, without the consent of the creditor, appropriate the payment to a debt which has not fallen due in preference to a debt which has fallen due, in any case in which the time for the discharge of the former debt is presumed to have been agreed upon also in favour of the creditor.

(3) Nor may he appropriate the payment to the rent or interest accruing due in respect of subsequent years in preference to the rent or interest accrued due in respect of preceding years.

Debt bearing interest.

1169. (1) The debtor of a capital sum bearing interest cannot, without the consent of the creditor, appropriate the payment to the principal in preference to the interest.

(2) Any part-payment made generally on account of principal and interest shall be first applied to the discharge of the interest.

Where debtor accepts receipt containing appropriation made by creditor.

1170. Where a debtor, owing several debts, accepts a receipt in which the creditor has expressly applied the payment to a particular debt, he may not demand that the payment be applied to any other debt, unless there has been fraud or surprise on the part of the creditor.

- (f) in any case not expressly provided for in the preceding rules, the appropriation shall be made to the debt which, at the time of payment, the debtor had the greatest interest in discharging;
- (g) where the debtor has no interest in discharging a particular debt in preference to another, the appropriation shall be made to the oldest debt: and in the case of several debts contracted on the same day, and falling due at different times, the debt first fallen due shall be deemed to be the oldest;
- (h) if all things are equal, the payment is applied in discharge of each debt proportionately.

1172. Where the creditor obtains payment by causing the sale of a thing charged with privilege or hypothec in security of his claim, and receiving the proceeds thereof, the following rules shall be observed:

- (a) the appropriation shall be made to the debt secured by privilege or hypothec in preference to any other debt, even if the debtor may have a greater interest in discharging such other debt;

- (c) if all things are equal, the payment is applied in discharge of each debt proportionately.

OF TENDER OF PAYMENT AND OF DEPOSIT

When debtor can deposit sum or thing due.

Cap. 12.

(2) A deposit validly made shall be equivalent to payment, and the thing deposited shall remain at the risk of the creditor.

1176. (1) A deposit, so long as it is not accepted by the creditor, may be withdrawn by the debtor, unless it shall have been attached by a garnishee order sued out by the creditor or any other person.

(2) Where the debtor withdraws the deposit, his co-debtors or sureties are not discharged.

Where debtor has obtained a judgement declaring deposit to be valid.

1177. Where the debtor has obtained a judgment declaring the deposit to be valid, he can no longer, not even with the consent of the creditor, withdraw the deposit to the prejudice of his co-debtors or sureties.

Where creditor consents to withdrawal of deposit declared valid.

1178. The creditor who has allowed the debtor to withdraw the deposit after it had been declared valid, can no longer, for the payment of the debt due to him, enforce any privilege or hypothec with which such debt was secured; and such creditor shall no longer enjoy a right of hypothec except from the day on which the act whereby he agreed to the withdrawal of the deposit, being an act made with the formalities necessary for creating a hypothec and for being registered in the Public Registry, shall have been so registered.

§ II. OF NOVATION

When novation takes place.

1179. Novation takes place -

- (a) when the debtor contracts towards his creditor a new debt, and this is substituted for the old one which is extinguished;
- (b) when a new debtor is substituted for the old one, who is discharged by the creditor;

- (c) when, in virtue of a new obligation, a new creditor is substituted for the old one in regard to whom the debtor is discharged.

1180. (1) Novation can only be effected between persons capable of contracting. By whom novation can be made.

(2) It is not to be presumed; the intention to effect it must clearly appear.

(3) Novation by the substitution of a new debtor, may be effected without the concurrence of the former debtor.

1181. (1) Novation shall not take place if the former obligation is not extinguished, although it is modified. No novation, unless former obligation is extinguished.

(2) The mere indication made by a debtor of a person who is to pay in his stead shall not operate as novation.

(3) Nor shall the mere indication made by a creditor of a person who is to receive in his behalf operate as novation.

1182. (1) The acceptance of notes or other negotiable securities in consideration of a former debt shall not operate as novation unless it appears clearly from other circumstances that it was intended to extinguish such former debt. Acceptance of securities in consideration of a former debt does not produce novation.

(2) Nor shall novation take place in respect of a debt which was originally of a commercial nature, merely on the ground that such debt is subsequently recorded in a notarial instrument, and secured by a hypothec.

1183. The delegation by which a debtor gives to the creditor another debtor, who binds himself towards the creditor, shall not operate as novation, unless the creditor has expressly declared his intention to release the debtor making the delegation. When delegation does not operate as novation.

1184. The creditor who has released the debtor making the delegation shall have no relief against such debtor if the person delegated becomes insolvent, unless the creditor has expressly reserved his rights to that effect, or the person delegated was, at the time of the delegation, already insolvent or bankrupt or about to become bankrupt. Insolvency of person delegated.

1185. Any privilege or hypothec securing the former debt shall not extend to the substituted debt unless the creditor has made an express reservation to that effect. Privileges, etc. securing former debt not to extend to substituted debt.

1186. Where novation takes place by the substitution of a new debtor, the original privileges and hypothecs securing the debt shall not affect the property of the new debtor. Property of new debtor not affected by original privileges, etc.

1187. Where novation takes place between the creditor and one of the joint and several debtors, the privileges and hypothecs of the former debt may only be reserved as a charge on the property of the party contracting the new debt. Novation between creditor and one of the joint and several debtors.

1188. (1) The novation between the creditor and one of the joint and several debtors shall release the other co-debtors, saving Effects thereof.

the right of relief competent to the debtor contracting the new obligation against the co-debtors in respect of their share of the former debt discharged by him.

(2) A novation which takes place in respect of the principal debtor shall discharge the sureties.

(3) Nevertheless, where the creditor demands the concurrence of the co-debtors in the case referred to in sub-article (1) of this article, or the concurrence of the sureties in the case referred to in sub-article (2) of this article, and such co-debtors or sureties refuse to accept the new agreement, the former debt shall continue to subsist.

Pleas which may be set up by the delegated debtor against his new creditor.

1189. (1) A delegated debtor who has accepted the delegation cannot set up against his new creditor such pleas as he could have set up against his original creditor, saving his right of relief against the latter.

(2) The provisions contained in sub-article (1) of this article shall not apply where the person making the delegation intended by such delegation to make a gift to the person in whose favour the delegation was made.

(3) Nor shall the said provisions apply with regard to pleas depending on the condition of a person, such as the condition of a minor, provided such condition existed at the time when the person delegated accepted the delegation.

§ III. OF THE REMISSION OF DEBTS

Remission in case of joint and several debts.

1190. (1) A remission or conventional discharge in favour of one of the joint and several debtors shall discharge all the other co-debtors, unless the creditor shall have made an express reservation of his rights against them.

(2) Where such reservation is made, the creditor, in claiming the debt, shall be bound to deduct the share of the release.

Effects of remission in regard to the surety.

1191. (1) A remission or conventional discharge in favour of the principal debtor shall discharge the surety.

(2) The release of the surety shall not discharge the principal debtor.

(3) The release of one of the sureties shall not discharge the other co-sureties except to the extent of the share in respect of which they were entitled to seek relief against the co-surety so released.

Creditor to deduct from debt anything received from surety as consideration for release.

1192. Anything which the creditor has received from the surety to release him from his undertaking shall be imputed to the sum due, in discharge of the principal debtor and the other sureties.

1193. (1) The voluntary surrender of the original instrument creating the debt, made by the creditor to the debtor, shall raise a presumption of release, unless it is proved that the surrender was made for some purpose other than that of discharging the debtor.

When surrender of instrument creating debt implies release.

(2) The surrender of the aforesaid instrument made to one of the joint and several debtors, produces the same effect in favour of the other co-debtors.

1194. The mere absence of the reservation of a debt in an acquittance relating to another debt shall not operate so as to raise a presumption of the remission of the former debt.

Absence of reservation of a debt in an acquittance relating to another debt.

1195. The surrender of the pledge shall not be sufficient to raise a presumption of the remission of the debt.

§ IV. OF SET-OFF

1196. (1) Where two persons are mutual debtors, a set-off takes place between them.

When set-off takes place.

(2) Set-off operates ipso jure, and even without the knowledge of the debtors. The moment two debts exist simultaneously, they are mutually extinguished to the extent of their corresponding amounts.

1197. (1) Set-off shall only take place between two debts both of which have for their subject-matter a sum of money or a determinate quantity of fungibles of the same kind, and which are both for a liquidated amount and exigible.

Between which debts set-off takes place.

(2) A debt shall be deemed to be for a liquidated amount if it is certain even with respect to the quantity thereof.

1198. Time for payment gratuitously granted shall not operate so as to bar a set-off.

Time for payment not to bar set-off.

1199. Set-off takes place whatever may be the consideration of either of the debts, except in the following cases:

When set-off does not take place.

- (a) when a demand is made for the restoration of a thing of which the owner was unjustly deprived;
- (b) when a demand is made for the return of a deposit, or of a loan for use or commodatum;
- (c) in the case of a debt in respect of maintenance not subject to attachment.

1200. (1) It shall be competent to a surety to plead the set-off of what the creditor owes to the principal debtor.

Surety can plead set-off.

(2) It shall not be lawful, however, for the principal debtor to plead the set-off of what the creditor owes to the surety.

(3) A joint and several debtor may not plead the set-off of what is due by the creditor to a co-debtor except in respect of the share of such co-debtor.

Where debtor accepts assignment of debt.

1201. (1) Where a creditor has assigned his rights to a third party, and the debtor has unreservedly and unconditionally accepted such assignment, such debtor may no longer set up against the assignee any set-off which, before his acceptance of the assignment, he could have set up against the assignor.

(2) Where, however, the assignment was not accepted by the debtor, but notice thereof was served upon him, the assignment shall not be a bar to the set-off except with regard to such debts as are subsequent to the notice.

Where same person owes several debts which may be set off.

1202. Where one and the same person has several debts which may be set off, the provisions of articles 1168, 1169 and 1171 relating to the appropriation of payments shall apply to the set-off.

Set-off does not affect rights of third party.
*Amended by:
VIII. 2007.14.*

1203. (1) Set-off shall not take place to the prejudice of the rights acquired by a third party.

(2) A person who, being a debtor, becomes a creditor after the debt has been attached in his hands by a garnishee order sued out by a third party, cannot set up a set-off to the prejudice of the party suing out the order:

Provided that nothing in this article shall prohibit a set-off of a credit arising in the course of the granting of facilities referred to in article 381(1)(f), (g) and (h) of the Code of Organization and Civil Procedure.

Cap. 12.

Payment of a debt which was extinguished by a set-off.

1204. A person who has paid a debt owing by him which, according to law, was extinguished by a set-off, may not in suing for the payment of the claim owing to him in respect of which he failed to plead the set-off, enforce, to the prejudice of third parties, any privilege, hypothec or other security attached to his claim, unless he had good grounds for not being aware of the claim which would have set off his debt.

§ V. OF MERGER

When merger takes place.

1205. Where the condition of creditor and that of debtor become united in the same person, a merger takes place by operation of law and both the claim and the debt are extinguished.

Merger benefits surety.

1206. (1) The merger which takes place in the person of the principal debtor, shall benefit the sureties.

(2) The merger which takes place in the person of the surety, shall not produce the extinguishment of the principal obligation.

(3) The merger which takes place in the person of one of the joint and several debtors, shall not benefit the other co-debtors except to the extent of the share for which such co-debtor was liable.

§ VI. OF THE LOSS OF THE THING DUE

1207. (1) Where a certain and determinate thing forming the subject-matter of an obligation perishes, or is placed extra commercium, or is lost so that it is absolutely not known whether it exists, the obligation is extinguished, provided the thing perishes or is placed extra commercium or is lost without the fault of the debtor, and before he is in default for delay.

When loss of thing extinguishes obligation.

(2) Even where the debtor is in default for delay but has not assumed the risk of fortuitous events, the obligation is extinguished if the thing would have equally perished in the possession of the creditor if it had been delivered to him.

(3) The debtor must prove the fortuitous event which he alleges.

(4) Whatever may have been the manner in which a thing stolen perished or was lost, its loss shall not exempt the person stealing it from the obligation of restoring its value.

1208. Where the thing perishes or is placed extra commercium or is lost without the fault of the debtor, the debtor is bound to assign to the creditor any right or action for damages, to which he may be entitled in respect of such thing.

Debtor to assign rights of action to creditor.

§ VII. OF RESCISSION

1209. (1) The rescission of a contract shall, unless the law provides otherwise, operate so as to restore the parties to the condition in which they were before the contract.

Effects of rescission.

(2) Each party shall be bound to restore to the other any thing received or obtained in consequence or by virtue of the contract.

(3) With regard to the fruits collected or the interest received up to the date of the demand for rescission, the court may, having regard to the circumstances of the case, direct a set-off of such fruits or interest.

(4) Where the contract is rescinded on the ground of fraud or violence, the party guilty of such fraud or violence shall also be bound to restore to the other party the fruits which might have been collected, and which, through his fault or negligence, have not been so collected.

1210. (1) Rescission shall operate also against third parties in possession.

Rescission to operate against third parties.

(2) It annuls any right or burden which may have been granted or imposed over or on the thing which, in consequence of the rescission, is to be restored.

When rescission is demanded in respect of a part only of the instrument.

1211. (1) Where an instrument contains several parts independent of each other, it shall be lawful to demand the rescission of one of such parts only.

(2) Where the several parts of the instrument are in any way connected with each other, and the plaintiff has sued for the rescission of one part only, it shall be lawful for the defendant to demand, against the plaintiff or, if there are other parties interested in the parts not included in the action, against such other parties, the rescission of the whole instrument, or of all such parts as are connected with each other.

Grounds of rescission.
Amended by:
LVIII.1975.6.

1212. Any agreement which is defective by reason of the absence of any of the conditions essential to the validity of contracts, or which is expressly declared by law to be null, shall be subject to rescission.

Rescission on the ground of lesion.
Amended by:
LVIII.1975.7.

1213. Rescission on the ground of lesion cannot be demanded by a person who has attained majority.

Minors.

1214. (1) With regard to minors, lesion shall be a good ground for rescission, in any kind of agreement not expressly excepted by law, and whatever the extent of the lesion, unless it is of very small consequence.

(2) Nevertheless, it shall not be competent even to a minor to sue for rescission on the ground of lesion where such lesion is the effect of a fortuitous and unforeseen event.

Other cases of lesion in the case of minors.

1215. Rescission on the ground of lesion shall also be allowed in favour of a minor if, although no actual loss to his prejudice is made to appear, it is shown that the agreement renders him liable to litigation or to considerable expense, or causes to him the loss of any advantage to which he was entitled.

Where both contracting parties are minors.

1216. It shall be competent to a minor to exercise the rescissory action on the ground of lesion even though the other party to the agreement be also a minor.

Where minor declares that he is of age.

1217. (1) The mere declaration made by a minor that he is of age shall not operate to deprive him of the right to sue for rescission.

(2) Nevertheless, it shall not be lawful for a minor to impeach his obligation on the ground of his disability to contract, if he is guilty of misrepresentation calculated to lead others to believe that he is capable of contracting, and has, by such means, deceived the other party.

- 1218. Where the agreement is one with regard to which a minor is, under the provisions of the Commercial Code, considered to be of age, or is entered into by the minor by reason of his trade, or where the obligation arises out of tort or quasi-tort, in such cases the minor cannot demand the rescission of the contract except in those cases in which it is competent also to a person of age to demand it, saving in the case of tort or quasi-tort, the provisions of articles 1035 and 1036.
- Cases where minors cannot demand rescission, except where such right would be competent to majors.
Cap. 13.
- 1219. Where the formalities prescribed with regard to any act of a minor or person interdicted, or to any act which concerns a minor or person interdicted, have been observed, or where the acts performed by the tutor or curator do not exceed the limits of his administration, the minor or person interdicted shall, with regard to such acts, be considered as being of age or not interdicted, saving, where competent, his right of relief against the tutor or curator.
- Where minors are considered as being of age.
- 1220. Disability to contract shall not be a good ground for the rescission of the obligation of a person interdicted if the obligation arises out of tort or quasi-tort.
- Disability to contract in cases of tort or quasi-tort.
Substituted by:
XLVI.1973.67.
- 1221. (1) Where minors or persons interdicted are entitled to sue for the rescission of their obligations on the ground of their disability, it shall not be competent to claim the reimbursement of what was paid to them in pursuance of such obligations during the time of minority or interdiction, except to the extent of the amount accrued to their benefit.
- Extent of reimbursement by minors and persons interdicted.
Amended by:
XLVI.1973.68.
- (2) The provisions of this article shall also be applicable in the case referred to in article 1216.
- 1222. (1) Save where the law in any particular case prescribes a shorter period, the right to bring an action for the rescission of a contract on the ground of violence, error, fraud, or the disability of a person interdicted, or minor, shall be barred on the expiration of two years.
- Limitation of rescissory action on the ground of violence, error, etc.
Amended by:
XLVI.1973.69.
- (2) The same rule shall apply with regard to any obligation which is without consideration, or is founded on a false consideration.
- 1223. (1) The said period of limitation shall only begin to run, in the case of violence, from the day on which the violence has ceased, and, in the case of error, fraud or false consideration, from the day on which the defect was discovered.
- Day from which period of limitation begins to run.
- (2) In the case of an obligation without consideration the period shall run from the day of the contract.
- 1224. In any other case not provided for in the last two preceding articles, the right of action for the rescission of an obligation shall be barred on the expiration of the period of five years from the day on which such right may be exercised, irrespectively of the state or condition of the person to whom such right is competent, saving any other provision of this Code.
- Limitation of rescissory action in other cases.
- 1225. The right of action for rescission shall pass to the heirs:
- Right of action passes to heirs.

Provided that they cannot exercise such right except within the time which was still available to their predecessors, saving any other provision of law relating to the interruption or suspension of prescription.

Plea of nullity.

1226. (1) The plea of nullity may at any time be set up by the party sued for the performance of the contract in all cases in which such party could have brought an action for rescission.

(2) Such plea is not subject to the prescription established in articles 1222 and 1224.

Affirmation or ratification of obligation.

1227. The affirmation or ratification of an obligation against which an action or plea of rescission on the ground of nullity or on any other ground was competent shall produce its effects between the contracting parties without prejudice to the rights of third parties.

When affirmation or ratification implies waiver of rescissory action.

1228. The affirmation or ratification shall not imply a waiver of the action for rescission unless it is shown that the party affirming or ratifying was aware of the defect giving rise to such action.

Affirmation or ratification may take place tacitly.

1229. Saving the provisions of the last preceding article, the affirmation or ratification may take place tacitly by the voluntary performance of the obligation against which an action of rescission is competent according to law, or by any other act disclosing an intention to give effect to the obligation.

Affirmation or ratification of act which the law expressly annuls for want of formalities.

1230. Saving any other special provision of the law, the affirmation or ratification of any act which the law expressly annuls for want of the requisite formalities, shall not validate such act, unless the affirmation or ratification is made by means of an instrument having all the formalities required for the validity of the act so affirmed or ratified.

Affirmation or ratification of donation or testamentary disposition.

1231. The provisions of the last preceding article shall not apply to cases of affirmation or ratification of a donation or testamentary disposition made after the death of the donor or testator by his heirs or by other persons claiming under him. In any such case the affirmation or ratification, although made tacitly by the heirs or such other persons, shall imply a waiver on their part of the action or plea of rescission.

1316. (1) Marriage celebrated in Malta shall, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary by public deed, produce ipso jure between the spouses the community of acquests.

Marriage produces community of acquests.

(2) Marriage celebrated outside Malta by persons who subsequently establish themselves in Malta, shall also produce between such persons the community of acquests with regard to any property acquired after their arrival.

1317. It shall be competent to the spouses, even after the celebration of the marriage, with the authority of the court, to establish the community of acquests which in virtue of the marriage contract or other act had been excluded, or to cause the cessation of the community of acquests established by contract or by operation of law.

Community of acquests may be established after marriage.

1318. It shall not be lawful for the spouses to derogate from the provisions of this Code in so far as they relate to the community of acquests.

Provisions may not be derogated from.

1319. The right of each of the spouses to the community of acquests shall, saving any other provision of the law, commence from the day of the celebration of the marriage and terminate on the dissolution thereof.

When community begins and terminates.

1320. The community of acquests shall comprise -

Assets of community of acquests.

- (a) all that is acquired by each of the spouses by the exercise of his or her work or industry;
- (b) the fruits of the property of each of the spouses including the fruits of property settled as dowry or subject to entail, whether the husband or wife possessed the property since before the marriage, or whether the property has come to either of them under any succession, donation, or other title, provided such property shall not have been given or bequeathed on conditions that the fruits thereof shall not form part of the acquests;
- (c) saving any other provision of this Code to the contrary, the fruits of such property of the children as is subject to the legal usufruct of the father or of the mother;
- (d) any property acquired with moneys or other things derived from the acquests, even though such property is so acquired in the name of only one of the spouses;
- (e) any property acquired with moneys or other things which either of the spouses possesses since before the marriage, or which, after the celebration of the marriage, have come to him or her under any donation,

*For the application of the provisions of this Sub-title see article 89 of Act XXI of 1993.

- (f) fortuitous winnings made by either or both spouses, and such part of a treasure trove found by either of the spouses, as is by law assigned to the finder, whether such spouse has found the treasure trove in his or her own tenement, or in the tenement of the other spouse, or of a third party:

Provided that such part of the treasure trove as is granted to the owner of the tenement shall belong entirely to the party in whose tenement the treasure trove is found.

Presumption with regard to acquests.

1321. (1) All the property which the spouses or one of them possess or possesses shall, in the absence of proof to the contrary, be deemed to be part of the acquests.

(2) Any property, however, which may have come to either of the spouses under any title anterior to the marriage shall not be included in the acquests, notwithstanding that such spouse may have been vested with the possession of the property only after the marriage.

Administration of the community of acquests.
Amended by:
IV. 1995.2;
XIII. 2004.41.

1322. (1) The ordinary administration of the acquests and the right to sue or to be sued in respect of such ordinary administration, shall vest in either spouse.

(2) The right to exercise acts of extraordinary administration, and the right to sue or be sued in respect of such acts or to enter into any compromise in respect of any act whatsoever, shall vest in the two spouses jointly.

(3) Acts of extraordinary administration are the following:

- (a) acts whereby real rights over immovable property are acquired, constituted or alienated;
- (b) acts constituting or affecting hypothecation of property;
- (c) acts whereby immovable property is partitioned;
- (d) acts granting rights of use and, or, enjoyment over immovable property;
- (e) donations other than those referred to in article 1753(2)(a);
- (f) borrowing or lending of money, other than the deposit of money in an account with a bank;
- (g) the acquisition of movable property or of any right of use or enjoyment over movable or immovable property the consideration for which is not paid on, or prior to, delivery:

Provided that this shall not apply to any debt incurred for the needs of the family in terms of article 1327(c), or to the hiring of movables or immovables when the consideration therefor is moderate in relation to the condition of the family and the duration of the lease is for a short period;

- (h) the contracting of any suretyship;
- (i) the giving of a pledge;
- (j) the entering with unlimited liability in a commercial partnership, or the subscribing to or acquisition of any shares in a limited liability company which are not fully paid up;
- (k) the transfer of a business concern as well as the transfer of any share in a commercial partnership other than a public company;
- (l) any act that may give rise to a special privilege in terms of paragraph (b) of article 2010;
- (m) any act of rescission of any act referred to in paragraphs (a) and (c), and any act of declaration made inter vivos whereby any real right over immovables is acknowledged or renounced; and
- (n) the settlement in trust of property forming part of the community of acquests and the variation or revocation of the terms of any trust in which any such property has been settled.

(4) Any money deposited in a bank to the credit of a married person may only be withdrawn by such married person and the bank shall not enquire whether such money belongs to the community of acquests or not.

(5) The provisions of subarticle (4) shall continue to apply even after the termination of the community of acquests for any reason whatsoever and are without prejudice to the right of each of the spouses to his or her full share of the community upon its partition.

(6) Either spouse may, by means of a public deed or a private writing duly attested in terms of article 634 of the Code of Organization and Civil Procedure, appoint the other spouse or any other person, as his or her mandatory with regard to acts of extraordinary administration and compromise.

Cap. 12.

(7) The notary publishing a public deed as is referred to in subarticle (6), and the advocate or notary public attesting a private writing as referred to in the same sub-article, shall in each case warn the spouse so appointing a mandatory of the importance and consequence of such appointment and shall in the public deed or the private writing, as the case may be, declare that he has so warned the spouse.

1323. (1) If one of the spouses refuses his or her consent to an act of extraordinary administration, the other spouse may apply to the competent court for authorisation when the act of extraordinary administration is necessary in the interests of the family:

Refusal or absence of consent.
Amended by:
IX. 2004.14.

Provided that the parties may, in such cases, choose to adopt the procedures contemplated in article 6A to arrive at an agreement or to have an arbitration between them.

Cap. 12.

(2) If one of the spouses is away from Malta or if there exists any other impediment in respect of one of the spouses and in either case there exists no authorisation by public deed or by private instrument duly attested in terms of article 634 of the Code of Organization and Civil Procedure, the other spouse may perform such necessary acts of extraordinary administration of the acquets which in terms of law require the consent of both spouses, and which the court of voluntary jurisdiction may specifically authorise; so however that the court may not in such cases authorise the performance of all necessary acts of extraordinary administration generally.

(3) The registration required by article 996 or 2033 as the case may be, in respect of any act alienating the ownership or any real right over immovable property, and any hypothecation whether general or special shall contain also the name of the other spouse as if such other spouse were a party to the deed of alienation or hypothecation, and where such registration is made in the name of one spouse only it shall in respect of third parties be operative only in relation to the spouse in whose name it is registered.

Administration of trade, business, etc.

1324. Normal acts of management of a trade, business or profession being exercised by one of the spouses, shall vest only in the spouse actually exercising such trade, business or profession even where those acts, had they not been made in relation to that trade, business or profession, would have constituted extraordinary administration.

Exclusion of a spouse from the administration of the community.
Amended by:
IX. 2004.14.

1325. (1) The competent court may at the request of a spouse order the exclusion of the other spouse either generally or limitedly for particular purposes or acts, from the administration of the community of acquets, where the latter spouse -

- (a) is not competent to administer; or
- (b) has mismanaged the community; and in any such case the administration of the community of acquets shall to the extent to which such spouse has been excluded, vest exclusively in the spouse not so excluded.

(2) The spouse who has been so excluded from administering the acquets may, if the grounds upon which he or she has been excluded no longer subsist, request the court to reinstate such spouse in the administration.

Cap. 56.

(3) Any order made in terms of this article shall be notified within twenty-four hours by the registrar to the Director of the Public Registry who shall keep the same in a special register and keep a special index thereof. Such orders shall contain all particulars of both spouses as are required for notes of enrolment under the Public Registry Act and shall become operative with regard to third parties upon such registration.

(4) Without prejudice to any order made in terms of sub-article

(1) of this article, in the case of the interdiction or incapacitation of one of the spouses and until such interdiction or incapacitation ceases, such spouse shall be excluded from the administration of the acquets and in any such case the administration of the acquets shall vest solely in the spouse not so excluded.

1326. (1) Acts which require the consent of both spouses but which are performed by one spouse without the consent of the other spouse may be annulled at the request of the latter spouse where such acts relate to the alienation or constitution of a real or personal right over immovable property; and where such acts relate to movable property they may only be annulled where the rights over them have been conferred by gratuitous title.

Acts performed without the necessary consent.

(2) An action for annulment may only be instituted by the spouse whose consent was required and within the peremptory term of three years from -

- (a) the date when such spouse became aware of the act, or
- (b) the date of registration, where such act is registerable, or
- (c) the date of termination of the community of acquets, whichever is the earliest.

(3) Notwithstanding the provisions of subarticle (2), the right given by subarticle (1) to a spouse to request the annulment of an act shall lapse at the expiration of three months from the day on which notice of the act shall have been given to such spouse by means of a judicial act, unless within such time of three months such spouse shall have instituted an action for such annulment.

(4) The spouse who has not instituted the action for annulment within the stipulated time and who has not expressly or tacitly ratified the act, shall nevertheless have an action to compel the other spouse to reintegrate the community of acquets or, where this is not possible, to make good the loss suffered.

(5) Saving the preceding provisions of this article, where in any act which requires the consent of the other spouse and which relates to movables, a spouse has acted unilaterally, there shall be no right competent to the other spouse to demand the annulment of the act; where however, the other spouse has not ratified such act, whether expressly or tacitly, such spouse shall have an action to compel the spouse who has acted unilaterally to reintegrate the community of acquets, or where this is not possible, to make good the loss suffered.

(6) The provisions of this article shall be without prejudice to any right competent to a spouse under this Code or any other law.

1327. Saving the provisions of article 1329, the assets forming part of the community of acquets shall be charged only with the following debts:

Debts chargeable to the community.

- (a) the burdens and obligations which encumber the assets under the act of their acquisition;

- (b) the expenses and obligations incurred in the administration of the acquests, except such expenses as are incurred by acts which require the consent of both spouses but which are performed by one spouse only without the consent of the other spouse;
- (c) the expenses and obligations, even if incurred separately, for the needs of the family including those for the education and upbringing of the children;
- (d) every obligation which is contracted by the spouses jointly;
- (e) debts relating to the ordinary repairs of the property of either of the spouses, the fruits of which are included in the acquests; and
- (f) any debt or indemnity due as a civil remedy by either spouse where such indemnity is not due as a civil remedy in respect of any offence wilfully committed.

Creditors of a particular spouse.

1328. Creditors of a particular spouse shall, unless they enjoy a lawful cause of preference, rank after the creditors of the community of acquests.

Obligations separately contracted by either spouse.

1329. (1) Subject to the following provisions of this article, the creditors of a spouse for debts which are not chargeable to the community of acquests whether such debt has arisen before or after the marriage, may, when such creditors cannot satisfy their claim against the paraphernal property of such spouse, enforce their claim in subsidium against the assets forming part of the community of acquests but only to the extent of the value of the share which such spouse has in the community of acquests.

(2) Saving the right of the debtor's spouse to seek the judicial separation of property, the debtor's spouse shall not have a right to oppose an act enforcing the credit against any property of the debtor or of the community of acquests except where the property upon which execution is being attempted is the paraphernal property of such debtor's spouse.

Where paraphernal property is subject to the debts of the community.

1330. When the assets of the community of acquests are insufficient to satisfy the debts which burthen it, the creditors of such community may enforce their claim in subsidium against the paraphernal property of the spouses:

Provided that where -

- (a) the debt is due as a civil remedy in respect of a wilful offence committed by either spouse; or
- (b) the debt is one arising out of the exercise of a trade, business or profession as is referred to in article 1324;

the creditors may not enforce their claim against the paraphernal property of the spouse who has not given rise to the claim, but may in such cases enforce their claim to the extent of any part remaining unsatisfied by the assets of the community of acquests, against the paraphernal property of the spouse giving right to such claim.

1331. (1) Each of the spouses is bound to reimburse the community of acquests with any sum of money or the value of any thing which he or she may have appropriated from the acquests to satisfy debts which do not fall under the provisions of article 1327, unless he can show that the act was one which was advantageous to the community or was performed to satisfy the needs of the family.

Reimbursement and restitution.

(2) Each one of the spouses has a right to be reimbursed with any sum of money or the value of any thing which has been taken from his or her paraphernal property where such money or thing was spent or consumed in connection with a debt or an investment of the community of acquests.

(3) The spouse who is a creditor of the community of acquests may demand to be assigned property of the community up to the value of his or her credit. The reimbursement from the property of the community of acquests shall be made first by assigning money, then other movables and finally immovables.

(4) These reimbursements are to be made at the termination of the community of acquests:

Provided that the court may allow that any such reimbursements take place at an earlier date when the interests of the family so require or permit.

1332. (1) The judicial separation of property may be pronounced -

Judicial separation of property.

- (a) upon the interdiction or incapacitation of one of the spouses; or
- (b) where the disordered state of affairs of one spouse or his or her conduct in relation to the administration of the acquests jeopardises the interest of the community of acquests, or of the family or of the spouse requesting the judicial separation of property; or
- (c) where one of the spouses fails substantially in his or her duty to contribute to the needs of the family in accordance with article 3 of this Code; or
- (d) where one of the spouses has been excluded from the administration in terms of article 1325, either generally or to a great extent.

(2) The judicial separation of property may only be demanded by either spouse or by his or her lawful representatives; so however that such separation may not be demanded by the spouse or the representatives of the spouse who has given rise to the causes for judicial separation referred to in paragraphs (b) or (c) of sub-article (1) of this article.

(3) Where the judicial separation has been demanded by the spouse excluded from the administration of the community of acquests in terms of paragraph (d) of sub-article (1) of this article, the court shall, where the judicial separation causes financial damage to the other spouse, order the spouse demanding judicial separation to pay compensation to the other party for the loss that such party may have suffered because of the separation.

(4) In the judgment pronouncing the judicial separation of property, the court shall direct that the community of acquests between the spouses shall cease as from the day on which the judgment becomes res judicata:

Provided that the court may however, without prejudice to any right legally acquired by any third party, direct that the judgment shall operate retrospectively to the date of the filing of the judicial act introducing the cause upon which judgment is given.

(5) The creditors of either spouse or of the community of acquests may impeach the separation pronounced by the court, even though it may have been given effect to, if such separation has been obtained in fraud of their rights.

(6) The court may where in its opinion circumstances so warrant direct that the property comprised in the community of acquests be not partitioned before the lapse of such period after the cessation of the community of acquests as it may determine.

(7) Any direction given by the court in virtue of sub-article (6) of this article, may, on good cause being shown, be changed or revoked by the court.

(8) The demand for the judicial separation of property shall not stay any action enforcing any debt of the community of acquests.

(9) Where a demand for the judicial separation of property has been filed, a creditor of a particular spouse may proceed or continue proceedings enforcing his claim against property of the community of acquests and in any such case the spouse of the debtor may demand that half the proceeds of the sale of any object belonging to the community of acquests shall remain deposited in court on account of the share in the community of acquests of the spouse of the debtor; so however that if such deposits exceed the share of such spouse in the community of acquests any sum so deposited in excess shall remain to the credit of the debtor spouse and be attachable by his creditors.

(10) Any judgment ordering the judicial separation of property shall not be operative against third parties except from the day on which such judgment shall have been registered in the Public Registry.

Partition of the community.

1333. The partition of the community of acquests shall be made by assigning one-half of the assets and liabilities comprised in the community to each of the spouses.

*Sub-title IV

OF PARAPHERNAL PROPERTY

Provisions of this Sub-title substituted by: XXI.1993.82.

1334. (1) Where the community of acquests or the community of residue under separate administration operates between the spouses, all property which is not included in paragraphs (a) to (f) of article 1320 or is not dotal is paraphernal. Where the property of the spouses is held under the system of separate property all property which is not dotal is paraphernal.

Definition of paraphernal property.

(2) The management of paraphernal property shall appertain exclusively to the spouse to whom such property belongs.

(3) For the support of the family, the spouses shall first use income deriving from common property before income belonging to one of them exclusively, and they shall first use capital which is their common property or belongs to the community of acquests before the capital belonging exclusively to one of the spouses.

1335. Where one of the spouses appoints the other spouse as his or her agent to manage his or her paraphernal property, the latter spouse shall be liable to the first spouse in the same manner as any other agent, so however that such spouse shall only be obliged to render an account for the fruits if this is expressly stated in the mandate.

Where a spouse appoints other spouse as agent.

1336. (1) Where a spouse has enjoyed the paraphernal property of the other spouse, without authority, but without opposition, that spouse or the heirs of that spouse, upon the dissolution of the marriage or upon the first demand of the spouse to whom the property belongs, shall only be bound to deliver the existing fruits, and shall not be accountable for fruits which shall have been consumed up to that time.

Where a spouse enjoys property without authority or with authority but without condition of accounting for fruit.

(2) The same rule shall apply where such spouse has enjoyed such property with authority but without the express condition of accounting for the fruits.

1337. Where a spouse has enjoyed the property of the other spouse in spite of opposition, he shall be answerable for all fruit existing and consumed.

Where spouse enjoys property in spite of opposition.

Sub-title V†

OF COMMUNITY OF RESIDUE UNDER SEPARATE ADMINISTRATION

Provisions of this Sub-title substituted by: XXI.1993.82.

* For the application of the provisions of this Sub-title see article 89 of Act XXI of 1993.

† For the application of the provisions of this Sub-title see article 89 of Act XXI of 1993.

Community of residue under separate administration.

1338. (1) Where the future spouses in a marriage contract stipulate that the property acquired by them during marriage shall be governed by the system of community of residue under separate administration the following provisions of this Sub-title shall apply.

(2) The assets which shall be governed by the system of community of residue under separate administration shall be all the assets falling under paragraphs (a) to (f) of article 1320.

How acquisitions are registered.

1339. (1) Under the system of community of residue under separate administration the acquisitions made by each of the spouses during the marriage shall be held and administered by the spouse by whom such acquisitions are made, and subject to any limitations contained in this Sub-title shall, in relation to third parties, be dealt with by such spouse as if such spouse were the exclusive owner thereof.

(2) Where under the system of community of residue under separate administration property is acquired by the spouses jointly, it shall be administered jointly. The share of each spouse in such property may only be alienated inter vivos, with the consent of the other spouse, or where such consent is unreasonably withheld, with the authority of the court of voluntary jurisdiction, or in a judicial sale by auction at the instance of any creditor of such spouse.

Termination of community of residue under separate administration.

1340. (1) The community of residue under separate administration shall, unless terminated earlier by mutual consent by public deed with the authority of the court, terminate upon the dissolution of the marriage; under the same circumstances, mutatis mutandis, as apply for the community of acquests under paragraphs (b) and (c) of sub-article (1) of article 1332; and upon the legal separation of the spouses.

(2) Sub-articles (2), (4), (5), (9) and (10) of article 1332 shall apply mutatis mutandis where the dissolution of community of residue under separate administration is declared by judgment of the court.

1341. (1) At the termination of the community of residue under separate administration, howsoever happening, the residue to be accounted for by each spouse shall include any expense made by that spouse solely in his or her interest out of assets governed by the community and held by that spouse, and shall be subject to the deduction of any amount paid out with paraphernal property of that spouse for debts of that spouse relating to assets held by that spouse and governed by the system of community of residue with separate administration, as well as liabilities still outstanding by that spouse incurred in respect of such assets.

(2) From the residue as determined in sub-article (1) there shall be deducted any paraphernal debts of the spouse which are in excess of that spouse's paraphernal assets.

(3) The result as determined in sub-article (2) shall if it is not a debit constitute the final residue of that spouse. If the result is in debit there shall be considered to be no final residue for that spouse.

(4) Where the final residue of one spouse is greater than the final residue of the other spouse or where only one spouse has a final residue, there shall be assigned to the spouse with the lesser final residue or with no final residue, as the case may be, as much of the final residue of the spouse with the greater final residue or with the only final residue as is necessary so that each spouse may have an equal share of assets forming the final residue of both spouses.

1342. (1) For the purpose of article 1341(2) any debt which is not one mentioned hereunder is a paraphernal debt: Where debt is not paraphernal.

- (c) the expenses and obligations even if incurred separately for the needs of the family including those for the education and upbringing of the children;
- (d) debts relating to the ordinary repairs of paraphernal property of the spouse the fruits of which are included in the assets governed by the community of residue under separate administration;
- (e) any debt or indemnity due as a civil remedy by a spouse where such indemnity is not due as a civil remedy in respect of any offence wilfully committed.

1343. (1) Third parties may only exercise their rights against the spouse who has contracted with, or incurred the debt towards, them. Rights of third parties.

(2) At the termination of the community of the residue under separate administration and after the assignment of any final residue, the creditors of one spouse may however in relation to any debt due to them arising before the termination of the community of residue under separate administration, claim in subsidium against the other spouse up to the amount if any of the assets of the final residue of the debtor spouse assigned to the other.

(2) Sub-article (1) of this article shall not apply to donations of moderate value regard being had to the condition of the parties and all other circumstances.

(3) An action for annulment of an act of alienation under gratuitous title may only be instituted by the spouse whose consent was required and within the peremptory term of three years from -

Such right shall be personal to the latter spouse or his or her heirs and is not exercisable by the creditors of the spouse.

(2) An action under this article shall be prescribed by the lapse of five years from -

- (a) the date when such spouse became aware of the act, or
 (b) the date of registration, where such act is registerable, or
 (c) the date of termination of the community of residue under separate administration, whichever is the earliest.

Title VI

OF SALE

Sub-title 1

OF THE CONTRACT OF SALE

Definition of contract of sale.

1346. A sale is a contract whereby one of the contracting parties binds himself to transfer to the other a thing for a price which the latter binds himself to pay to the former.

Completion of sale.

1347. A sale is complete between the parties, and, as regards the seller, the property of the thing is transferred to the buyer, as soon as the thing and the price have been agreed upon, although the thing has not yet been delivered nor the price paid; and from that moment the thing itself remains at the risk and for the benefit of the buyer.

Sale of things by weight, etc.

1348. (1) Nevertheless, where movables are not sold in bulk but by weight, number or measure, the sale is not complete in that the property does not pass to the buyer and the things sold remain at the seller's risk, until they are weighed, counted or measured.

(2) The buyer, however, may demand that the things be weighed, counted or measured and delivered to him, or, in case of non-performance of the obligation, payment of damages.

(3) The seller may also compel the buyer to perform his obligation or, in default, to pay damages.

(4) The provisions of this article shall also apply where the thing sold is an immovable and cannot exactly be determined before it is measured.

1349. Where, on the contrary, the things are sold in bulk, the sale is complete even though the things are not yet weighed, counted or measured.

Sale of things in bulk.

1350. (1) A sale is said to be made in bulk, when the things are sold for one and the same price, irrespectively of the weight, number or measure of such things.

Definition of sale in bulk or by weight, etc.

(2) A sale is said to be made by weight, number or measure, when the price is agreed upon according to the weight, number or measure, whether the sale is in respect of the whole quantity of the things existing in a specified place or in respect only of a part thereof.

(3) A sale is also said to be made by weight, number or measure if the sale is in respect of a specified number of things or of so many kilogrammes or measures of a specified thing, even though one single price has been fixed in respect of such number of things or such quantities of a specified thing.

1351. (1) In regard to things which, according to usage or by virtue of an express agreement, are to be tasted or tried before the purchase, the buyer shall not be bound until he has approved of them.

When things are to be tasted or tried.

(2) This, however, shall not apply where the thing, which, according to usage only and not by virtue of an express agreement, is to be tasted or tried before the purchase, has not to satisfy the taste or the individual opinion of the purchaser, but the taste or trial is only necessary in order to ascertain whether the thing is of good and merchantable quality; and in any such case, if the thing is a specific thing and the price has been agreed upon, both parties are bound, but the contract shall be deemed to have been made under a suspensive condition, and the buyer shall be bound to accept the thing and pay the price thereof if it is proved that the thing is of a good and merchantable quality, although he does not approve of the thing.

1352. (1) The price must be in money.

Price.

(2) Nevertheless, the contract shall not cease to be a contract of sale if, in addition to the sum of money agreed upon, the buyer binds himself to give some thing in kind by way of a supplement to the price.

1353. (1) The price must be fixed and stated by the parties.

How price is fixed.

(2) It may, however, be left to the decision of one or more persons specified by the parties; and in such case if such person or any of such persons is unwilling or unable to fix such price, the sale is void.

Where price is to be fixed by experts.

1354. The price may also be left to the decision of one or more experts not specified by the parties; and, in such case, if the parties fail to agree as to the expert or experts to be appointed, the appointment shall be made by the court.

Where price is left to the decision of two or more persons.

1355. In all cases where the price is left to the decision of two or more persons, the price shall, if the persons are more than two, be determined by the opinion of the majority; but if the persons are only two and do not agree, or if they are more than two and fail to agree between them in such a way that no majority of votes can be obtained, an average shall be taken of the sums fixed by each of them.

Sale at current price.

1356. A sale can be made at the price current at a given time; and such price shall be deemed to be the average current price at the place and time where and when the contract is to be performed.

Promise to sell.
*Amended by:
XXVII.1976.2;
XXII.2005.81.*

1357. (1) A promise to sell a thing for a fixed price, or for a price to be fixed by one or more persons as stated in the foregoing articles, shall not be equivalent to a sale; but, if accepted, it shall create an obligation on the part of the promisor to carry out the sale, or, if the sale can no longer be carried out, to make good the damages to the promisee.

(2) The effect of such promise shall cease on the lapse of the time agreed between the parties for the purpose or, failing any such agreement, on the lapse of three months from the day on which the sale could be carried out, unless the promisee calls upon the promisor, by means of a judicial intimation filed before the expiration of the period applicable as aforesaid, to carry out the same, and unless, in the event that the promisor fails to do so, the demand by sworn application for the carrying out of the promise is filed within thirty days from the expiration of the period aforesaid.

Sub-title IV

OF THE OBLIGATIONS OF THE SELLER

1378. The seller has two principal obligations, namely, to deliver, and to warrant the thing sold.

Obligations of seller.

§ I. OF DELIVERY

1379. The delivery of immovable property takes place ipso jure on the publication of the contract of sale, saving, as regards the delivery of possession of property sold by judicial auction, the provisions of the Code of Organization and Civil Procedure.

Delivery of immovable property.

Cap. 12.

1380. The delivery of movable property takes place either by handing the property to the buyer, or by handing to him the key of the place in which the property is lying, or by handing to him the documents of title the delivery of which operates, according to law, the transfer of the property to which such documents refer, or by causing the buyer to be acknowledged by the persons in whose possession the property exists.

Delivery of movable property.

1381. The delivery of movable property takes place also by the mere consent of the parties -

Delivery of movable property by mere consent.

- (a) when the thing sold is already in the possession of the buyer; or
- (b) when the seller who has reserved to himself the enjoyment of the thing sold acknowledges that he holds the thing on behalf of the buyer; or
- (c) when the transfer of the thing sold cannot be effected at the time of the sale:

Provided that in the cases mentioned in paragraphs (b) and (c), such delivery shall not operate to the prejudice of third parties.

1382. The delivery of incorporeal things takes place either by the use which the buyer makes of such things with the consent of the seller, or by handing over the documents of title in the case of any right the title to which is transferable by endorsement or delivery.

Delivery of incorporeal things.

Expenses of delivery.	1383. (1) The expenses of delivery are at the charge of the seller. (2) Such expenses shall include those of weighing, counting or measuring the thing, where the sale is made by weight, number or measure. (3) The expenses of weighing, counting or measuring are at the charge of the buyer where the sale is made in bulk and the weighing, counting or measuring is required by the buyer in order to ascertain whether the thing sold is according to the quantity stated or promised to him. (4) The expenses of carriage are at the charge of the buyer.
Place of delivery.	1384. Delivery must be made at the place where the thing was at the time of the sale.
Failure of seller to deliver.	1385. If the seller fails to make delivery at the time agreed upon, the buyer may elect either to demand the dissolution of the contract or to demand that he be placed in possession of the thing sold, provided the delay has been caused solely by the seller.
Liability of seller for damages.	1386. In all cases, the seller is liable for damages if the buyer has sustained any loss from the non-delivery of the thing at the time agreed upon.
Goods arriving on a ship.	1387. Where a person has bound himself to deliver goods to arrive on a ship which he has reserved to name within a specified time and such person fails to name the ship within the said time, such person shall, besides being answerable for damages, be liable to deliver, within a time to be fixed by the court, according to circumstances, other goods of the same quality and quantity as those forming the subject of the contract.
Failure to deliver goods arriving on a named ship within time agreed upon.	1388. The same rule shall apply where a person has bound himself to deliver goods to arrive on a ship named in the contract and fails to make delivery within the time agreed upon, unless he proves that he used due diligence for the goods to arrive within the time agreed upon and that the default of arrival of such goods within such time was due to a vis major.
Failure to deliver things which have to be weighed, counted or measured.	1389. Where the seller has bound himself to deliver, within a specified time, things which have to be weighed, counted or measured, he shall not be deemed to perform the obligation if he refuses to deliver the things to the buyer who presents himself to take delivery thereof in sufficient time for the things to be weighed, counted or measured before the expiration of the time so specified: Provided that where the seller is ready to make delivery of the things in sufficient time so that the weighing, counting or measuring thereof may be conveniently commenced before the expiration of the specified time, it shall not be lawful for the buyer, even though he shall have previously in vain presented himself to take delivery of the things, to demand the dissolution of the sale, saving his right to maintain an action for damages as provided in articles 1385 and 1386.

- 1390. If the thing which the seller offers to deliver is not of the quality promised, or is not according to the sample on which the sale was made, the buyer may elect either to reject the thing and demand damages, or to accept the thing with a diminution of the price upon a valuation by experts. Things not according to stipulated quality or sample.
- 1391. The seller is not bound to deliver the thing, if the buyer does not pay the price thereof, unless the seller has allowed the buyer time for payment. Payment and delivery are concurrent conditions.
- 1392. (1) Nor shall the seller be bound to make delivery of the thing, even though he has allowed the buyer time for the payment of the price, if, since the sale, the buyer has by his own act diminished the security which by the contract he had given to the seller. Seller not bound to deliver if buyer has become insolvent, etc.
- (2) Nor shall he be bound to make delivery if, since the sale, the buyer has become a bankrupt, or insolvent, or his condition has been so altered that the seller is in danger of losing the price.
- (3) The same rule shall apply where, although the buyer was in a state of bankruptcy or insolvency at the time of the sale, such state did not reveal itself except after the sale and it was not known to the seller at the time of the sale.
- (4) In the aforesaid cases, however, the seller is bound to deliver the thing if the buyer gives him security for the payment of the price at the time agreed upon.
- 1393. The thing must be delivered in the same state in which it was at the time of the sale. State in which thing is to be delivered.
- 1394. (1) From the day of the sale, all fruits shall belong to the buyer. Fruits due or collected.
- (2) In the case of a sale made under a suspensive condition, all fruits which fall due or are collected before the fulfilment of the condition shall belong to the seller.
- 1395. The fruits which are uncut or unplucked at the time of the sale, or, where the sale is made under a suspensive condition, at the time of the fulfilment of the condition, shall belong to the buyer although they had been sown by the seller. Fructus pendentes.
- 1396. (1) The rent of rural tenements which had not fallen due at the time of the sale or at the time of the fulfilment of the condition shall also belong to the buyer. Rent.
- (2) In the case, however, of urban tenements or of movables, the rent or the portion of the rent in respect of the period during which the sale was made or the condition was fulfilled, shall be divided between the seller and the buyer in proportion to the time elapsed before the sale was made or the condition was fulfilled and the time that elapsed afterwards.
- 1397. In the case of sale of a ship while on her voyage, the freight of that voyage shall belong to the buyer. Freight of voyage.

Thing to be delivered with accessories,

in the quantity agreed upon.

1399. The seller is bound to deliver the full quantity of the thing as stipulated in the contract, subject to the modifications contained in the following articles.

Sale ad mensuram.

1400. (1) Where the sale of immovable property has been made with an indication of the quantity at so much per measure, the seller shall be bound to deliver to the buyer the quantity stated in the contract if the latter requires it.

(2) If this cannot be done, or if the buyer does not require it, the seller is obliged to accept a proportionate reduction of the price.

If quantity is found to be larger.

1401. If, on the contrary, in the case mentioned in the last preceding article, the quantity is found to be greater than that stated in the contract, the buyer shall be bound to pay a supplement:

Provided that where the overplus exceeds the twentieth part of the quantity stated in the contract, the buyer shall be at liberty to repudiate the sale.

Sale otherwise than ad mensuram.

1402. In all other cases, whether the sale is in respect of a specified and limited corpus, or whether it is in respect of distinct and separate tenements, or whether, in the sale, the measure is first stated, or the corpus is first mentioned followed by an indication of the measure, the indication of the measure will not entitle the seller to any increase of price in respect of any excess in such measure, nor the buyer to any diminution of price in respect of any deficiency in such measure, unless the difference between the actual measure and that stated in the contract is more than one-twentieth whether in excess of or below the value of all the things sold:

Provided that no claim may be enforced for an increase or a diminution of the price, notwithstanding that the difference is more than one-twentieth, whether in excess of or below the aforesaid value, if the thing was sold by judicial auction or if it was expressly stipulated that there should be no warranty as to quantity or if the thing was sold tale quale, saving, where the sale was not made by judicial auction, any remedy allowed in law in case of lesion.

Where increase of price is due.

1403. Where in accordance with the provisions of the last preceding article an increase of the price is to be paid on account of an excess in the measure, the buyer may elect either to repudiate the contract or, if he retains the tenement, to pay the overplus, together with interest.

Duties of seller, where buyer elects to repudiate contract.

1404. In all cases in which the buyer is entitled to repudiate the contract, the seller is bound to return to him, in addition to the price if received by him, the expenses of the contract and any other lawful expense incurred in connection with the sale.

Sale of two tenements by the same contract.

1405. Where two tenements have been sold by one and the same contract, and for one and the same price, the measure of each tenement being specified in the contract, and it is found that one of the tenements is smaller and the other larger than the measure specified, set-off takes place to the extent of the difference; and an action for an increase or diminution of price is only maintainable in accordance with the rules set forth in the foregoing articles.

1406. In all cases where an increase or a diminution of price is due, the price shall be increased or diminished only to the extent by which the excess or deficiency of the quantity is greater than that allowed by law.

How increase or diminution of price is to be reckoned.

1407. (1) The action of the seller for an increase of the price, and the action of the buyer for a diminution of the price or for repudiation of the contract shall be barred by the lapse of two years from the day of the contract.

Limitation of action.

(2) The said period of limitation shall run against absentees, persons interdicted, married women and minors, if they claim under a seller or a buyer against whom the running of the said period of limitation is not suspended.

§ II. OF WARRANTY

1408. The warranty which the seller owes to the buyer is in respect of the quiet possession of the thing sold and of any latent defect therein.

Warranty.

OF WARRANTY OF THE QUIET POSSESSION OF THE THING SOLD

1409. Although no stipulation of warranty has been made in the contract of sale, the seller is in law bound to warrant the buyer against any eviction which deprives him, in whole or in part, of the thing sold, and against any easement or burden on the same, claimed by others, and not stated in the contract.

Implied warranty.

1410. It shall be lawful for the parties, by special agreement, to add to, or diminish the effects of such implied warranty, or to stipulate that the seller shall not be liable to any warranty.

Special agreement.

1411. Although it is agreed that the seller should not be subject to any warranty, nevertheless he shall be liable to that warranty which arises from his own act; and any agreement to the contrary is void.

Liability of seller, where warranty has been negatived.

1412. Even in case of a stipulation of no warranty, the seller, in case of eviction shall, in the absence of an express agreement to the contrary, be bound to return the price.

In case of eviction, seller to return price.

1413. Where there is a promise of warranty or where no stipulation has been made in regard thereto, the buyer shall upon eviction be entitled to claim from the seller -

Rights of buyer on eviction, when warranty is promised or implied.

(a) the return of the price;

- (b) the return of the fruits, if the buyer has been obliged to return them to the owner who has recovered the thing;
- (c) all judicial costs, including those for giving notice of the suit to the person from whom he derives his title;
- (d) damages, including the lawful expenses of the contract and any other lawful expense incurred in connection with the sale.
- Decrease in value of thing at time of eviction. 1414. (1) Where, at the time of eviction, the thing sold has decreased in value or has considerably deteriorated, either through the negligence of the buyer or by irresistible force, the seller is still bound to return the full price.
- (2) Where, however, the buyer has derived a benefit from the deterioration occasioned by him, the seller shall be entitled to deduct from the price a sum corresponding to such benefit.
- Increase in value. 1415. If, at the time of eviction, the thing sold has increased in value, even irrespective of the act of the buyer, the seller shall be obliged to pay to the buyer the amount exceeding the price of the sale.
- Repayment of expenses. 1416. (1) The seller is bound to repay to the buyer or to cause to be repaid to him by the person who has recovered the tenement all expenses incurred by him in connection with any repairs or useful improvements made on the tenement.
- (2) Where the seller has sold the tenement of another person in bad faith, he shall be bound to pay to the buyer all expenses, even decorative expenses, which the latter may have made on the tenement.
- Eviction from part of thing. 1417. (1) Where the eviction is only of part of the thing, and such part is of such importance in relation to the whole that without it the buyer would not have bought the thing, he may within a year from the day on which the judgment as to the eviction has become final and absolute, demand the dissolution of the sale.
- (2) The said time shall run as provided in sub-article (2) of article 1407.
- Valuation of part. 1418. Where, in the case referred to in the last preceding article, the buyer does not elect to dissolve the sale, the value to be refunded to him by the seller in respect of the part affected by the eviction shall be determined not in proportion to the entire price of the sale but in accordance with a valuation in which regard will be had to the time of the eviction, irrespective of any increase or decrease in the value of the thing sold.
- Warranty in regard to easements not declared. 1419. (1) Where the tenement sold is subject to non-apparent easements whereof no declaration was made and such easements are of such importance that it may be presumed that the buyer would not have bought the tenement if he had been given notice of them, he may demand either the dissolution of the sale or compensation.
- (2) The provisions of this article shall not apply in the case of a judicial sale by auction.

1420. Where, however, a tenement has been sold as free and exempt from any easement or other burden, or where the warranty has been otherwise expressly promised, in such cases the buyer may demand either the dissolution of the sale or compensation, if the seller shall not cause any easement or other burden not declared in the contract to cease, even though such easement or other burden be apparent, and it be proved that it was known to the buyer at the time of the sale, unless it is clearly shown that it was not the intention of the parties to include such easement or burden in the promise of warranty.

Rights of buyer, where tenement is sold as free from easements or burdens.

1421. Where the buyer has prevented eviction of the tenement by paying a sum of money, the seller may free himself of all the consequences of the warranty by refunding to him the sum paid together with interest, and all expenses.

Where buyer has prevented eviction by paying a sum of money.

1422. The warranty against eviction ceases if the buyer has suffered a final and absolute judgment to be given against him without making the seller a party to the suit, if the latter proves that he could have set up a good defence, not set up by the buyer, whereby the action would have been dismissed.

Where buyer fails to make seller a party to the proceedings in eviction.

1423. (1) In all cases where a shorter period is not fixed, the action for breach of warranty against eviction shall be barred by the lapse of two years to be reckoned from the day on which the judgment against the buyer has become final and absolute.

Limitation of action for breach of warranty.

(2) The said period of limitation shall run as provided in sub-article (2) of article 1407.

OF WARRANTY IN RESPECT OF LATENT DEFECTS OF THE THING SOLD

1424. The seller is bound to warrant the thing sold against any latent defects which render it unfit for the use for which it is intended, or which diminish its value to such an extent that the buyer would not have bought it or would have tendered a smaller price, if he had been aware of them.

Warranty in respect of latent defects.

1425. The seller is not answerable for any apparent defects which the buyer might have discovered for himself.

Seller not liable for apparent defects.

1426. Nevertheless, he is answerable for latent defects, even though they were not known to him, unless he has stipulated that he shall not in any such case be bound to any warranty.

Seller answerable for latent defects.

1427. In the cases referred to in articles 1424 and 1426, the buyer may elect either, by instituting the actio redhibitoria, to restore the thing and have the price repaid to him, or, by instituting the actio aestimatoria, to retain the thing and have a part of the price repaid to him which shall be determined by the court.

Actio redhibitoria and actio aestimatoria.

Where defect is in one of two or more things sold together.

1428. (1) Where two or more things are sold together, so that one would not have been sold or bought without the other, and one of such things has a defect which gives rise to the actio redhibitoria or aestimatoria, the buyer may not institute the actio redhibitoria but in respect of all the things sold, although a price was specified in respect of each.

(2) Where, however, the things sold together are independent of one another, the said action may not be instituted but in respect of the defective thing, although all the things had been sold for a single price; and in such case the seller is bound to repay the price of such thing according to a valuation to be made on the basis of the total price agreed upon.

Where defects were known or not to the seller.

1429. (1) If the defects of the thing sold were known to the seller, he is not only bound to repay the price received by him but he is also liable in damages towards the buyer.

(2) If the defects were not known to the seller, he is only bound to repay the price and to refund to the buyer the expenses incurred in connection with the sale.

Where defective thing perishes.

1430. (1) If the defective thing perishes in consequence of its defects, the loss is borne by the seller, who shall be bound to repay the price to the buyer and to indemnify him as provided in the last preceding article.

(2) If the thing perishes by a fortuitous event, the loss is borne by the buyer.

Limitation of action.
Amended by:
XXVIII.1994.45.

1431. (1) The actio redhibitoria and the actio aestimatoria shall, in regard to immovables, be barred by the lapse of one year as from the day of the contract, and, in regard to movables, by the lapse of six months as from the day of the delivery of the thing sold.

(2) Where, however, it was not possible for the buyer to discover the latent defect of the thing, the said periods of limitation shall run only from the day on which it was possible for him to discover such defect.

(3) The said periods of limitation shall run as provided in sub-article (2) of article 1407.

Actions not maintainable in case of judicial sales.

1432. The actio redhibitoria and the actio aestimatoria cannot be maintained in case of judicial sales by auction.

Sub-title V

OF THE OBLIGATIONS OF THE BUYER

When and where price is to be paid.

1433. If the time and place for the payment of the price are not stated in the contract, the buyer must pay at the time and place of the delivery of the thing.

1434. The buyer, even though there be no agreement to that effect, is bound to pay interest on the price up to the day of payment at the rate of five per cent per annum, indiscriminately in the following cases:

When buyer is bound to pay interest.

- (a) if the thing sold and delivered yields fruits or other profits;
- (b) if, even though the thing yields no fruits or other profits, he has been called upon by means of a judicial intimation to pay the price;
- (c) if the delivery of the thing, being movable, has not taken place through the fault of the buyer, and the seller has called upon him, by means of a judicial intimation, to take delivery of the thing:

Provided that in the cases mentioned in paragraphs (b) and (c), interest shall run only from the day of the service of the said judicial intimation.

1435. (1) The buyer is not bound to pay interest during the time allowed to him in the contract for the payment of the price.

When buyer is not bound to pay interest.

(2) Nevertheless, any time allowed by the seller after the contract of sale shall not operate as a waiver of the interest on the price, unless such time be allowed under a will.

1436. If the thing is capable of yielding fruits or other profits, the buyer shall still be bound to pay interest on the price, even though owing to a fortuitous event or for any other cause the thing shall have yielded no fruits or other profits during the time when the price was still owing.

Where thing is capable of yielding fruits.

1437. (1) If the buyer is disturbed in the possession of the thing or has reasonable cause to fear that he will be so disturbed, by any action hypothecary or for the recovery of the thing rei vindicatio, he may suspend the payment of the price until the seller shall have caused the molestation to cease or shall have removed the cause for which such molestation is feared, unless the seller elects to give security, or unless it was agreed that the buyer was to pay notwithstanding any molestation.

When purchaser may suspend payment of price.

(2) Nevertheless, even in the case mentioned in this article, in the event of any of the circumstances referred to in article 1434, the buyer, if he suspends payment of the price, shall owe interest thereon, unless he elects to pay the price into court.

1438. (1) The seller of an immovable cannot demand the dissolution of the sale on the ground that the price has not been paid to him.

When seller may demand dissolution of sale on ground of non-payment of price.

(2) In the case, however, of goods or other movables, the dissolution of the sale, even though no express resolute condition is attached to the contract, shall take place ipso jure in favour of the seller, if the buyer previously to the expiration of the time fixed for the delivery of the thing, has not presented himself to take delivery thereof or if on presenting himself to take delivery of the thing he has not concurrently tendered the price, unless a term of credit has been agreed upon for the payment thereof.

Rights of unpaid seller over the goods.

1439. If the sale of a movable was made without any stipulation as to credit, the seller may, in default of payment, take back the thing sold, if it is still in the actual possession of the buyer, or restrain the buyer from reselling the thing, provided the demand for the recovery of the thing be made within fifteen days of the delivery and the thing be in the same condition in which it was at the time of the delivery.

1443. The party exercising the right of redemption is bound to return to the party against whom such right is exercised the price of the sale giving rise to the exercise of such right, and any other lawful expense incurred by the buyer in connection with such sale, as well as all necessary and useful expenses made on the thing either by the buyer or by any other possessor, even though for any cause whatsoever for which neither the party against whom the said right is exercised nor any other former possessor is responsible, the effect of such expenses no longer exists.

1444. The party against whom the said right is exercised is entitled to interest from the day of the respective disbursements which according to the last preceding article are to be refunded to him, subject, however, to the deduction of the value of the fruits which, as from the day of the sale giving rise to the exercise of the right of redemption he or any other former possessor has collected or by the use of the diligence of a bonus paterfamilias could have collected:

Provided that he may retain the fruits aforesaid and waive his right to interest.

1445. The right to interest of the party against whom redemption is exercised shall cease as from the day on which he is notified of the deposit of the sums which are to be refunded to him, provided the payment out of such deposit be not, without just cause, restrained by the party exercising the right of redemption, in which case, the right to interest will not cease except from the day on which the restraint ceases.

When right to interest ceases.
Amended by:
IV.1961.2.

1446. From the same day on which his right to interest ceases, the party against whom the right of redemption is exercised is bound to restore to the party exercising such right all fruits which up to the day of the release of the thing he has collected or, by the use of the diligence of a bonus paterfamilias, could have collected.

Amended by:
IV.1961.2.

(2) The party exercising the right of redemption, however, shall be deemed to have validly exercised such right by presenting the schedule in the registry of the competent court according to the place of residence of the buyer, unless he shall have previously been, by means of a judicial intimation, informed of the transfer of the thing from the buyer to another person; and in such case all subsequent acts relating to the right of redemption so exercised shall be presented in the same court.

(2) Where, however, the deposit is not made within the ten days as aforesaid the schedule of redemption shall cease to be effectual, even though the deposit shall have been made before the lapse of the time fixed for the exercise of the said right, saving the power of the party presenting the schedule to exercise again the right of redemption by presenting a fresh schedule within such time, and saving also any other provisions contained in articles 1451 to 1468.

(2) The fact, however, that the deficiency was due to inadvertence or error, shall not benefit the party exercising the said right, unless he shall supplement the deposit within ten days from the day on which the party against whom the said right is exercised shall have, by means of a judicial act, called upon him to do so.

(2) The party exercising the right of redemption may also at any time after the presentation of the schedule, demand that the expenses aforesaid be liquidated and that the defendant be condemned to make the re-sale at such time and in such manner as the court shall direct.

Amended by:
IV.1961.2,7.

(2) Any agreement whereby the seller is to return a higher sum is null in regard to the excess.

1459. (1) The right of redemption cannot be reserved for a period exceeding five years to be reckoned from the day of the sale.

Right of redemption may not be reserved for a period exceeding five years.

(2) Where the right of redemption has been reserved without any limitation of time, or for a period exceeding five years, the agreement is null in regard to any time exceeding five years.

(3) The period fixed by the contract or reduced as aforesaid, is peremptory; and it runs also against minors and persons interdicted or absent.

1460. (1) The seller of an immovable who has reserved to himself the right of redemption may exercise such right against a third party in possession even though no mention of such right shall have been made in the contract whereby such third party shall have acquired the immovable.

Where sellers are two or more, redemption how exercisable.

1463. If several persons have jointly and by a single contract sold a tenement held in community, each may exercise the right of redemption in respect only of the portion which he owned.

(1) The buyer, however, in the cases mentioned in the last two preceding articles, may, by means of a judicial act, call upon all the other sellers of the common property, or all the other co-heirs, to declare whether they too desire to exercise the right of redemption in regard to their respective portions.

(2) The co-sellers or co-heirs so called upon shall make the aforesaid declaration within the time remaining for the exercise of the right of redemption, provided that if such time is less than ten days, or has entirely elapsed, such declaration shall be made within ten days to be reckoned from the service of the said judicial act.

In default of declaration by co-sellers or co-heirs buyer becomes irrevocably owner of whole tenement.

1466. If within the aforesaid time any of the co-sellers or co-heirs fails to declare that he desires to exercise the right of redemption in respect of his portion, the buyer shall become irrevocably the owner of the whole tenement, unless such of the co-sellers or co-heirs as may have exercised the right of redemption in respect of their portion shall, upon being called upon by the buyer by means of a judicial act, and within ten days from the service thereof, redeem the whole tenement in accordance with the provisions of article 1448.

When each seller may exercise the right of redemption separately.

1467. If the sale of a tenement belonging to several persons has not been made jointly and in respect of the whole tenement, but each of such persons has separately sold his portion, each seller may exercise the right of redemption separately in respect of the portion which belonged to him, and it shall not be competent to the buyer to compel the person who so exercises his right of redemption to redeem the whole tenement.

Right of redemption against heirs of buyer.

1468. (1) If the buyer has left several heirs, the right of redemption may only be exercised against each of them in respect of his share, irrespective of whether the tenement sold is still undivided, or whether a partition thereof has already been made among the heirs.

(2) Nevertheless, if the estate has been divided, and the thing sold has been entirely allotted to the share of one of the heirs, the right of redemption can be exercised against such heir in respect of the whole tenement.

- (d) the emphyteuta shall attach to the schedule a plan showing the extent and location of the immovable subject to the ground-rent redeemed;
- (e) service of the schedule shall be effected only on the person named in such schedule and if within three months from the day on which the schedule is filed, service is not effected on the person aforesaid, either by reason of absence or for any other reason, the emphyteuta shall at his expense request the Registrar of Courts to have the contents of the schedule published in the Gazette, and upon such publication the person on whom the schedule was due to be served shall, for all purposes of law, be deemed to be served with the schedule;

- (f) the emphyteuta shall cause two copies of the schedule to be served on the Director of Public Registry, who shall keep a register of such schedules, and article 30 of the Public Registry Act shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to such schedules.

1502. (1) The ground-rent cannot be divided without the consent of the dominus; but where the tenement is transferred or otherwise belongs to two or more persons separately, the dominus may not refuse his consent for the division of the ground-rent if such division is made substantially in proportion to the separate parts held by the persons requiring the consent.

Divisibility of ground-rent.
Substituted by:
XXVII.1976.4.

(2) The consent given by the dominus for the transfer of one or more separate parts of the tenement to different persons, or the receipt by him of one or more portions of the ground-rent, from one or more of such persons, shall have the same effect as an express consent given by the dominus for the division of the groundrent.

1503. (1) A co-possessor who has paid the entire ground-rent, obtains reimbursement from the other co-possessors pro rata having regard to the portion of the tenement held by each, notwithstanding any assignment of rights.

(2) He contributes, in the same proportion, with the other co-possessors in respect of the shares of such of the co-possessors as are insolvent.

1504. (1) The emphyteuta may alter the surface of the tenement, provided he does not thereby cause any deterioration thereof.

Rights of emphyteuta over tenement.

(2) He is entitled to any profit which the tenement may yield and has the right to recover the tenement from any holder, even if such holder is the dominus.

(3) He is also entitled to the treasure trove found in the tenement, saving such portion thereof as according to law is due to the person who has found it.

1505. The emphyteuta shall keep, and in due time restore the tenement in a good state.

Restoration of tenement in good state.

1506. (1) All improvements made by the emphyteuta appertain to him during the continuance of the emphyteusis.

Improvements.

(2) He may alter the form of such improvements; but he may not destroy them without the express consent of the dominus.

Obligations of emphyteuta.

1507. The emphyteuta is bound to carry out any obligation imposed by law on the owners of buildings or lands:

Provided that if for the carrying out of any such obligation a considerable expense is required, and the emphyteusis is for a time, the court may, upon the demand of the emphyteuta, compel the dominus to contribute a portion of such expense, regard being had to the covenants of the emphyteusis, to the remaining period of the grant, to the sum of the ground-rent and to other circumstances of the case.

Emphyteuta may dispose of tenement.

1508. (1) The emphyteuta may, without giving notice to the dominus or requiring his consent, dispose of the emphyteutical tenement and of the improvements, either by an act inter vivos or by any testamentary disposition.

(2) Any alienation, however, made otherwise than by a public deed, is null.

Emphyteuta not freed from his obligations unless alienee is acknowledged by dominus.

1509. (1) Where the emphyteuta makes any such disposal without the consent of the dominus, he shall not be released from his obligations towards the dominus himself unless the latter acknowledges the alienee.

Obligations of alienee even if not acknowledged.
Amended by:
VII.1944.2;
LVIII.1975.9.

(2) The alienee, however, although not acknowledged by the dominus, is personally bound towards him for the payment of the whole amount of ground-rents which fall due during his tenure, and for the repair of all damages which take place during such tenure; but he is not liable for the ground-rent which fell due, or for the damages which took place previously to such tenure; saving always, even in respect of such ground-rent and damages, the rights of the dominus on the emphyteutical tenement, on the fruits and on the value of all things which serve for the furnishing or stocking or for the cultivation of the tenement, to whomsoever such things may appertain:

Provided that such rights shall not be available to the proprietor in respect of the said things if the same belong to or are held by or on behalf of any department of the Government of Malta in any case in which such department is not itself liable for the payment of the debt.

When dominus is bound to acknowledge alienee.
Amended by:
IV.1961.10.

1510. The dominus may not refuse to acknowledge, in lieu of the emphyteuta, the alienee under any title, of the emphyteusis, if the alienee is a competent person to carry out the obligations arising from the emphyteutical grant.

When alienee is bound to acknowledge dominus.

1511. An alienee, under any title, of an emphyteusis, in possession of the tenement, whom the dominus has acknowledged or has offered to acknowledge, may not refuse to acknowledge expressly the dominus or to bind himself personally towards him for the carrying out of the obligations arising from the emphyteutical grant.

1512. (1) Any of the acknowledgements mentioned in the last two preceding articles may be either express or implied; and the payment or receipt of ground-rent or of a fine by or from the alienee shall operate as an implied acknowledgement, unless an express reservation is made by a judicial act.

and where any sum due in accordance with the foregoing provisions of this article exceeds the amount of the ground-rent for one year due to that dominus in respect of the tenement or part of the tenement sold or alienated, such dominus shall not be entitled to any such excess.

1514. The provisions of articles 1357, 1359 and 1360 shall apply to a promise made in respect of emphyteusis after the 1st of July, 1976, as they apply to a promise to sell or to buy.

Promise in relation to emphyteusis.
Added by:
XXVII.1976.7.

1515. (1) An emphyteusis is dissolved ipso jure if the tenement perishes in whole by a fortuitous event.

Where tenement perishes wholly or in part.

(2) If the tenement perishes in part, and the remaining part is not capable of yielding a rent equivalent to the ground-rent, the emphyteuta may not claim a reduction of the ground-rent, but he may demand the dissolution of the emphyteusis, restoring to the dominus the tenement with the improvements even if the remaining part of the tenement consists chiefly of such improvements.

1516. It is incumbent on the emphyteuta to prove that the tenement has perished, wholly or in part, by a fortuitous event, and without any fault on his part or on the part of his family, or of his servants, guests or tenants or of the sub-emphyteutae not acknowledged by the dominus.

Burden of proof.

1517. It shall be lawful for the dominus to demand the dissolution of the emphyteusis and the reversion in his favour of the tenement together with the improvements if the emphyteuta owes by way of ground-rent a sum equal in amount to three yearly payments.

XXVII.1976.8.

1518. (1) It shall also be lawful for the dominus to demand the dissolution of the emphyteusis and the reversion in his favour of the tenement together with the improvements, in addition to the repair of any damage, if the tenement has considerably deteriorated, and the emphyteuta fails to show that such

(2) The same shall apply where the deterioration has taken place in the improvements executed on the tenement.

Time for payment
of arrears, etc.
Amended by:
XXVII.1976.9.

1519. (1) In the cases mentioned in the last two preceding articles, it shall be competent to the dominus to demand the dissolution of the emphyteusis and the payment of the arrears of the ground-rent, concurrently.

(2) Nevertheless, the court may, in each of the cases aforesaid, grant to the defendant a reasonable time, according to circumstances, for the payment of the arrears or for the execution of the repairs, and such time may, for a just cause, be extended once to a further reasonable time.

(3) The provisions of the foregoing sub-articles shall apply also in any case in which the dissolution of the contract has been expressly agreed upon for any reason, and shall so apply even if the agreement excludes the grant of any time.

(4) Nothing in this article shall be construed as requiring the payment of any ground-rent or other sum that is not due, whether because the demand therefor is barred by prescription or for any other reason.

Time for payment
of arrears, etc.,
may be demanded by creditor of emphyteuta.

1520. (1) Any creditor of the emphyteuta, or any other person interested may intervene in the suit and make the demand for the time aforesaid; and he may also within such time, even though granted with his intervention on the demand of the emphyteuta, prevent the dissolution of the emphyteusis by paying the arrears or by executing the repairs required.

(2) In such case, the creditor or other person interested shall, for the reimbursement of the arrears paid or of the expense incurred in the execution of the repairs, be vested with the rights of the dominus as against any other creditor of the emphyteuta, excepting, however, the dominus himself.

Cessation of
emphyteusis.

1521. (1) A temporary emphyteusis ceases on the expiration of the time expressly agreed upon, and the reversion, in favour of the dominus, of the tenement together with the improvements takes place, ipso jure.

(2) Any action for the renewal of the emphyteusis for any cause whatsoever, except by virtue of an express covenant in the emphyteutical grant or in any other public deed, is abolished, in regard to any kind of property whatsoever.

reversion.

1522. In all cases of reversion, any hypothec, burden or easement, even though such easement may have been created without the act of the emphyteuta, shall be dissolved both in regard to the tenement and to the improvements; and the tenement together with the improvements shall revert unencumbered to the dominus, saving, in regard to any lease thereof, the provisions of articles 1530 and 1531.

1523. (1) Upon reversion, the emphyteuta shall not be entitled to any compensation in respect of the improvements, whatever their nature or value, unless reversion takes place for any of the causes mentioned in articles 1517 and 1518.

When emphyteuta may claim compensation for improvement.

(2) In the cases mentioned in the said two articles, the dominus is bound to pay to the emphyteuta the price of the improvements, regard being had to their value at the time of the reversion, up to the amount by which the value of the tenement is found to have increased in consequence of such improvements at the time of the reversion, as well as to the remaining period of the emphyteusis.

1524. The provisions of this Title shall apply to all contracts of emphyteusis whether made before or after the 1st July, 1976, other than those emphyteuses which had terminated before the said date or which, before that date, were determined or dissolved by agreement, or by a judgment which had become res judicata, or by operation of law; in respect of such latter emphyteuses the law applicable at the time of their termination, determination or dissolution shall, in so far as necessary, continue to apply.

Letting by co-possessor when voidable.

When court may grant authorization.
Amended by: XXII. 2005.81.

1528. The court may, on the demand of any of the co-possessors of the thing by sworn application, grant the authorization mentioned in the last preceding article, where it is shown that the thing is capable of being let and that the proposed letting is advantageous and provided it is not shown that any of the other co-possessors had a just cause to oppose the letting.

Right of preference of co-possessor.

1529. The co-possessor who has, in general terms, given his consent for the letting of the thing, or, in spite of whose opposition the court has, in general terms, given its authorization for the letting of the thing, may nevertheless exercise the right of preference referred to in articles 1591, 1592 and 1593 unless he has in any manner waived such right.

Letting made by person possessing thing under entail or in usufruct, etc.

1530. (1) The letting made by a person possessing the thing under entail or in usufruct or under any other temporary or dissoluble title, shall be valid even in regard to his successors, if it is made on fair conditions and for a term not exceeding eight years, in the case of rural tenements, or four years, in the case of urban tenements, or an ordinary period according to usage in the case of movable property, or for any period, shorter than the said periods respectively, in the case of property the letting of which for a period exceeding such shorter period is prohibited.

(2) The letting made for any longer period by a person possessing the thing as aforesaid shall, on the demand of his successors in the possession of the thing, be reduced to the respective period above-mentioned, to be reckoned from the date of the contract.

When lease for a longer period is authorised by competent authority.

1531. The provisions of the last preceding article in so far as they restrict the duration of the lease shall not apply where a longer period of lease has been covenanted with the authorization of the competent authority according to law.

Presumptive duration of lease.
Amended by: I.1870.1.

1532. In the absence of an express agreement or of circumstances tending to show the intention of the contracting parties as to the duration of the lease, the following rules shall be observed:

- (a) the letting of an urban tenement or of a movable shall be deemed to be made for the period in respect of which the rent has been calculated, that is, for one year, if the rent has been agreed upon at so much a year; for one month, if the rent has been agreed upon at so much a month; for one day, if the rent has been agreed upon at so much a day:

Provided that if it is not made to appear that the rent has been agreed upon by the year, the month or the day, it shall be deemed to have been agreed upon according to usage;

- (b) the letting of a rural tenement shall be deemed to be made: if the tenement is capable of producing fruits, for the period which is necessary for the gathering of the produce of four years; if the tenement is not capable of producing fruits, for the period in respect of

- (c) if any particular usage is proved in regard to the duration of the letting of certain things, such things shall be deemed to be let out for the period fixed by such usage.

How rent is fixed when not agreed upon.

1535. (1) Every payment in advance in respect of rent of rural tenements is null, if any prejudice is caused thereby to the hypothecary creditors of the lessor or to the persons succeeding to the property under an entail, or to whom, in consequence of any dissolution of his right, the property passes. (2) Every payment in advance in respect of rent of an urban tenement for more than six months is also null, if any prejudice as aforesaid is caused thereby.

1536. If, at the expiration of the lease, the lessee continues and is suffered to continue in the enjoyment of the thing let to him, the lease shall be deemed to be renewed on the same conditions and with the same rights and duties, for a period to be regulated in accordance with the provisions of article 1532, except as regards rural tenements with respect to which the lease shall be deemed to be renewed for the period which is necessary for the gathering of the produce of one year: Tacit renewal of lease.

1537. When the lessor has given notice to the lessee to surrender the thing at the expiration of the lease, the lessee may not set up the tacit renewal as provided in the last preceding article, even though he has continued in the enjoyment of the thing. When tacit renewal does not take place.

1538. A suretyship in respect of a contract of lease shall not, in any of the cases mentioned in the last two preceding articles, extend to the obligations resulting from the renewal of the lease, or the continued occupation of the thing unless the surety has expressly bound himself for the whole time until the lessee surrenders the thing. § I. OF THE RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS OF THE LESSOR

Obligations of lessor.

1539. The lessor is bound, by the nature of the contract, and without the necessity of any special agreement -

- (b) to maintain the thing in a fit condition for the use for which it has been let;
- (c) to secure the lessee in the quiet enjoyment of the thing during the continuance of the lease.

Delivery of thing in good state of repair.

1540. (1) The lessor is bound to deliver the thing in a good state of repair in every respect.

(2) During the continuance of the lease, the lessor is bound to make all the repairs which may become necessary, except, with regard to urban tenements, the repairs mentioned in article 1556 unless he shall have expressly bound himself to carry out even such repairs.

When lessee may be authorised to carry out repairs.
Amended by: XXII. 2005.81.

1541. (1) If the lessor, on being required so to do by means of a judicial act, fails to carry out the repairs to which he is bound, it shall be competent to the lessee to demand, by sworn application, that he be authorized to carry out such repairs at the expense of the lessor, on such conditions as the court may deem proper, according to circumstances.

(2) The lessee may retain the rent due or to become due, in reimbursement of the said expense, saving his right to any greater sum if such expense exceeds the amount of such rent.

Liability of lessor for delay.

1542. The lessor is bound to make good to the lessee the damage which the latter has sustained in consequence of the delay on the part of the lessor in carrying out, on the intimation mentioned in the last preceding article, the repairs to which he is bound.

Urgent repairs.

1543. It shall be lawful for the lessee, without the necessity of any judicial proceedings, to carry out at the expense of the lessor the repairs the omission or delay of which might cause to him serious prejudice: and in any such case, he may, for the purpose of reimbursement, retain the rent as provided in article 1541:

Provided that the lessee shall be bound to give as soon as possible notice thereof to the lessor and to communicate to him a report by an expert as to the urgency of such repairs and the prejudice which might result from delay:

Provided also that the lessor shall be entitled to assume the continuation of the repairs commenced under the provisions of this article.

When contract may be dissolved for want of repairs.

1544. If the repairs which the lessor is bound to carry out are such that the omission thereof will prevent or considerably lessen the enjoyment of the thing let, and the lessor fails to carry them out within a time fixed by the court, the lessee may also demand the dissolution of the contract, together with damages.

1545. (1) The lessor is bound to warrant the thing let against the faults or defects which prevent or diminish the use thereof; and, where the existence of such faults or defects is proved, the lessee may demand at his option either the dissolution of the contract or an abatement of the rent.

Liability of lessor in respect of defects or faults of thing let.

(2) The same rule shall apply even though such faults or defects shall have arisen after the stipulation of the contract.

(3) The lessor, however, shall not be bound in respect of apparent faults or defects which the lessee could have discovered for himself at the time of the contract.

1546. If, in consequence of latent faults or defects existing in the thing let at the time of the contract, the lessee suffers any damage, the lessor, if he knew of such faults or defects, or had a reasonable suspicion thereof, shall be liable in damages unless he shall have made known to the lessee the existence, or his suspicion of the existence, of such faults or defects.

Liability of lessor for damages in case of latent defects.

1547. The lessor cannot, during the continuance of the lease, change the form of the thing let, without the consent of the lessee.

Lessor cannot change form of thing let.

1548. (1) If, during the continuance of the lease, the tenement let requires urgent repairs which cannot be delayed until the expiration of the lease, the lessee is bound to suffer the execution of such repairs, whatever the inconvenience caused to him thereby, even though, during such execution, he may be deprived of a part of the tenement.

Lessee to suffer the execution of urgent repairs.

(2) Nevertheless, if the execution of such repairs takes more than forty days, the rent shall be abated in proportion to the time and to the part of the tenement of which the lessee is deprived.

1549. (1) In the case of an urban tenement destined for habitation, if the repairs mentioned in the last preceding article are such as to render uninhabitable for any period of time that part of the tenement which is necessary for the habitation of the lessee and his family, it shall be competent to the lessee according to circumstances to demand the dissolution of the contract.

Lessee may in certain cases demand dissolution of lease.

(2) The same rule shall apply in the case of movable property if the repairs are such as to prevent the use of the thing for any period of time.

1550. The lessor is not bound to warrant the lessee against the molestations which third parties may, by mere acts, cause to him in the enjoyment of the thing let, where such third parties do not claim any right thereon, saving the right of the lessee to proceed against them in his own name.

Lessor not bound to warranty against molestations by third parties, 1551. (1) Where, on the contrary, the lessee is disturbed in the enjoyment of the thing in consequence of an action touching a right on the thing let, he may maintain an action for damages against the lessor, if he is entirely deprived of the thing, or for a proportionate abatement of the rent, if he is deprived of only a part of the thing, or if a diminution of the enjoyment of the thing or an inconvenience is caused to him.

unless a right on the thing is claimed.

(2) It shall, however, be competent to the lessee, even in the latter case, to sue for the dissolution of the contract and for damages, if the part of the thing which is left to him does not serve the purpose for which he had taken the whole thing on lease.

When damages may not be claimed.

1552. The provisions of the last preceding article in respect of the liability for damages shall not apply -

- (a) if the lessee fails to give notice to the lessor, without delay, of the molestation, and the lessor is prejudiced by such omission;
- (b) if the cause of the action referred to in the last preceding article, has only arisen after the stipulation of the contract, and is not due to an act of the lessor;
- (c) if, at the time of the contract, the lessee knew of the right of the third party.

When lessee is bound to call upon lessor to defend him.

1553. If the third parties who have caused molestation by mere acts claim any right on the thing let, or if an action is brought against the lessee himself to compel him to surrender the thing, in whole or in part, or to suffer the exercise of any easement, he is bound to call upon the lessor to defend him, and he shall, if he so demands, have the proceedings against him discontinued, upon declaring the name of the lessor under whom he holds the thing.

§ II. OF THE RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS OF THE LESSEE

Obligations of lessee.

1554. The lessee is bound -

- (a) to make use of the thing let to him as a bonus paterfamilias, and for the purpose stated in the contract, or, in the absence of any agreement to that effect, for such purpose as may be presumed according to circumstances;
- (b) to pay the rent agreed upon, or fixed in accordance with the provisions of article 1534.

Unlawful user of the thing let.

1555. (1) If the lessee uses the thing let for any purpose other than that for which it is intended, or in a manner which may prejudice the lessor, the latter may, according to circumstances, demand the dissolution of the contract.

(2) The same rule shall apply if, in the case of rural tenements, the lessee abandons the cultivation thereof, or does not cultivate them as a bonus paterfamilias, and the lessor may suffer thereby a prejudice in respect of which no security was given him.

(3) In any of the aforesaid cases the lessee is also liable in damages.

Repairs at the charge of lessee of urban tenement, 1556. The lessee of an urban tenement is bound to carry out the repairs of -

- (a) stoves;
- (b) panes of glass;
- (c) shutters, window-frames, hinges, bolts and locks.

State in which thing is to be restored.

1560. Where no description of the condition of the thing let has been made, it shall, in the absence of any proof to the contrary, be presumed that the lessee received the thing in good condition, even as regards the repairs mentioned in article 1556.

When thing is presumed to have been received in good condition.

1561. The lessee is liable for any deterioration or damage which occurs during his enjoyment, unless he proves that such deterioration or damage has occurred without any fault on his part.

1564. (1) The lessee may not, during the continuance of the lease, make any alteration in the thing let without the consent of the lessor, and he is not entitled to claim the value, whatever it may be, of any improvement made without such consent.

Improvements.

(2) The lessee may, however, remove such improvements, restoring the thing to the condition in which it was before they were made, provided as regards improvements existing at the termination of the lease, he shows that he can obtain some profit by taking them away, and provided the lessor does not elect to keep them and pay to the lessee a sum equal to the profit which, by taking them away, the latter would obtain.

1565. The lessee is bound, under pain of paying damages, to give notice to the lessor without delay of any encroachment or damage affecting the thing let.

Lessee to give notice to lessor of encroachment, etc.

§ III. OF THE DISSOLUTION OF THE LEASE

Contract ceases on expiration of term,

1566. A contract of letting and hiring ceases ipso jure on the expiration of the term expressly agreed upon, and it shall not be necessary for either of the contracting parties to give notice to the other.

even if, in case of rural tenements or movables, the term is presumed.

1567. With regard to rural tenements or movables, the contract shall also cease ipso jure on the expiration of the term, even though such term is presumed as provided in article 1532.

If duration of lease of urban tenements is presumed, notice to quit is required.

1568. With regard, however, to urban tenements, when the duration of the lease is presumed as provided in article 1532, the contract shall not cease on the expiration of the term unless either of the parties gives notice to the other at least one month before, if the presumed duration of the lease is for one year, or fifteen days before, if such duration is for less than one year.

1571. (1) If, during the continuance of the lease, the thing let is totally destroyed by a fortuitous event, the lease is ipso jure dissolved; if it is destroyed only in part, the lessee may, according to circumstances, demand either an abatement of the rent or the dissolution of the contract.

(2) The lessee may also, according to circumstances, demand an abatement of the rent or the dissolution of the contract, if owing to a fortuitous event, the thing let has become unserviceable.

§ IV. OF SPECIAL RULES AS TO LEASES OF RURAL TENEMENTS
YIELDING FRUITS

Remission or abatement of rent, in case of loss of crop.

1577. If the lease is made for two or more years and, during the lease, there shall be lost, by any fortuitous event, the whole crop of one year or at least so much of it that the value of the remaining fruits, after deducting the value of the seeds and the expense of gathering such fruits, shall not be equivalent to one-half of the rent agreed upon, the lessee is entitled to demand, in the former case, the remission of the whole rent, and, in the latter case, an abatement of the rent, corresponding to the difference between the value of the remaining fruits and the amount of the said rent.

Lessee to demand
ascertained.
Amended by:
XXII. 2005.81.

1578. In order to obtain the remission or abatement aforesaid, the lessee must, during the time of the ripening of the fruits and before the gathering thereof, demand, by sworn application, that the loss be ascertained; in default of such demand he is debarred from bringing in his claim.

Where no
remission or
allowed.

1579. No remission or abatement of rent shall be allowed if on striking a balance between any excess and deficiency in respect of the previous years, there remains a profit sufficient to reduce the loss sustained in the year mentioned in the demand to less than one-half of the rent.

Adjustment of loss
continue.

1580. If after striking such balance, the aforesaid loss is found to be greater than one-half of the rent, and the lease is to continue for another year or more, it shall be lawful for the court provisionally to exempt the lessee from the payment of the rent in proportion to the loss sustained.

1581. In such case, however, the issue of the remission or abatement of rent shall not be definitely settled except at the expiration of the lease, when another balance shall be struck of any excess and deficiency in respect of the crops gathered during the whole term of the lease, and no remission or abatement shall be granted if on striking such balance there shall remain a profit sufficient to reduce the loss sustained in the year mentioned in the demand to less than one-half of the rent.

Adjustment to be definitely made at the expiration of lease.

1582. If on striking the balance as provided in article 1579 no remission or abatement of rent is found to be due, it shall not be lawful for the lessee to renew the demand at the expiration of the lease notwithstanding any deficiency in the following years; saving his right to demand the remission or an abatement of the rent in respect of each of such following years if there are sufficient grounds for such demand.

If there is no loss at the time of computation, remission or abatement cannot be sought afterwards.

1583. If, during the continuance of the lease, the lessor has granted to the lessee the remission of the rent of one year, or an abatement thereof, in consideration of the loss sustained in such year, he may not demand the payment of the amount remitted, even though on striking a balance as provided in article 1581 it shall appear that the lessee during the years following such remission or abatement has made a profit corresponding to or even exceeding such loss, unless the lessor in granting the remission or abatement shall have reserved to himself such right.

Remission or abatement when granted cannot be recalled.

1584. Where the time of the lease does not exceed one year, the lessee shall be equally entitled to a remission or an abatement of the rent, in the event of the happening, during such year, of the circumstances mentioned in article 1577.

Remission or abatement where lease does not exceed one year.

1585. In no case may the lessee on account of any loss sustained recover the rent paid by him, unless in paying such rent he shall have reserved to himself such right, or unless he shall have paid the rent in advance.

Rent paid may not be recovered.

1586. The lessee has no right to the remission or an abatement of the rent, if the loss of the fruits occurs after they have been separated from the soil, unless the rent shall have been made to consist in a share of the fruits in kind, in which case the lessor must bear a proportionate part of the loss, provided the lessee was not in default for delay in delivering to the lessor the latter's share of the fruits.

No remission or abatement in respect of loss of fruits separated from the soil, 1587. Nor may the lessee demand the remission or an abatement of the rent, if the cause of the loss existed and was known at the time the lease was contracted.

nor if cause of loss existed at time of contract.

1588. (1) The lessee may, by an express covenant, undertake to bear any loss caused by fortuitous events.

Lessee may undertake to bear loss caused by fortuitous event.

(2) Any such covenant shall be deemed to apply only to ordinary fortuitous events, such as hail, or the excessive abundance or scarcity of rain.

(3) It shall not be deemed to extend to extraordinary fortuitous events, unless the lessee shall have undertaken to bear all fortuitous events, whether foreseen or unforeseen.

Lease, if under Metayer System, dissolved by death of lessee.

1589. The lease of a rural tenement is dissolved by the death of the lessee if it is entered into on condition that the produce shall be divided between lessor and lessee.

§ V. OF THE RIGHT OF PREFERENCE IN THE LEASE OF THINGS

Right of preference or of tenancy,
Amended by:
L.N. 148 of 1975.

1590. The right of preference or of tenancy in respect of the lease of things shall not be available, even with regard to property of the Government of Malta, except in the cases laid down in any of the articles following.

of co-possessor,

1591. Where two or more persons possess a thing in common, each of them has a right of preference over strangers in respect of the lease of such thing, on the same conditions offered by others.

to be exercised by co-possessor himself.

1592. The said right cannot be exercised except by the co-possessor himself, and it cannot be exercised by him after the thing has been validly let to any other person.

Concurrent exercise of such right by two or more co-possessors.

1593. In the event of concurrent claims by two or more persons having such right, it shall be lawful for any of them to demand that the thing be let, upon an auction, to the highest bidder, and that strangers be not admitted to bid.

Right of preference of sitting tenant.
Amended by:
XLII.1933.2;
XVI.1967.20;
VI.1972.2.

1594. If there are no claims on the part of persons having a right of preference on the ground mentioned in article 1591, a right of preference, in regard to tenements, is granted -

- (a) to the lessee in the last preceding lease of an urban tenement, in respect of the new lease of the same tenement;
- (b) to the possessor or occupier of the upper part of a building, in respect of the new lease of the lower part of the same building, whether such lower part belongs to the lessor of the upper part or to any other person, and whether it has or has not access from the street:

Provided that the right of preference granted under this paragraph shall not apply in the case of any building constructed or used as a common tenement house or of any building consisting of flats which, though having in common other parts of the building, are constructed, leased, or occupied for use separately.

Right of preference is merely personal.

1595. (1) In the cases mentioned in the last preceding article, the right of preference can be exercised in the manner and within the times hereinafter stated, even after the new lease has been agreed upon with others.

(2) Such right, however, is merely personal, and it may not be transferred to other persons, nor shall it transmit to the heirs or other successors of the person entitled thereto.

1596. A person vested with the right of preference for any of the causes mentioned in article 1594 must, in order validly to exercise such right, within fifteen days from the day on which he shall have been notified by the lessor of the conditions offered by or agreed upon with others, accept such conditions, and give, if simultaneously with the aforesaid notification he is so required, sufficient security for the performance of the said conditions where such security is included in such conditions.

How right of preference is exercised.

1597. (1) The notification of the conditions offered or agreed upon, shall be made by the lessor by means of a judicial act calling upon the person to be served therewith to declare, within the time mentioned in the last preceding article, whether he intends to accept such conditions, and warning him that, in default of acceptance within the aforesaid time, his right of preference shall lapse.

Notification of conditions.

(2) Where the new lease is in writing, the lessor may, in the aforesaid judicial act, state the conditions of such lease by a mere reference to the writing, but in such case he must, if the writing is a private writing, annex a copy thereof, or if the writing is a notarial deed or a draft thereof, state in the said act the name, surname and place of residence of the notary having such deed or draft.

1598. (1) If the party to be notified is absent from Malta, the notification in his behalf may be made to any attorney of such party, or to any other person charged by him with the custody of the premises or of the keys thereof, or holding or occupying the premises, under any title whatsoever, with his consent.

Where party to be notified with conditions is absent.

(2) In default of such attorney or person charged as aforesaid or holder or occupier, the notification may be made by means of an advertisement in the Government Gazette.

(3) In the cases referred to in this article, the time for accepting the conditions is of one month.

1599. Notice of the acceptance of the conditions, together with the production of security, where required, shall also be given to the lessor by means of a judicial act.

Acceptance.

1600. If in the cases mentioned in the last three preceding articles the notification of the conditions or the acceptance thereof is made otherwise than as prescribed in those articles, such notification or acceptance shall be null.

Nullity of notification of conditions or of acceptance.

1601. If the lessee possesses immovable property, he may offer, as security, the hypothecation of such property in lieu of any other security required by the lessor under the provisions of article 1596.

Hypothecary security.

1602. If on production of the security within the time stated in article 1596 the lessor, within fifteen days from the notification of such production by means of a judicial act, rejects such security as insufficient, the lessee may, within four days from the notification of such act, demand, by sworn application, that the security produced by him be declared sufficient and that his right of

If, on such sworn application, the lessee fails to establish the sufficiency of the security, the court may, before giving judgment, allow him a time not exceeding eight days within which to produce a fresh security and, if such fresh security, whether alone or together with the previous one, is not deemed by the court to be sufficient, the court shall proceed to give judgment on the aforesaid sworn application, declaring the right of preference as lapsed.

Annulment of conditions of new lease on the ground of misrepresentation, etc.	1605. (1) Notwithstanding the acceptance of the conditions of the new lease, it shall be lawful for the party who had accepted such conditions to demand, during the lease, the annulment of all such conditions together with damages, if he proves any misrepresentation or fraud to his prejudice in regard to any of such conditions; and in such case the new lease shall remain operative on the same conditions of the previous lease, at a rent to be fixed on a valuation by experts having regard to the circumstances prevailing at the time when the conditions so impeached were accepted. (2) The action for damages on the ground of misrepresentation or fraud as aforesaid, may even be exercised within a year from the dissolution of the new lease, but not after the expiration of such year. surrendered or has been compelled to surrender the tenement;

- (e) if the lessee, during the preceding lease, was not punctual in the payment of the rent for two or more terms;

For the purposes of this paragraph, the lessee shall not be deemed to have failed to be punctual, if the payment of the rent is not delayed for more than fifteen days from the day on which the lessor shall have, even verbally, demanded such payment;

- (f) if the lessee has failed to perform or has contravened any of the other obligations arising from the contract of the last preceding lease; or has performed such obligation only when compelled to do so by judicial proceedings;
- (g) if the preceding lease was dissolved for any cause other than that of the expiration of the time for which it was to run;
- (h) if the lessee, without the express consent of the lessor, has wholly sub-let the tenement or assigned the lease thereof, and the tenement, at the time of the new lease, is occupied by the sub-lessee or assignee, even though the lessee has not been restrained from sub-letting the tenement or assigning the lease thereof:

Provided that where the sub-lease or assignment of the lease is in respect of a part of the tenement, the right of preference shall cease in respect of that part only; but the lessee shall also forfeit his right of preference in respect of the part not sub-let or the lease whereof is not assigned, if the lessor does not wish to let the several parts of the tenement separately and the lessee does not accept the new lease of the whole tenement on the same conditions offered by or agreed upon with others in respect of the whole tenement.

1608. The lessee may not set up his right of preference against the demand for the surrender of the tenement, where such demand is admissible, if he refuses to accept the new lease on the conditions proposed to him and by the court deemed reasonable, even though it is proved that the plaintiff intends to let out the tenement to others on less onerous conditions.

Right of preference may not be set up if lessee refuses to accept conditions of new lease.

1609. Nor may he set up his right of preference against the aforesaid demand, where such demand is admissible, if the plaintiff declares on oath that he does not intend to let out the tenement before the lapse of one year to be reckoned from the day of the demand, or that he does not intend to let out the tenement within the said time on conditions less onerous than those which the defendant shall have refused to accept, whatever such conditions may be, and irrespective of any opinion of the court in regard to such conditions:

If lessor declares not to let out the tenement before lapse of one year, etc.

Provided that if the declarant shall, in violation of the terms of any such declaration, let out the tenement, within the time aforesaid, to persons other than those mentioned in article 1606, the party who has surrendered the tenement in consequence of such declaration, may maintain against the declarant an action for damages, exercisable within one year from the day on which the tenement shall have been so let out.

When right of preference competent to occupier of upper part of building ceases.

1610. The right of preference granted under paragraph (b) of article 1594 to the possessor or occupier of the upper part of a building in respect of the new lease of the lower part of the same building shall not be competent -

- (a) if the possessor or occupier of the upper part does not make use thereof for his own habitation or that of his family;
- (b) if the new lease of the lower part is claimed by the lessee himself who enjoyed the last preceding lease, in virtue of the right of preference granted under paragraph (a) of article 1594.

Where several occupiers of upper parts of building claim right of preference.

1611. Where two or more possessors or occupiers of several upper parts of a building claim the new lease of the lower part, preference shall be given to the possessor or occupier of the part of the building immediately overlying the part to be let out.

Where overlying extent is greater.

1612. If the lower part immediately underlies the parts of the same building, possessed or occupied by the competitors claiming the new lease, preference shall be given to the possessor or occupier whose part overlies the lower part to a greater extent; and if such upper parts overlies the lower part to the same extent, the lessor may grant the lease to any one of the competing claimants whom he prefers.

§ VI. OF SUB-LETTING

Sub-letting.

1613. In the absence of special provisions, the contract of sub-letting is regulated by the same provisions which regulate the contract of letting and hiring.

Lessee can sub-let unless restrained.

1614. (1) The lessee has the right to sub-let or assign the lease, unless he has been restrained from so doing in the contract.

(2) Such restraint may be total or partial.

Extent of restraint.

1615. (1) The restraint of the power to sub-let shall not operate so as to restrain the lessee from using the thing let, as an hotel or a lodging-house, provided such use has not been expressly forbidden in the contract, saving the provisions of article 1555.

(2) Nor shall it operate so as to restrain the lessee from allowing other persons to dwell with him on payment of part of the rent, or for any other consideration, provided he has not been expressly forbidden to do so in the contract.

1616. A lessee who cultivates land under a covenant of sharing the produce with the lessor, cannot sub-let or assign the lease, unless such power has been expressly granted to him by the lessor.

Lessee under Metayer lease cannot sub-let without lessor's consent.

1617. Nor may the occupier of a part of an urban tenement, not separated from other parts of the same tenement, or having access by the same entrance as other parts of the same tenement, sub-let or assign the lease, without the consent of the lessor.

Lessee of part of building cannot sub-let.

1618. Notwithstanding that the power to sub-let or to assign the lease has not been excluded, the lessor shall have the right to recover possession of the premises, if such premises are sub-let or the lease thereof is assigned to any person using, causing or suffering the same to be used for purposes of prostitution or for other immoral purposes.

Right of lessor to be recover possession of tenement if used for immoral purposes.
Amended by:
XXXIX.1939.8.

1619. The lessor may enforce his rights for rent, compensation for non-repairs, or in connection with any other covenant of the lease, on the fruits and on the value of all things which serve for the furnishing or stocking, or for the cultivation of the tenement, even though such fruits or other things belong to the sub-lessee, and the latter has discharged his liabilities towards his sub-lessor:

Right of original lessor on things of sub-lessee.
Amended by:
VII.1944.3;
XLVI.1973.85.

Provided that such rights shall not be available to the lessor in respect of the said things if the same belong to or are held by or on behalf of any department of the Government of Malta in any case in which such department is not itself directly liable for the payment of the debt.

1620. The sub-lessee may not claim against the lessor any of the rights competent to the lessee.

Rights of sub-lessee.

1621. The provisions of the last two preceding articles shall also apply in cases where the lessee has not been restrained from sub-letting or from assigning the lease, or has been expressly allowed to do so, unless the lessor has expressly released the lessee from his obligations or has expressly acknowledged the sub-lessee instead of the lessee.

Applicability of ss.1619 and 1620.

1622. (1) The right of preference referred to in article 1591, shall also apply in the case of the sub-letting of a thing held in common by several lessees.

Right of preference applicable to sub-lease.

(2) The right of preference granted under paragraph (a) of article 1594 is also competent to the sub-lessee in respect of the new sub-lease of the premises; but the right of preference granted under paragraph (b) of the said article is competent to the sub-lessee only in cases where the lower part of the building is sub-let by the person who had sub-let the upper part to the said sub-lessee.

(3) The provisions of articles 1596 to 1610, inclusively, shall apply in all the cases referred to in this article.

Where work consists of several pieces.

(2) All the pieces of the work paid for are presumed to have been examined, if the employer pays the artificer in proportion to the work performed.

(3) Such presumption, however, shall not arise, if the payments, although stipulated, or effected on the completion of one or more pieces of the work, are made on account of the whole work and without any appropriation to any particular piece of such work.

Duration of liability of contractor and architect.

1638. (1) If a building or other considerable stone work erected under a building contract shall, in the course of fifteen years from the day on which the construction of the same was completed, perish, wholly or in part, or be in manifest danger of falling to ruin, owing to a defect in the construction, or even owing to some defect in the ground, the architect and the contractor shall be responsible therefor.

(2) The relative action for damages must be brought within two years from the day on which any of the said cases shall have occurred.

Contractor cannot claim increase of price.

1639. A contractor who has undertaken the construction of a building or other considerable work, according to a plan determined and agreed upon between him and the employer, cannot claim any increase in the price, on the ground of an increase in the rate of wages or the cost of the materials, or on the ground of deviations from or additions to the plan, which are not onerous to the contractor.

Employer may dissolve contract. Substituted by: IV.1995.4.

1640. (1) It shall be lawful for the employer to dissolve the contract, even though the work has been commenced.

(2) If the employer has no valid reason for the dissolution, he is to compensate the contractor for all his expenses and work and to pay him a sum to be fixed by the court, according to circumstances, but not exceeding the profits which the contractor could have made by the contract.

(3) If the employer has valid reason for the dissolution, he is to pay the contractor only such sum which shall not exceed the expenses and work of the contractor, after taking into consideration the usefulness of such expenses and work to the employer as well as any damages which he may have suffered.

(4) Any advance made to the contractor before the dissolution of the contract shall be applied to the sums due in terms of sub-article (2) or (3) of this article and the contractor shall return any resulting excess to the employer.

(5) The contract shall be immediately dissolved when the employer informs the contractor, by any means whatsoever, of his decision to dissolve the contract, and this without the need of any authorisation or confirmation by any court.

Sub-title II

OF THE OBLIGATIONS OF PARTNERS AS BETWEEN THEMSELVES

Commencement of partnership.	1653. A partnership commences from the moment the contract is made, unless another time is fixed.
Stipulation whereby partnership is to last for ever, is null.	1654. (1) Any stipulation whereby a partnership is to last for ever or during the whole life of any one of the partners, is void. (2) A contract of partnership containing any such stipulation shall be deemed to have been entered into for an undefined time.

Liability of partners in respect of contributions.	1656. (1) Every partner owes the partnership all that which he has promised to contribute thereto. (2) Where this contribution consists of a specific thing of which the partnership has suffered eviction, the partner making such contribution is accountable therefor in the same manner as a seller is to the buyer in case of eviction.
Liability of partner for interest on sums due or availed of by him.	1657. (1) The partner who has agreed to contribute a sum of money to the partnership and has failed to do so, becomes ipso jure a debtor in the interest on such sum as from the day on which such sum was payable by him. (2) The same rule shall apply in regard to sums which a partner has taken from the funds of the partnership for his own private advantage, the interest on such sums to run from the day on which he shall have so taken them. (3) Nothing in this article shall affect the right of the partnership to bring an action, where competent, for further damages against such partner even though he has not been put in default.

1658. A partner who has taken money from the partnership funds is presumed, unless he is the manager of the partnership, to have taken it for his own private advantage, saving any proof to the contrary.

Presumption of private use of money of partnership.

1659. The partners who have agreed to contribute their skill to the partnership are bound to render an account of all the profits made by the exercise of such skill as forms the object of the partnership.

Liability of partners contributing skill.

1660. Where a party who is charged with the management is himself a separate creditor, in a sum fallen due, of a person who also owes to the partnership a sum likewise, fallen due, any payment received by such partner from the debtor shall be appropriated to the debt due to the partnership and to the debt due to himself, in proportion to the two debts, even though in giving receipt he had appropriated the payment entirely to his own private debt.

Appropriation of payment made to managing partner who is also a separate creditor of the party paying.

1661. (1) The provisions of the last preceding article shall not apply where the debt due to the partner is such that, according to the rules laid down in paragraphs (c), (d), (e) and (f) of article 1171 it enjoys preference over that due to the partnership and the payment has been expressly appropriated to the debt due to the partner.

Where debt due to partner enjoys preference over that due to partnership.

(2) In all cases, however, if the partner declares in the receipt that the payment will be appropriated entirely to the debt due to the partnership, it shall not be lawful for him to demand that payment be appropriated, wholly or in part, to the debt due to him.

1662. Where one of the partners has received a share of a common debt, he shall, if the debtor becomes insolvent, be bound to contribute to the common stock the share received by him even though in receiving payment, he had expressly given release for his share of the debt.

Where partner receives share of common debt from debtor who becomes insolvent.

1663. Each partner is liable towards the partnership for any damage caused to the same through his fault, and he may not set off against such damage the profits derived by the partnership from the exercise of his skill in other affairs.

1664. (1) Where the things of which the enjoyment only has been brought into the partnership are certain and specified objects which are not consumed by use, they remain at the risk of the partner who is the owner thereof.

(2) If such things are consumed by use, or are such as cannot be preserved without deteriorating, or were intended to be sold, or were brought into the partnership upon a valuation, they remain at the risk of the partnership.

(3) Where the thing has been appraised, the partner may only recover the amount of the valuation.

Rights of partner against partnership.

1665. A partner may maintain an action against the partnership, not only for the recovery of sums which he has disbursed on account of the partnership, together with interest, but also in respect of any obligations which he has contracted in good faith in the affairs of the partnership as well as in respect of risks inseparable from his management.

Shares of partners in profits or losses.

1666. (1) Where the contract of partnership does not fix the share of each partner in the profits or losses, such share shall be in proportion to each partner's contribution to the assets of the partnership.

(2) With regard to a partner who has only contributed his skill, his share in the profits or losses shall be regulated in the same manner as the share of the partner who has contributed to the partnership the least sum or portion.

Where partners have agreed to refer the determination of such shares to the decision of one of the partners, etc.

1667. (1) Where the partners have agreed to refer the determination of such shares to the decision of one of them or of a third party, such decision may not be impeached unless it is manifestly contrary to equity.

(2) It may not be impeached, even in such case, if more than three months have elapsed from the day on which the partner who deems himself aggrieved by such decision has had notice thereof or if he himself has commenced to give execution to such decision.

(3) If the party to whose decision the partners have agreed to refer is unwilling or unable to fix the shares or fails to fix such shares within the time agreed upon by the parties or, in the absence of an agreement, within the time of one month, the partnership is null.

Nullity of certain agreements.

1668. (1) Any agreement whereby one of the partners is to have the whole of the profits is null.

(2) Any agreement whereby the capitals or things brought into the partnership by one or more of the partners are to be exempt from any contribution to losses is likewise null.

Rights, powers and obligations of managing partner
similar to those of a mandatary.

1669. Unless it has been otherwise agreed or unless it is otherwise provided in this Code, the rights, powers and obligations of any partner charged with the management of the partnership are governed by the provisions relating to the rights, powers and obligations of a mandatary.

managing partner.

1670. (1) The partner having the management of the partnership under a special covenant in the contract of partnership may, notwithstanding the opposition of the other partners, perform all such acts as appertain to the management with which he is charged, provided he acts without fraud.

(2) Such power may not be revoked without sufficient cause during the continuance of the partnership; but if such power has been given by any instrument subsequent to the contract of partnership it is revocable in the same manner as an ordinary mandate.

1671. Where several partners are charged with the management of the partnership, without their respective duties being specified, or without it being stated that one of them cannot act without the other, each of them may perform separately all acts appertaining to such management.

Where several partners are charged with management.

1672. Where it has been stipulated that one of the managing partners cannot do anything without the other, one of them alone cannot act without the other without a new agreement, even though the latter be in the actual impossibility of taking part in the acts of management, unless the matter is urgent and such that if the act is omitted a serious and irreparable loss to the partnership might ensue.

Joint management.

1673. In the absence of special stipulations as to the mode of management, the following rules shall be observed:

Rules as to management, in the absence of agreement.

- (a) the partners are presumed to have mutually given to each other the power to manage, the one for the other; and whatever is performed by each of them is valid even as regards the shares of the other partners, although their consent shall not have been obtained;
- (b) if the partners are not more than two, each of them may oppose the transaction before it is concluded, saving the right of the other partner to demand the dissolution of the partnership, together with damages, where the opposition is vexatious, or contrary to the object of the partnership, or otherwise seriously prejudicial to the interests of the partnership;
- (c) if the partners are more than two, in case of opposition, the opinion of the majority will prevail, regard being had to the number of all the partners, or, where the decision takes place at a meeting fixed by agreement, or at a meeting at which all the partners shall have been requested to attend, to the number of the partners present at the meeting:

Provided that where the decision of the majority is vexatious, or contrary to the object of the partnership, or calculated to give execution to acts not naturally included in the object of the partnership, or otherwise seriously prejudicial to the interests of the partnership, it shall be lawful for the dissenting partner to demand the dissolution of the partnership, together with damages;

- (d) each partner may make use of the things belonging to the partnership, provided he uses them for the purpose for which by custom they are intended, and does not use them against the interests of the partnership, or in such a manner as to prevent his partners from using them according to their rights;
- (e) each partner has the right to compel the other partners to bear with him the expenses which are necessary for the preservation of the property of the partnership;

- (f) one of the partners cannot make any alterations in the immovable property of the partnership, even though he claims that such alterations are advantageous to the partnership, unless the other partners consent thereto.

Non-managing partner may not alienate property.

1674. A partner who is not a manager cannot alienate or encumber the partnership property, even though such property be movable.

Admission of other partners.

1675. Each partner may, without the consent of his other partners, associate with himself a third party in his share in the partnership; but he cannot, without their consent, introduce such third party into the partnership, even if he has the management thereof.

Sub-title III

OF THE OBLIGATIONS OF PARTNERS TOWARDS THIRD PARTIES

Partners not liable jointly and severally for partnership debts.

1676. The partners are not jointly and severally liable for the partnership debts; and one of the partners cannot bind the others, unless they have given him power to that effect.

Liability of partners having unequal shares in partnership.

1677. The partners are liable to the creditors with whom they have contracted, each one for an equal sum and share, even if the share of one of them in the partnership is smaller, unless the contract has expressly limited the liability of the latter in proportion to his share.

Where obligation is contracted on account of the partnership.

1678. (1) A stipulation to the effect that an obligation is contracted on account of the partnership, binds only the contracting partner and not the others, unless the latter have given him authority to do so or unless the matter has benefited the partnership.

(2) A partner contracting in his own name does not bind his other partners, even though the matter has benefited the partnership, saving any action competent to the persons contracting with him, under the provisions of article 1143.

Sub-title IV

OF THE DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP

How partnership terminates.

1679. A partnership terminates -

- (a) by the expiration of the time for which it was entered into;
- (b) by the extinction of the partnership property, or by the completion of the undertaking for which it was entered into;

- (c) by the death of any partner;
- (d) by the inhibition, whether general or special, of any one of the partners from entering into contracts, or by his insolvency or bankruptcy;
- (e) by the declaration of any one of the partners that he does not wish to continue the partnership.

1680. (1) Where one of the partners has promised to bring into the partnership the ownership of a thing and such thing perishes before the partnership has acquired the ownership thereof, the partnership is dissolved with respect to all the partners.

Loss of thing promised.

(2) The partnership, however, is not dissolved, if the loss of the thing happens after the partnership has acquired the ownership thereof.

1681. Where one of the partners has promised to bring into the partnership the enjoyment of a thing, the loss of the thing produces the dissolution of the partnership, even though the loss happens after the partnership has commenced to enjoy the thing.

Loss of thing the enjoyment whereof has been promised.

1682. (1) It may be stipulated that in case of the death of one of the partners, the partnership shall continue with his heir, or only between the surviving partners.

Agreement to continue partnership in case of death of any one of the partners.

(2) In the latter case, the heir of the deceased is only entitled to a partition of the partnership property having regard to the state of the partnership at the time of the partner's death, and he shall not be entitled to participate in any subsequent right, except in so far as such right is the necessary consequence of transactions made before the death of the partner from whom he inherits.

1683. The dissolution of a partnership at the will of one of the partners may only take place if the partnership is entered into for an undefined time, and it is effected by a renunciation, notice whereof is given to all the other partners, provided such renunciation is made in good faith and not at an inopportune moment.

Dissolution by renunciation.

1684. (1) A renunciation is not in good faith, when the partner renounces for the purpose of appropriating to himself alone the profits which the partners expected to earn jointly.

When renunciation is not in good faith, etc.

(2) It is made at an inopportune moment, when things are no longer in their entirety, and the interest of the partnership requires that its dissolution be postponed.

1685. Any agreement whereby any one of the partners is deprived of the power to demand the dissolution of a partnership entered into for an undefined time, is void.

Agreement precluding dissolution of partnership entered into for an undefined time, is void.

1686. Nevertheless, an agreement is valid whereby the partners reserve to themselves the power to oppose the dissolution demanded by any of them, by releasing him from all his engagements towards the partnership or towards third parties, and paying to him a fixed sum, or the amount of his shares, if the partnership is divided into shares.

Dissolution of partnership entered into for a limited time.	1687. The dissolution of a partnership entered into for a fixed time cannot be demanded before the expiration of such time, unless there be a just cause, such as when one of the partners fails to fulfil his engagements, or a habitual infirmity unfits him for the business of the partnership, or other similar causes the justness and importance of which are left to the discretion of the court.
Rules for partition.	1688. The rules respecting partitions of common property are also applicable to partitions between partners, and to the effects thereof.

Furthermore, but subject to any contrary agreement pursuant to the provisions of article 1696(4), the same rule shall apply if the annuity has been constituted for the benefit of a social purpose foundation or of a charitable trust.

- (d) if he has become bankrupt or insolvent, or his condition has been so altered that the continuance of the payment of the annuity is endangered.

Court may grant time.

1700. (1) In the cases mentioned in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of the last preceding article, the court may grant to the debtor a reasonable time within which to give the security promised, or to substitute other security for that which has failed, or to pay the annuity fallen due, and thus release himself from the obligation of redeeming the annuity.

(2) Such time cannot exceed the period of two months which may, for just cause, be extended to a further period of two months only.

(3) The provisions of article 1520 shall also, in the cases provided for in this article, apply to any other creditor of the debtor, and to any other party interested.

Vesting of thing excluded from donation.	1775. If the donor has excluded a thing from the donation, in order to dispose of it, and does not dispose of such thing either inter vivos or by will, it shall vest in the heirs of the donor, unless the donor himself has expressly declared in the deed of donation that such thing shall vest in the donee if he dies without having disposed of it.

When the reversion takes place, any alienation of the property given is dissolved, and such property reverts to the donor free from any burden or hypothec, with the exception of the hypothec registered in security of the dowry and the dower of the wife of the donee, if his other property is insufficient for that purpose, and the donation was made to him in the same marriage contract by which the dowry was constituted or the dower promised.
Where donation with stipulation of reversion is made in favour of two or more persons.	1781. If a donation containing a stipulation of reversion is made in favour of two or more persons, the condition shall, in case of the predecease of one of such persons or of his descendants, according to the cases mentioned in article 1779, be deemed to have happened with regard to the portion of the party deceased, and the provisions of the last preceding article shall apply with regard to such portion.

1783. (1) In the cases referred to in paragraphs (a), (b), (c) and (d) of the last preceding article, the donee cannot claim from the donor more than the value which the thing given had at the time of the donation; unless, in the case referred to in paragraph (d), the donee has suffered damage to an amount greater than the value of the thing given, in which case the effects of the warranty shall extend to such amount. Revocation does not affect alienations, etc.

1791. (1) Revocation on the ground of ingratitude shall not affect any alienation made by the donee, nor any hypothec or other burden with which he may have charged the property given, previously to the judicial demand for revocation.

(2) The donee, however, is bound to restore to the donor the value of the things alienated, having regard to the time of the aforesaid demand, together with the fruits from the day of such demand, and to indemnify the donor for any hypothec or other burden with which he may have charged the property not alienated.

Donations of property to be left on donor's death.

1795. (1) The donation referred to in the last preceding article is irrevocable in this sense only, that the donor can no longer dispose, under a gratuitous title, of the things included in the donation, except as regards small sums by way of remuneration or otherwise, unless he has reserved to himself a more ample power of disposing.

(3) Nevertheless, where the donation was made in terms of article 1796 and, at the death of the donor, the donee wishes to avail himself of the power, granted to him in that article, to retain for himself the property existing at the time of the donation subject to the obligation of discharging only the debts and burdens existing at that time, the donee shall be entitled to demand the dissolution of any alienation, even if made under an onerous title, which the donor may have made of immovables included in that property, and of any hypothec or other burden with which the donor himself may have charged such immovables, provided the donation was registered in accordance with the provisions of article 996.

(2) The provisions of this article shall also apply in favour of children born before the donation, and legitimated by the marriage in contemplation of which the donation was made.

Marriage presents.

1802. Presents which relations or friends of one of the future spouses give to the other in contemplation of marriage shall be deemed to have been given to the former, notwithstanding that in making such presents words were used implying a donation in favour of the latter, unless, independently of such words, it is proved that the intention of the donor was that of giving such things to the future spouse to whom he has delivered them.

Suretyship to be only in respect of a valid obligation. Amended by: XLVI.1973.98.	1926. (1) Suretyship can only exist in respect of a valid obligation. (2) Nevertheless, suretyship may be contracted for an obligation which can be annulled on some plea personal to the debtor, as for instance, that of disability arising from minority or interdiction.
Suretyship cannot exceed debt.	1927. (1) Suretyship cannot exceed what is due by the debtor, nor be contracted under more onerous conditions. (2) It may be contracted for a part only of the debt, and under less onerous conditions. Any person may become surety without knowledge of debtor.	1928. (1) Any person may become surety without the request and even without the knowledge of the party for whom he binds himself. (2) A person may also become surety, not only for the principal debtor, but also for his surety.

 - (c) if the debtor can set up a personal plea, such as those mentioned in article 1926;
 - (d) if the debtor has become insolvent.
- When benefit of discussion does not apply.

1936. When the benefit of discussion has been admitted, the creditor is, to the extent of the property stated in the list produced in accordance with the provisions contained in Sub-title VIII of Title II of Book Third of the Code of Organization and Civil Procedure, liable towards the surety for the insolvency of the principal debtor which has supervened in consequence of the creditor himself having delayed the institution or proceedings or the prosecution with due diligence of the proceedings commenced. Liability of creditor, when benefit of discussion is admitted.
Cap. 12.

1937. (1) When several persons have become sureties for the same debtor and the same debt, each one shall be liable for the whole debt. When several persons have become sureties for the same debtor.

(2) Nevertheless, each one of them may, unless he has renounced the benefit of division, or unless he has bound himself jointly and severally with the debtor, demand that the creditor should divide his action and reduce it to the share due by each surety.

1938. If, at the time when one of the sureties has obtained such division, some of them are insolvent he is liable proportionately for the shares of those who are insolvent; but no claim can be made against him in respect of the share of any other surety who becomes Insolvency of co-sureties.

Surety in commercial matters.	1941. In commercial matters, the surety is always, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, presumed to be bound jointly and severally with the debtor.

(2) This right of relief shall extend both to the capital and to the interest and expenses: Provided that with regard to expenses, the surety has no right to relief except for those incurred after he has, by means of a judicial act, given notice to the principal debtor of the molestations which he has sustained.
Interest and damages due to surety.	1943. (1) He may also claim relief for interest on any sum that he has paid for the debtor, although the debt did not yield interest, as well as for damages, if any. Where suretyship is given against will of debtor.	1944. If the suretyship has been contracted against the will of the debtor, the surety shall not be entitled to relief against the debtor except to the extent of the advantage accruing to him.

When there are several principal debtors jointly and severally bound for the same debt, the person who stands surety for all of them, has against each one of them a right of relief for the whole of the amount he has paid.

1947. (1) A surety has no right to relief against the principal debtor, if the latter, not having been notified by the surety of the payment made by him, pays as well.

When surety forfeits his right of relief against debtor.

(2) A surety who has paid without having notified the principal debtor, has no right to relief against the latter, if, at the time of the payment, the debtor was in possession of such means as would have enabled him to have the debt declared extinct.

(3) In each of the aforesaid cases the right of the surety to an action for recovery against the creditor remains unimpaired.

(2) The surety is entitled to such relief only if he has paid in any of the cases mentioned in the last preceding article.

1950. A surety who has discharged the debt may only claim from each of his co-sureties the amount for which each co-surety is liable and is himself liable, together with the other co-sureties, for contribution in respect of the shares of the insolvent sureties, even though, on paying, he may have obtained from the creditor an express assignment of the latter's rights.

Interruption to be inoperative if action is withdrawn, etc.

(2) With regard to the withdrawal or the dismissal of an action, the provisions of this article shall not apply in cases where the plaintiff can, according to law, re-institute the action, provided such action is so re-instituted before the same or another court within one month from the day of its previous withdrawal or dismissal, and service thereof is effected in the manner and within the times established in the two preceding articles, as the case may be.

Interruption by acknowledgment,

2133. Prescription is interrupted if the debtor or possessor acknowledges the right of the party against whom such prescription had commenced.

by payment on account.

2134. Prescription is also interrupted by a payment on account of the debt, made by the debtor himself or by a person acting in his behalf.

Effects of interruption in regard to surety.

2135. The acknowledgment of the debt made by the principal debtor, or any other act which interrupts prescription as against such debtor, shall also be effectual as an interruption against the surety, saving, where the surety has bound himself jointly and severally with the principal debtor, the provisions of articles 1100 and 1101.

Period already elapsed not to be reckoned.

Sub-title IV

OF THE TIME REQUIRED FOR PRESCRIPTION

Commencement of prescription.

2137. Subject to any other provisions of the law, the prescription of an action commences to run from the day on which such action can be exercised, irrespective of the state or condition of the person to whom the action is competent.

Reckoning of prescriptive period.

2138. (1) Prescription is reckoned by whole days, and not by hours.

(2) The days are running days: the months are reckoned according to the calendar.

When prescription is completed.
*Amended by:

2139. (1) Prescription is completed immediately upon the expiration of the last day of the prescriptive period.

(2) Nevertheless, if the last day is a Saturday or a public holiday, prescription shall be completed upon the expiration of the next following day, not being a Saturday or a public holiday.

§ I. OF PRESCRIPTION OF TEN, THIRTY AND FORTY YEARS

2140. (1) Any person who in good faith and under a title capable of transferring ownership possesses an immovable thing for a period of ten years acquires ownership thereof. Prescription of ten years.

(2) If the title derives from an act which, according to law, must be registered in the Public Registry, the prescriptive period does not commence to run except from the day of the registration of such act.

2141. Good faith must not only exist at the time of acquisition, but must continue during the whole prescriptive period. Good faith.

2142. (1) The bad faith of a previous possessor does not prejudice his successor, whether universal or singular. Bad faith of predecessor does not prejudice successor.

(2) Nevertheless, in any such case the successor may not, for the purposes of prescription, conjoin his possession with that of his predecessor.

2143. All actions, whether real, personal, or mixed, are barred by the lapse of thirty years, and no opposition to the benefit of limitation may be made on the ground of the absence of title or good faith. Limitation of real, personal or mixed actions.

2144. (1) The prescriptive period referred to in articles 2140 and 2143 shall not apply in the case of immovables subject to entail, or of immovables or actions belonging or competent to churches or other pious institutions. Prescription of forty years.

(2) In the cases referred to in the said articles, prescription as regards property or actions mentioned in sub-article (1) of this article is only completed by the lapse of forty years, provided that no opposition to the benefit of limitation may be made on the ground of the absence of title or good faith.

2145. (1) The provisions of the last preceding article shall also apply in the case of a right, even if ecclesiastical, which cannot be exercised but seldom. Rights which cannot be exercised but seldom.

(2) In any such case, however, the party pleading prescription must, besides the lapse of forty years, prove also that, within such period, there were at least three occasions on which such right could have been exercised, and that on each occasion he exercised such right, or, as the case may be, that the party to whom such right was competent failed on each occasion to exercise it.

2146. (1) After twenty-five years from the date of the last writing, the debtor of an annuity or other yearly payment which is to continue for more than thirty years may be compelled to give to the creditor or to the person claiming under him, a new writing containing an acknowledgment of the debt, or a declaration of the payments made. Obligation of debtor in the case of an annuity.

(2) The creditor may require such writing to be, at his expense, made by means of a public deed.

- (b) the assets of such cell shall be available for the fulfilment of any obligations undertaken by the organisation in relation to that cell but not for any other liabilities entered into by the organisation for itself or in respect of other cells;
- (c) the general assets of an organisation shall not be available for the fulfilment of the obligations undertaken in relation to the cell; and

- (d) there shall be implied (except in so far as the same is expressly excluded in writing) in every transaction entered into by an organisation with segregated cells the following terms that -
- (i) no party shall seek, whether in any proceedings or by any other means whatsoever, to make or attempt to use any assets attributable to any cell to satisfy a liability not attributable to that cell; and
 - (ii) if any party succeeds by any means whatsoever in using any assets attributable to any cell to satisfy a liability not attributable to that cell, that party shall be liable to pay to the organisation a sum equal to the value of the benefit thereby obtained by him; and
 - (iii) any asset or sum recovered by the organisation under the implied term set out in this paragraph or by any other means whatsoever in the events referred to herein shall, after the deduction or payment of any costs of recovery, be applied by the organisation so as to compensate the cell affected.

(6) When a segregated cell is established the assets of the cell must be segregated from all other assets of the organisation and are held and administered separately and distinct accounts must be maintained in accordance with applicable law in relation to each cell. The existence or termination of each cell must be disclosed in the reports and accounts of the organisation.

(7) The legal effects stated in subarticle (6) shall arise only if -

- (a) all activities relating to a cell shall be undertaken in a manner that it is expressly disclosed to third parties that the activities are those in respect of the particular cell:

Provided that such requirement shall be satisfied if third parties are otherwise aware or ought, from the circumstances, to be aware of the fact that the activities undertaken are those in respect of the particular cell;

- (b) no statement or representation is made by the administrators of the organisation to the effect that the organisation is liable for the obligations undertaken in respect of the cell;
- (c) the cell is established in accordance with this article and all relative procedures and formalities are observed at all times.

(8) When the conditions in subarticle (7) are satisfied, no court shall order the issue of any warrant, precautionary or executive, against the assets of a cell in respect of a claim for which the organisation or another cell is liable. In the event of enforcement on any assets attributable to a cell in respect of a liability not attributable to that cell, and in so far as such assets or compensation in respect thereof cannot otherwise be restored to the cell affected, the organisation shall -

- (a) cause or procure its auditor, acting as expert and not as arbitrator, to certify the value of the assets lost by the cell affected; and
- (b) transfer or pay to the cell affected, from the assets to which the liability was attributable to the extent available, assets or sums sufficient to restore to the cell affected the value of the assets lost.

(9) The rules, including without limitation the rules applicable to dissolution and winding up, applicable to the legal form of an organisation within which a cell is established shall apply to the cell as though the cell were itself a registered organisation of the same legal form. The winding up of a cell due to its inability to honour its debts shall not affect the continuing operation of the organisation or other cells in any manner whatsoever and the appointment of a receiver or liquidator for a cell shall not affect the powers of the administrators in relation to the organisation or any other cells.

(10) The provisions of fiscal law which apply to legal persons shall mutatis mutandis apply to a cell as though the cell were itself a registered organisation of the same legal form of the organisation within which the cell is established.

(11) The Minister may make regulations to regulate segregated cells, in general or for particular legal forms of organisations, and to regulate any matters related or incidental thereto, including on the dissolution of cells and on the transfer of assets of a cell to another organisation, with or without segregated cells, and the legal effect of such transfer.

Conversion of legal persons of one legal form into another legal form and to trusts.

21. (1) It shall be lawful to convert a legal person in one form to a legal person having a different form by following the procedures which may be laid down in any regulations made by the Minister responsible for justice in terms of this article.

(2) When a legal person in one form is converted into another form it shall not be necessary to dissolve and wind up the legal person and such legal person shall continue to exist as the same legal person with all rights and subject to all obligations existing prior to the conversion.

(3) It shall also be lawful to convert a registered organisation into a trust for the benefit of the persons beneficially interested in the organisation by following the procedures which may be laid down in any regulations made by the Minister responsible for justice in terms of this article.

(4) When a legal person is converted into a trust, the trustee shall succeed to all rights and obligations of the legal person and it shall not be required to dissolve and wind up the legal person as required by the applicable law. The legal person shall be struck off from the register in which it is registered subject to the conditions as may be laid down by regulations.

(5) The conversion of a legal person into another form or into a trust shall not operate to prejudice any creditor or third party in any manner whatsoever.

22. (1) It shall be lawful to amalgamate two or more organisations into one and to divide an organisation into two or more organisations. For this purpose, unless otherwise provided by regulations by the Minister in relation to a particular legal form, the provisions of the Companies Act shall mutatis mutandis apply and the functions of the general meeting, in case of foundations, shall be carried out by the administrators and any persons whose consent is required for material decisions to be taken by the administrators.

Amalgamation and division of legal persons.

Cap. 386.

(2) In the absence of specific rules or regulations by the Minister on a particular legal form, the provisions of fiscal law which apply to amalgamations and divisions of companies shall mutatis mutandis apply to amalgamations and divisions of any other legal form of a registered organisation.

- (b) nothing in this Schedule shall imply the right to register as a legal person in the Register if the organisation is already registered in another public register the effect of which is the grant of legal personality to such organisation, nor the option to register as a legal person with a particular legal form in a register other than that stated in the special law applicable to that form; and
- (c) the Registrar shall not have jurisdiction in relation to legal persons which are the subject of special laws applicable to their particular legal form unless expressly granted such jurisdiction in such special law or regulations made hereunder. 26. (1) A foundation is an organisation consisting of a universality of things constituted in writing, including by means of a will, by a founder or founders whereby assets are destined either - Definition of foundation.

- (a) for the fulfilment of a specified purpose; or
- (b) for the benefit of a named person or class of persons, and are entrusted to the administration of a designated person or persons. The patrimony, namely assets and liabilities, of the foundation is kept distinct from that of its founder, administrators or any beneficiaries.

(2) For the purposes of this Title, the term "foundation" shall include all organisations, institutes or similarly titled patrimonies which are set up through the bequest, endowment or appropriation of assets, by public deed or otherwise and howsoever named, for a stated purpose or for the benefit of a named person or class of persons, to be achieved through a designated administrator or administrators, but shall not include trusts as defined in the Trusts and Trustees Act. Cap. 331.

(3) The assets of a foundation may originate from any lawful business or activity and may consist of present or future assets of any nature.

(4) When a testamentary bequest is made having the elements contemplated in subarticle (1), a testamentary executor or the heirs of a deceased person shall be deemed to enjoy the power to convert such bequest into a foundation having the same aims and purposes as stated in the will, and register the same. The testamentary executor or heirs shall have the power, which shall be exercised with the utmost good faith, to draft the terms and conditions of the statute of the foundation, designate the administrators and regulate all matters which may appear to them to be relevant to comply with the requirements of registration and the wishes of the testator.

(5) Pious foundations established for purposes as defined in applicable religious laws shall not be subject to or in any manner regulated by this Schedule and shall continue to be regulated by the relative religious laws unless they opt to register as foundations in terms of this Schedule in which case they shall be regulated by the provisions of this Code from such date.

(6) Foundations in the form of marriage legacies shall continue to be regulated by the laws in force on the 31st December, 2006 unless they opt to register as foundations in terms of this Schedule in which case they shall be regulated by the provisions of this Schedule from such date.

(7) When a foundation is established exclusively for a charitable, philanthropic or other social purpose or as a non-profit organisation or for any other lawful purpose it shall be referred to as a "purpose foundation" and when it is established for private benefit it shall be referred to as a "private foundation". Unless evident from the statute, a foundation shall be considered to be a private foundation.

Definition of association.

27. (1) An association is an agreement between three or more persons to establish an organisation with defined aims or purposes to be achieved through the dedication of efforts and resources by such persons and others who may join voluntarily, the patrimony, namely assets and liabilities, if any, of the association being distinct from that of the members, its administrators or any beneficiaries.

(2) Associations are not bound to register as legal persons but are entitled to do so.

Hybrid organisations.

28. (1) When an organisation -

(a) is established as a foundation but has features of an association or vice-versa; and

(b) qualifies for registration both as a foundation and an association;

it shall be referred to herein as a "hybrid organisation" and shall be regulated by the following provisions of this article.

(2) A hybrid organisation shall be bound to register as a foundation unless it amends its statute to that of an association prior to the lapse of two calendar years from the relevant date.

(3) The administrators shall be bound to pay regard to the provisions of this Schedule on both foundations and associations in their administration, and this until such time as the statute of the organisation is amended to clearly elect one form or other of organisation.

(4) Where action to modify the statute of a hybrid organisation is not taken by the founders or members, or it is impossible or impracticable to do so, the administrators of a hybrid organisation may at any time apply to the Court to sanction such modifications as are appropriate to clarify the legal form of such organisation either as a foundation or an association and the Court shall issue such orders as it deems appropriate, including amendments to the statute and the name of the organisation, after considering all evidence submitted to it and after hearing interested parties who may wish to make submissions.

(5) In reaching a decision in terms of the preceding subarticle, the Court shall inter alia pay regard to the initial intentions of the promoters, the purposes of the organisation and its current operations, the rights of beneficiaries or members, the future fulfilment of its purposes and management of the organisation.

(6) The Court shall also have the power to order, upon application of the administrators, the re-organisation of the organisation by the creation of other organisations whereby one or more promoters, founders, members or beneficiaries, as the case may be:

(a) cease to be treated as founders or otherwise of a foundation and, or form an association with the sole purpose of supporting the said foundation or enjoying the benefits of membership; or

- (b) cease to be treated as members of an association and, or form a foundation to achieve the stated purposes without any benefits of membership; or
- (c) direct otherwise so as to ensure the effective achievement of the initial purposes of the organisation.

(7) In making such an order the Court shall ensure that neither the purposes of the organisation nor any vested rights of any person shall be affected, nor shall any obligations other than those freely undertaken by any person arise from such modification or reorganisation.

Sub-Title II

Of Foundations

29. (1) A foundation may only be constituted by virtue of a public deed inter vivos or by a will.

Form and content of the statute.

(2) The deed of foundation shall contain, on pain of nullity, an endowment of money or property worth at least one thousand and one hundred and sixty-four euro and sixty-nine cents (€1,164.69) except in the case of a foundation established exclusively for a social purpose or as non-profit making in which case the endowment shall be worth at least two hundred and thirty-two euro and ninety-four cents (€232.94).

(3) When the property endowed is not cash or other asset, the value of which appears on the face of it, the administrators shall declare, in a statement which shall be attached to the application form for registration, that in their considered opinion the property endowed upon or vested in the foundation has a value of at least the amount required by this article:

Provided that a foundation which has been duly registered shall not lose its eligibility to remain registered if, subsequent to registration, the value of its assets is reduced to less than the amount required by this article.

(4) The deed of foundation shall, on pain of nullity, state the following:

- (a) the name of the foundation, which shall include the word "foundation";
- (b) the registered address, in Malta;
- (c) the purposes or objects;
- (d) the constitutive assets with which it is formed;
- (e) the composition of the board of administration and the names of the first administrators, and if not yet appointed, the method of their appointment;
- (f) the legal representation;
- (g) the term for which it is established, if any;

- (h) in the case of a foundation, the administrators of which are non-residents of Malta, the name and address of a person resident in Malta who has been appointed to act as the local representative of the foundation in Malta; and
- (i) in the case of a private foundation, either the names of beneficiaries, or, in the absence of such indication, a declaration that the foundation is constituted for the benefit of beneficiaries. In the latter case the beneficiaries shall be indicated in a written instrument, which need not form part of the public deed, called the "beneficiary statement", signed by the founder and addressed to the administrators, and the same shall be authenticated by the Notary Public who publishes the deed of foundation.

(5) The statute shall be signed by the founders and any person subscribing to the statute after a foundation is established shall be deemed to have consented to all the provisions of the statute and all rules which may have been validly promulgated by the foundation until such date. In the event that more than three founders wish to establish a foundation, a statement may be made of this fact in the statute and the signature of three founders on behalf of all founding members stated in a schedule to the statute shall be sufficient to indicate the consent of all stated founders.

(6) The written consent of the administrators named in the statute to act as administrators of the foundation must be delivered to the Registrar prior to registration of any foundation.

(7) It shall not be lawful to state a term in excess of one hundred years except in case of a purpose foundation, a foundation used as a collective investment vehicle or a foundation used in a securitisation transaction which may be established for an unlimited term. When no term is specified, a foundation shall be valid for one hundred years from its establishment. In the event that a longer term is stated in a deed it shall terminate on the hundredth anniversary from when it came into existence. The limitation on duration also applies in the case a foundation results from the conversion of another organisation or of a trust in accordance with this Schedule and any regulations. In such a case periods of existence shall be considered cumulatively.

(8) Article 1753(1) of this Code shall not apply to endowments in favour of registered foundations.

(9) Foundations established in accordance with this Schedule are not prohibited by articles 331, 757 to 761 and 1776 of this Code.

(10) Article 586 of this Code shall not affect any term of a foundation because it relates to the inheritance of the founder or because the provisions relating to property belonging to the foundation are to take effect after the death of the founder.

(11) (a) The provisions of this Schedule shall apply to dispositions in wills in favour of foundations, whether such foundations are created inter vivos or by testamentary disposition, and this notwithstanding the provisions of articles 688, 693 and 695 and other similar provisions of the Civil Code.

- (b) The administrators of a foundation may not renounce to a benefit to the foundation under a will pursuant to a disposition in its favour except with the prior consent of the beneficiaries or the court. In such an event, if the administrator is not willing to accept to act as an administrator or to continue in such office, the provisions of article 35 of this Schedule shall apply.

(12) The provisions of this Title shall apply to all foundations existing on the coming into force of this provision but existing foundations will not be obliged to comply with the requirements in subarticle (2) and shall comply with the requirements of subarticle (3) only upon registration. Nothing in this Schedule shall render invalid anything done prior to the coming into force of this law which was valid when done.

30. It shall be the obligation of all designated administrators of any foundation, other than pious foundations and marriage legacies, established after the coming into effect of this Title to register such foundation in terms of this Schedule within the periods stated in this Title.

Obligation to register.

31. (1) For the purpose of registration of a foundation -

- (b) in the case of a private foundation the constitutive deed without the beneficiary statement, if any, and a note of reference referring only to the founder shall be filed with the Registrar.

(2) Where the foundation is created by a public deed an authentic copy thereof is to be delivered by -

- (i) the founder; or
- (ii) after having accepted to act as such, the administrators appointed in the said deed; or
- (iii) the Notary publishing the deed.

(3) Where the foundation is created by a will, an extract of the relevant part, duly authenticated, is to be delivered by a testamentary executor or by the heirs:

Provided that a testamentary executor may deliver the same even before being confirmed by the Court to act as such.

(4) Where the foundation is created by a secret will the said extract is to be delivered by the Notary publishing the secret will or by the heirs.

(5) The heirs mentioned in subarticles (3) and (4) who do not intend to declare or who have not yet declared their intention to accept the inheritance or who have accepted the inheritance with the benefit of inventory shall nonetheless be liable for the delivery of the said extracts but such delivery shall not of itself be evidence of the acceptance or the unconditional acceptance of the inheritance.

(6) The said delivery is to be effected within three months which period is to run -

- (a) if the foundation is created by a public deed, from the date of such deed;
- (b) if it is created by a public will, from the date of death of the founder; and
- (c) if it is created by a secret will, from the date of the publication of the will.

(7) The said delivery may be made by any one of the persons mentioned in subarticles (2), (3) and (4), either personally or by an authorized agent.

(8) On receipt of the documents mentioned in subarticle (1), the Registrar shall -

- (a) register the foundation, on being satisfied that all the provisions of this Sub-Title have been complied with; or
- (b) refuse to register the foundation, informing the applicant in writing of the reasons for such refusal.

(9) The Registrar shall have the right to require any information from any person, if such information is deemed by him to be necessary for registration of a foundation but, in the case of a private foundation, shall not be entitled to request a copy of the beneficiary statement from the administrators or the Notary Public:

Provided that nothing in this subarticle shall limit any powers of the Malta Financial Services Authority under applicable law.

(10) If the delivery prescribed in subarticle (1) is not made within the period established in subarticle (6), the persons mentioned in subarticles (2), (3) and (4) shall be liable to a penalty, payable to the Registrar, of two hundred and thirty-two euro and ninety-four cents (€232.94) each:

Provided that no person shall be liable for failure to observe this obligation if he is unaware of the death of the founder or any other relevant fact.

Cap. 12.

(11) The provisions of article 636(2) and (3) of the Code of Organization and Civil Procedure shall apply to the extracts contemplated in this article.

(12) Without limiting the accessibility by persons with a legitimate interest of the registration records of a private foundation and all information therein contained as well as any changes thereto, the Registrar shall implement procedures to ensure the privacy of private foundations, their assets, activities and beneficiaries.

(13) The documents of private foundations, other than those which are registered, which may be in the possession of the Registrar shall not be made available to third parties without the prior written consent of the administrators, the supervisory council, if any, or the Court and only when it is satisfied that such third parties have a legitimate interest in the information.

32. (1) A foundation may be established for the achievement of a lawful purpose, including a social purpose, without beneficiaries as provided in article 26(7). The Registrar shall not register such a foundation unless the purpose is indicated in clear terms.

Purpose
foundations.

(2) The founder, or if permitted by the statute, an other body or person, may amend or add to the purpose of a foundation by means of an additional public deed. After the death of the founder, the Court may authorise such amendment or addition to the purpose on the application of any administrator, supervisory council or other interested party.

(3) The deed of foundation may indicate the way in which the moneys or property of the foundation may be used for the attainment of the purpose for which the foundation is established and when no such indication is made the administrators may exercise their discretion.

(4) The deed of a foundation may indicate how the assets of the foundation are to be applied if its purpose is achieved, exhausted or becomes impossible and when no such indication is made, the administrators or the supervisory council may make specific proposals to the Court for authorisation to use or dispose of the assets, unless the founder amends the purpose in terms of subarticle (3). Any disposal of assets shall be made only to another purpose foundation with similar purposes.

(5) When the dominant purpose of a foundation is to support a class of persons which constitute a sector within the community as a whole, because of a particular social, physical or other need they may have or disability they may suffer from, the indication of such a class of persons or one or more members of such a class shall not render it a private foundation but it shall be treated as a purpose foundation in terms of this article.

32A. (1) A foundation may not be established to trade or carry on commercial activities, even if the proceeds of such efforts are destined to social purposes, except that:

Foundations not to
trade.

- (a) a foundation may be endowed with commercial property or a shareholding in a profit making enterprise, a franchise, a trade mark or other asset which gives rise to income, as well as a ship as long as the organisation is only the passive owner of such assets;
- (b) a foundation may, subject to such authorisations as may be necessary under applicable laws, be used as a collective investment vehicle, and issue units to investors therein, for the passive holding of a common pool of assets, the management of which is delegated to a third party, including a pension or employee benefit arrangements; and

- (c) a foundation may be used as a vehicle for the purpose of a securitisation transaction, borrow monies against the issue of bonds and do all relative and ancillary acts.

(2) Nothing in this article shall hinder or limit in any way the administrators from protecting the rights of the foundation in relation to such assets or to delegating the management of such assets to a third party.

Private foundations.

33. (1) A foundation may be established for the private benefit of one or more persons or of a class of persons and such beneficiaries shall enjoy such benefits, and shall have legally enforceable rights against the foundation, as may be stated in the terms of the foundation and the provisions of this Schedule. Foundations imply fiduciary obligations under this Code upon all persons administering them.

(2) The interest of the beneficiary under a foundation shall be deemed to be movable property even if it includes immovable property.

(3) The benefit under a foundation is personal to the beneficiary and subject to any applicable laws and only as stated in the terms of the foundation, creditors, spouses, heirs or legatees of the beneficiary may have rights only to the extent of the beneficiary's entitlements under the foundation and have no other rights in relation to the assets of the foundation. Unless otherwise provided for in the deed of foundation expressly, by the type of benefit granted to the beneficiary or otherwise, upon the death of the beneficiary the beneficiary's entitlement under a foundation shall not devolve to his heirs but shall terminate. If the foundation terminates for any other reason at law the assets of the foundation shall, subject to the terms of the foundation, devolve on the founder or his heirs at law.

(4) Private foundations must name:

- (a) the class of persons entitled to benefit as clearly and as fully as possible; or
- (b) the person or persons entitled to benefit as clearly and as fully as possible, by specifying first names, surnames, identity card numbers, father's name, mother's name and maiden surname and other relevant personal or family factors to eliminate any doubt as to who the intended beneficiary is,

and if there are no beneficiaries identifiable or ascertainable as aforesaid the foundation, the foundation shall be deemed to be for the private benefit of the founders or their successors in title.

Such identification need not be made in the deed constituting the foundation but may be made in a separate beneficiary statement in accordance with article 29(4)(i) of this Schedule.

(5) Persons who are not yet conceived at the time of the creation of a foundation may be named as beneficiaries or form part of a class of beneficiaries but their rights arise only once they are born viable.

(6) The founder of a foundation may also be a beneficiary.

(7) Subject to the terms of the deed of foundation, if the founders are still alive and capable of acting they may freely amend the deed and substitute, add or remove beneficiaries:

Provided that no decision of a founder shall affect the validity of anything lawfully done by the administrators prior to such decision, before he receives notice of such amendment, nor shall it affect or interrupt lawful acts in progress or lawful commitments made and not yet fulfilled by the administrators.

(8) A beneficiary may be appointed -

- (a) subject to a condition; or
- (b) for a specified time; or
- (c) up to a specified value of benefit,

as a founder shall deem appropriate:

Provided that, if the founder is deceased, a beneficiary may apply to the Court requesting it to eliminate any condition or requirement which is considered to be unreasonable paying regard to all the circumstances:

Provided further that persons unworthy of receiving under a will cannot receive as beneficiaries under a foundation.

(9) The terms of the foundation may provide for the addition of a person as a beneficiary or the exclusion of a beneficiary from benefit at the discretion of the administrators.

(10) The terms of a foundation may make the interest of a beneficiary -

- (a) liable to termination; or
- (b) subject to restriction on alienation or dealing; or
- (c) subject to diminution or termination in the event of the beneficiary becoming bankrupt, or insolvent, or any of his property becoming liable to seizure for the benefit of his creditors; or
- (d) not liable to attachment under a garnishee order issued against the administrator or to termination without the prior consent of the Court, when the interest is expressed to be for the maintenance of the beneficiary or as a pension.

(11) Where the benefit consists in an annuity or pension or the use and enjoyment of property and the enjoyment of fruits therefrom, the terms of the foundation may make the interests of the beneficiary -

- (a) subject to restriction on alienation or dealing;
- (b) not liable to attachment under a garnishee order served on the administrators as garnishees; or
- (c) not liable to termination without the prior consent of the Court.

(12) When the administrator is granted the power to add a beneficiary at his discretion, such power shall be valid on condition that sufficient indication be given in the deed of foundation or in the beneficiary statement as to the class of which the beneficiary forms part. In the absence of such indication the power shall be null and void.

(13) A person who may be appointed a beneficiary in terms of a power or discretion granted to the administrator shall not enjoy any rights in relation to the foundation or vis-à-vis the administrator and shall not be considered a beneficiary in any manner until appointed as a beneficiary by the administrator.

(14) It shall be lawful for an administrator to be granted the power to decide at his absolute discretion, which beneficiaries are to benefit, the quantity of any benefit, at what time and in what manner beneficiaries are to benefit and such other powers relating to the appointment, application or advancement of property of the foundation.

(15) A beneficiary in whose favour a discretion to distribute or appoint property may be exercised shall have no rights to specific property of the foundation until such time as such discretion is exercised by the appointment, application or advancement of such property in his favour.

(16) A beneficiary may disclaim his whole interest in writing and such a disclaimer shall be irrevocable.

(17) Subject to the terms of the deed of foundation, a beneficiary may disclaim part of his interest, whether or not he has received some benefit from his interest; in any such case, but subject to the terms of the foundation, a disclaimer may, by the instrument by which the interest is disclaimed, be made revocable, and shall then be capable of revocation in the manner and under the circumstances therein mentioned or referred to.

(18) Subject to the terms of the foundation, a beneficiary may, by instrument in writing, sell, charge, transfer or otherwise deal with his interest in any manner.

(19) Subject to the terms of the foundation, the following rules shall apply where a foundation, or an interest under a foundation, is in favour of a class of persons:

- (a) a class closes when it is no longer possible for any other person to become a member of a class;
- (b) a woman who is over the age of fifty-five years shall be deemed to be no longer capable of bearing a child;
- (c) where any class interest relates to income and for any period there is no member of the class in existence, the income shall be accumulated and, subject to article 29(7), shall be retained until there is a member of the class in existence or the class closes.

34. (1) The founder, or any other person with his consent, may add to the assets of a foundation by additional endowments at any time. Augmentation of fund.

(2) Third parties, with the concurrence of the founder, the supervisory council, the administrators or, in default of such persons, with the concurrence of the Court, may augment the endowment of a purpose foundation by a new endowment:

Provided that, when such augmentation by third parties is made by means of a will, failing concurrence by the founders, the administrators or the Court, such a testamentary disposition is to be deemed to require the creation of a new foundation and the nominated administrators shall proceed accordingly.

(3) The administrators shall be bound to file with the Registrar, within three months from any grant, an inventory or descriptive note of the assets added to a foundation but in the case of cash endowments, only a certified copy of the relative bank deposit statement shall be filed with the Registrar.

(4) In case of a purpose foundation, endowments made to such foundations shall be deemed to be received for the purposes of the foundation. In the event that endowments are received by such foundation in a regular manner in terms of a scheme which is registered with the Registrar, it shall not be required that the administrators file a descriptive note on each occasion that an additional endowment is made but that they shall file documentation on endowments on an annual basis.

(5) Endowments may be granted under a condition, for a fixed time or in accordance with express rules of a foundation. In the absence of any indication every endowment shall be deemed to have been made unconditionally.

(6) Endowments to purpose foundations shall be irrevocable notwithstanding any term to the contrary in the deed of constitution.

(7) Unless expressly stated otherwise, endowments to foundations shall be deemed to be irrevocable. The fact that an endowment is stated to be revocable, unless otherwise stated in the deed of constitution, shall not imply any limitation on the use or appointment of the capital or income by the administrators. In the case of revocation, the grantor shall only be entitled to the balance of capital which may remain unutilised.

(8) Where an endowment is made by two or more grantors jointly and expressed to be revocable such endowment may only be revoked with the express consent of all the grantors.

(9) Revocation of an endowment shall not affect or invalidate acts already carried out or interrupt acts in progress, nor affect commitments made and not yet fulfilled. Revocation of an endowment shall be suspended until such time as the administrators certify to the Registrar that all commitments have been fulfilled and shall be deemed to refer only to such amount as shall not have been utilised in fulfilment of such commitment.

(10) The revocation of an endowment shall not imply the termination of a foundation unless the effect of such revocation shall result in the exhaustion of all the property of the foundation.

(11) If a foundation is the beneficiary of an endowment which is granted for specific purposes different from those of the recipient foundation, the administrators shall seek new instructions from the grantor and if that is not possible they shall apply to the Court for directions.

(12) The term "endowment" for the purposes of this Title shall mean any grant of money or other property, including rights to money or other property, existing or which may arise in the future.

Administrators of foundations.

35. (1) The persons named to be administrators of a foundation may be juridical persons provided they have at least three directors.

(2) Purpose foundations shall have at least three administrators or at least one juridical person acting as administrator.

(3) If the person nominated as an administrator in the constitutive deed is unwilling or unable to accept such responsibility, then he shall, within fifteen days, notify his intentions in writing to the Registrar, the founder or his heirs and the persons named as succeeding, if any. The taking of possession of any assets of a foundation shall imply acceptance to act as an administrator thereof and in such a case the administrator is bound to confirm his acceptance in writing to so act on demand of any interested person or the Registrar. Failure to do so within thirty days from a written request shall be a breach of duty by the administrator.

(4) Any person named or appointed to succeed in administration shall enter into the same obligations as if he were the person named in the first place and shall notify the Registrar in writing upon taking up office. It shall be lawful for an administrator upon taking up office, but not later than thirty days after, to notify in writing the Registrar and any interested parties of any reservations he may have regarding anything relating to the foundation or the actions of the previous administrators and he shall not be liable for any matters so reserved until such time as the reservations are operative.

(5) When administrators, both those originally named or those succeeding, have made any acts of administration, they are bound to submit an account of their administration on relinquishing the administration in addition to such accounts as are required to be submitted in accordance with applicable law. Such account shall be submitted to the succeeding administrators or in their absence to the Registrar.

(6) Unless the deed of foundation provides otherwise, administrators may be remunerated from the income or capital of the foundation. Such remuneration shall be in such amounts and in such manner as may be stated in the deed of foundation or in any agreement between the founder and the administrator or in accordance with applicable law. Remuneration may also be established by the Court on application of the administrator or any interested party.

(7) Subject to the provisions of subarticle (8), an administrator may resign from office by notice in writing to his co-administrators and in case of there being no other administrator, to the founder or to the beneficiaries or, if impracticable, to at least one beneficiary, or if there are none to whom notice can be given, to the administrator's duly appointed successor and the resignation shall take effect on delivery of the aforesaid notice.

(8) A resignation -

- (a) given in order to facilitate a breach of duty, or
- (b) which would result in there being no administrator for the foundation, shall have no effect; provided that an administrator may resign office notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (b), if, before the resignation takes effect, application is made to the Court for the appointment of a new administrator and a new administrator is so appointed.

(9) An administrator shall cease to be an administrator immediately upon -

- (a) the removal of the administrator by the Court;
- (b) the coming into effect of a condition in the deed of foundation in terms of which such administrator is removed from office; or
- (c) steps are taken for the winding up of the administrator when a legal person.

(10) An administrator ceasing to be an administrator shall, in addition to the duty to account under subarticle (5), be bound to immediately deliver all property of the foundation which may be in his possession to the remaining or successor administrators and to take all such formal or other actions as may be necessary in the interest of the foundation.

36. (1) The founder, and such other persons who may be designated in the deed of foundation, may exercise supervision over the administration of a foundation, obtain a copy of the accounts held by the administrators, a copy of the inventory or descriptive notes of property, and may intervene in the matter of appointment of administrators or in the disposal of the assets, when these issues are being dealt with by the Court.

Rights of the founder.

(2) A founder may be an administrator of a foundation.

(3) The founder may also be the beneficiary of a private foundation during his lifetime:

Provided that when the founder is a beneficiary, such founder may not at the same time act as the sole administrator of such a foundation.

Supervisory structure of protectors.

37. (1) The terms of the foundation may provide for the establishment of a supervisory council consisting of at least one member or for the office of a protector or protectors with similar functions.

(2) The members of the supervisory council or protectors shall be appointed by the founder in the statute of the foundation or subsequently. The deed of foundation may also provide for eventual substitution or replacement of the members of the supervisory council or protectors.

(3) The supervisory council or protectors shall not be considered to be administrators.

(4) Subject to the terms of the foundation, the supervisory council or protectors shall have the power to exercise supervision over the acts of the administrators and may be vested with the power of appointment, removal, substitution or addition of administrators.

(5) The exercise of any action or discretion on the part of the administrators may be subject to the express consent of the supervisory council or the protectors.

Rights of the beneficiaries.

38. (1) An administrator shall, so far as is reasonable and within a reasonable time of receiving a request in writing to that effect, provide full and accurate information as to the state and amount of the foundation property, including the accounts of the foundation, and subject to subarticle (2), the conduct of the administration to -

- (a) the founder;
- (b) the Court;
- (c) the supervisory council or protectors;
- (d) any other person who is vested with such right in the deed of foundation;
- (e) subject to the terms of the foundation, any beneficiary of the foundation who is of full age and capacity, or if a minor, to his lawful guardian or representative;
- (f) subject to the terms of the foundation, any other purpose organisation or charitable trust referred to by name for the benefit of which the foundation was established; and
- (g) in case of a foundation established for a purpose, the Attorney General or the relevant authority under applicable law.

(2) Subject to the terms of the foundation and to any order of the Court given for special reasons, an administrator or any other person shall not be required to disclose to any person any document or information relating to a private foundation which -

- (a) discloses the administrator's deliberations as to the manner in which a power or discretion was exercised, or a duty conferred or imposed by law or by the terms of the foundation was performed;
- (b) discloses the reason for any particular exercise of such power or discretion or performance of duty or the material upon which such reason will be or might have been based;
- (c) relates to the exercise or proposed exercise of such power or discretion or the performance or proposed performance of such duty.

(3) Unless the terms of the foundation expressly determine the time when and the method how beneficiaries are to be informed of their entitlement under the foundation, the administrator shall be obliged to inform any beneficiary of his entitlement, in writing, within a reasonable time of his accepting to act.

(4) When the terms of the foundation grant a discretion in terms of article 33(9) of this Schedule, the terms of the foundation may suspend, until such time as a discretion is exercised in their favour, the duty of the administrator to inform such beneficiaries that they may benefit under the foundation or that they form part of a class of beneficiaries which may so benefit. The terms of the foundation may also indicate the time when and the method of how such beneficiaries are to be informed.

(5) If the deed of foundation expressly provides for the notification of information to beneficiaries or to those persons that form part of a class from among which beneficiaries may be appointed, without reference to any point in time, ascertained or ascertainable, such term shall be construed as implying a duty of the administrator to inform such beneficiaries within a reasonable time after the death of the founder.

(6) Should the administrator consider providing information as required by the preceding subarticles to be prejudicial to the beneficiaries of the foundation or any of them, the administrator may apply to the Court and the Court may release the administrator from the obligation to inform under such conditions as it may consider appropriate.

(7) The duty to inform as above provided shall not arise if the administrator is in possession of information which reasonably demonstrates that those entitled to such information have already been informed or are already aware of such information.

(8) In the case of a purpose foundation, the duty to inform either unnamed beneficiaries forming part of a class or persons forming part of a class of persons who may be appointed as beneficiaries in terms of a power of the administrator, shall not arise notwithstanding the terms of the foundation unless, in case of the unnamed beneficiaries the administrator establishes that there exist less than ten beneficiaries appertaining to such class of beneficiaries. Furthermore, in the absence of any indication to the contrary, the unnamed beneficiaries or persons who may be added as beneficiaries in terms of a power shall be assumed to be persons who carry on relevant social or other activities principally in Malta.

(9) The administrator shall carry out the duty to inform to the best of his abilities and at the expense of the foundation and in the event it appears to the administrator that such exercise will be too costly or burdensome, the administrator may apply to the Court for directions and the Court shall be empowered to release the administrator from such duty under such conditions as it considers appropriate.

(10) The suspension of the duty of an administrator to inform beneficiaries as provided in this article shall not reduce the rights of beneficiaries or the duties and liability of the administrator towards such beneficiaries in terms of this Schedule or other applicable law.

(11) Persons who may be added as beneficiaries in terms of a power referred to in article 33(12) of this Schedule shall have no right of information until such time as they are appointed beneficiaries by the administrator pursuant to such power.

Multi-founder foundations.

39. (1) When there is more than one founder, initial or subsequent, rights shall be exercised in accordance with the statute. When the statute is silent, in case of two founders, decisions will be taken unanimously and when there are more than two founders, in accordance with the decision of the majority.

(2) In multi-founder foundations the rules on general meetings according to the provisions of article 52 of this Schedule shall mutatis mutandis apply.

Revocation of a foundation.

40. (1) Subject to subarticle (2) unless expressly provided otherwise in the statute or in this Title, a foundation shall not be subject to revocation prior to the term for which it is established.

(2) Unless the founder has expressly excluded such a right, a private foundation may be terminated on the demand of all the beneficiaries of the foundation provided they are all in existence, have been ascertained and no one of them is an interdicted or a minor. If the founder is still alive his consent shall be required for revocation by the beneficiaries. The founder may subject termination to the consent of a person stated in the statute.

(3) Notwithstanding anything stated in the statute, after the death of the founder, the Court shall have the power to dissolve and wind up any private foundation when requested by all the beneficiaries of the foundation if it is satisfied that the continuance of the foundation is no longer necessary to achieve the intentions of the founder.

(4) The statute of a foundation may provide that it is revocable:

Provided that revocation shall not affect or invalidate acts already lawfully carried out or interrupt lawful acts in progress. Nor shall revocation affect lawful commitments made and not yet fulfilled. Termination upon revocation shall be suspended until such time as the administrators certify to the Registrar that all lawful commitments have been fulfilled.

(5) The express reservation by the founder of the right to revoke a foundation shall not be exercisable by the heirs or spouse of such founder unless expressly provided otherwise in the deed of foundation. Without prejudice to any other remedies available at law, creditors of the founder may not exercise the right to revoke a foundation.

(6) Purpose foundations may only be constituted in an irrevocable manner and any clause in the statute reserving the right to revoke the foundation shall be disregarded:

Provided that a power of the administrators to apply the proceeds to another purpose when the stated purpose has been achieved or is no longer possible shall be valid:

Provided further that the reservation by the founder of a right to maintenance for himself and his immediate family, in case of need, from the funds of the foundation established by such founder shall also be valid and in such case the Court shall have the exclusive right to determine whether the funds of the foundation may be used for such maintenance.

(7) When a foundation is terminated, the procedures in article shall be observed.

(8) Except in cases contemplated in article 47(2), where a foundation is converted into a trust, termination of registration shall imply termination of the foundation and upon notice or upon otherwise becoming aware thereof, the Registrar shall proceed to strike off the foundation.

(9) The administrators shall have a duty to maintain the registration of a foundation in the absence of any of the circumstances provided for in this article.

41. The Court shall have jurisdiction in relation to foundations, their administrators, beneficiaries and other parties having an interest therein.

Powers of the Civil Court in its voluntary jurisdiction in relation to foundations.

42. (1) Subject to the provisions of subarticle (3) the Court may, if it thinks fit, by order approve on behalf of -

Variation of the terms of the deed of foundation by the Court and approval of particular transactions.

- (a) any person incapacitated at law having directly or indirectly, an interest, whether vested or contingent, under the foundation; or
- (b) any person, whether ascertained or not, who may become entitled, directly or indirectly, to an interest under the foundation as being at a future date or on the happening of a future event a person of any specified description or a member of any specified class of persons; or
- (c) any person unborn; or
- (d) any person in respect of any interest of his that may arise to him by reason of any discretionary power given to any one on the failure or determination of any existing interest that has not failed or determined; any arrangement, by whomsoever proposed and whether or not there is any other person beneficially interested who is capable of assenting thereto, varying or revoking all or any of the terms of the foundation or enlarging the powers of the administrators of managing or administering any of the foundation's property.

(2) The Court shall not approve an arrangement on behalf of any person coming within subarticle (1)(a), (b) or (c), unless it is satisfied that the carrying out of such arrangement appears to be for the benefit of that person.

(3) Where in the management or administration of a foundation, any sale, lease, pledge, charge, surrender, release or other disposition, or any purchase, investment, acquisition, expenditure or other transaction is in the opinion of the Court expedient but the same cannot be effected by reason of the absence of any power for that purpose vested in the administrator by the terms of the foundation or by law, the Court may confer on the administrator, either generally or in any particular circumstance, a power for that purpose on such terms and subject to such provisions and conditions, if any, as it thinks fit, and may direct in what manner and from what property any money authorised to be expended, and the costs of any transaction, are to be borne.

(4) An application to the Court under this article may be made by the administrator or by any beneficiary.

Other powers of the Court.

43. (1) An administrator may apply to the Court for directives concerning the manner in which he may or should act in connection with any matter concerning the foundation and the Court may make such order, if any, as it thinks fit.

(2) The Court may also, if it thinks fit -

(a) make an order concerning:

- (i) the execution or the administration of any foundation; or
- (ii) the administrator of any foundation, including an order relating to the exercise of any power, discretion or duty of the administrator, the appointment or removal of an administrator, the remuneration of an administrator, the submission of accounts, the conduct of the administrator and any payments into the Court; or
- (iii) any beneficiary or any person having any connection with the foundation;

(b) make any declaration as to the validity or enforcement of a foundation;

(c) rescind or vary any order or declaration made under this Title, or make any new or further order or declaration.

(3) An application to the Court for an order or declaration under subarticle (2) may be made by the administrator or by any beneficiary or by the Attorney General or by any other person having a lawful interest:

Provided that in cases where the duty to inform a beneficiary of his interest in a foundation has been suspended in terms of article 36 of this Schedule and until such suspension is in force, and in the absence of any other person appointed to supervise the administration of a foundation, the founder of a foundation may also make an application to the Court in terms of this subarticle. Whilst dealing with such application the Court may determine whether the suspension of rights to information as aforesaid be maintained in force in full or in part for all or some of the beneficiaries.

(4) Where the Court makes an order for the appointment of an administrator or administrators it may impose such conditions as it thinks fit.

(5) Subject to any order of the Court, an administrator appointed by the Court under this article shall have the same powers, discretion and duties as if he had originally been appointed an administrator by the deed of foundation.

(6) Where any Court makes an order on the demand of a beneficiary who has been prejudiced as a result of bad faith on the part of the administrator in the operation of a foundation, the Court shall have the power to restore the position to what it would have been had the action complained of not been taken or otherwise to protect his interests.

(7) When a person domiciled in Malta is obliged to pay maintenance in terms of this Code and is a beneficiary under a foundation, the Court shall have such powers as are necessary to review the exercise of discretion by the administrator to give due consideration to the rights of persons entitled to claim maintenance.

44. (1) There shall be no appeal from any decree, order, declaration or direction of the Court given under the provisions of this Schedule.

Appeals, enforcement and hearings.

(2) Such decrees, orders, declarations or directions shall remain in force until they are substituted or varied by the Court in either its voluntary or contentious jurisdiction.

(3) During the hearing of an application before the Court the administrator or applicant shall at the earliest opportunity disclose to the Court all material facts known to him which may be relevant to the application including the existence of any res judicata or pending judicial action given or commenced in Malta or before a foreign court.

(4) All applications to the Court shall be notified to the administrator and the applicant shall furthermore notify all persons who he considers having an interest in the subject matter of the application. The Court shall have the power to order notification to all other persons who it considers may have an interest as it deems fit.

(5) The Court shall hear the administrator and any interested parties as it considers appropriate.

(6) Without prejudice to any other power given to the Court by virtue of the foregoing provisions of this article or of any other law, where an administrator neglects or refuses to perform any duty or to comply with any order of the Court, the Court may, on such terms and conditions it may deem appropriate, order that the required action be executed, made or done by such person as the Court may appoint for the purpose, at the cost of the administrator in default, or otherwise as the Court may direct; and anything so executed, made or done shall operate and have effect for all purposes as if it had been executed, made or done by the administrator.

Confidentiality.

45. (1) All proceedings under these articles in relation to a private foundation shall be held in camera and only the parties to the proceedings, the administrators, the beneficiaries, if they prove they have an interest in the proceedings to the satisfaction of the Court, and their respective advocates and legal procurators shall be allowed in Court during the hearings.

(2) Any decree or judgement of the Court shall preserve the confidentiality of the proceedings and shall only reveal such facts as may be necessary to make the same intelligible and enforceable by the parties and the administrators.

(3) All applications, responses, affidavits, opinions, statements and other documents or evidence shall be kept by the Registrar of the Court in a confidential manner and no access shall be given thereto except with the written consent of the Court.

(4) When information, or a document or information therein, is considered to be confidential by a party to any proceedings in relation to other parties to the proceedings it shall be lawful for the Court to hear only such party prior to ordering the disclosure or otherwise of such information and if the Court is satisfied that the other party or parties to the proceedings have no interest in the information considered to be confidential or that it has no bearing on the matter being addressed by the proceedings, the Court shall order that such information shall not be disclosed in the proceedings.

Rules of Court.
Cap. 12.

46. The Board established under article 29 of the Code of Organization and Civil Procedure may make Rules of Court concerning applications made under or in terms of this Sub-Title.

 - (ii) all beneficiaries with fixed interests under the trusts or having similar rights under the foundation; and

(4) When established for the achievement of a social purpose or as a non-profit making organisation, an association shall be regulated by the provisions of this Title and the provisions of any special law relating to voluntary organisations.

(5) Subject to article 6 of this Schedule, all associations shall be eligible to register under the provisions of this Title.

Form and contents
of the statute.

49. (1) An agreement establishing an association shall be in writing, on pain of nullity.

(2) The statute shall state the following for the association to be eligible for registration:

- (a) the name;
- (b) the registered address, in Malta;
- (c) the purposes or objects;
- (d) the method or process by which membership of the association is granted to applicants;
- (e) the mode of procedure during general meetings;
- (f) the composition of the board of administration and the names of the first administrators;

(3) The statute shall be signed by the associating persons and any person subscribing to the statute after an association is established shall be deemed to have consented to all the provisions of the statute and all rules which may have been validly promulgated by the association until such date. In the event that more than three persons wish to establish an association, a statement may be made of this fact in the statute and the signature of three persons on behalf of all associating members stated in a schedule to the statute shall be sufficient to indicate the consent of all stated persons.

(4) The written consent of the administrators named in the statute to act as administrators of the association must be delivered to the Registrar prior to registration of any association.

Purposes.

50. (1) The statute of an association must clearly specify a purpose.

(2) The assets of an association may originate from any lawful business or activity and may consist of present or future assets of any nature.

(3) Failure to specify a purpose shall result in the nullity of the agreement and the Registrar shall not accept to register such an association until such time as the purpose is clear and unambiguous.

(4) The members of an association may add to the purpose for the achievement of which the association was originally created, by extending it to cover such other purposes of a similar nature as are clearly set down in a second written instrument consented to by such number of members as is necessary to amend the statute.

(5) A social purpose association may not have its purpose changed or extended to other purposes which are not also social purposes and a non-profit-making association cannot change its statute to an organisation promoting a private interest.

(6) A restriction on the number of members which is proportionate to the physical and other resources of an association from time to time or the existence of a membership committee with the power to accept or refuse new members in an association, shall not, on its own, imply that such association is one for private benefit.

51. (1) For the purpose of registration of an association an authentic copy of the constitutive instrument is to be delivered to and filed with the Registrar by the administrators.

Registration of associations.

(2) Where the association is created by a public deed an authentic copy thereof may be delivered by the administrators provided for in the said deed (when they have accepted to act as such) or the Notary publishing the said deed and the delivery by any one of them shall suffice.

(3) On receipt of the documents mentioned in subarticle (1), the Registrar shall register the association on being satisfied that all the provisions of this Sub-Title have been complied with.

52. (1) A general meeting for all members shall be convened at least once every year. At this meeting the annual report and the accounts of the association as approved by the administrators, as well as the report of the auditors or reviewers, shall be presented and discussed.

General meetings.

(2) Other meetings may be convened by the administrators whenever they consider it necessary or when they have a request in writing signed by at least ten per cent of the members. If the administrators fail to convene a meeting when so requisitioned, the Court can order the meeting to be held and shall state the time and place of the meeting which shall be binding on the administrators.

(3) In the absence of specific provisions in the statute, at meetings of the members, decisions shall be taken by the majority of those present at the meeting except that:

- (a) when decisions are taken on the amendment of the statute such decisions must be supported by at least fifty-one per cent of all the registered members on the basis of one vote per member;
- (b) when decisions are taken to terminate the association or to donate to another organisation all of its assets, such decision must be supported by at least seventy-five per cent of all the members; and

(c) when decisions are taken on the approval of accounts or matters involving the role or responsibilities of the administrators, the administrators shall not be entitled to vote.

(4) Members may appoint proxies to attend a general meeting on their behalf and such proxy shall have the right to vote in addition to his own if he is a member.

(5) When any members use their right to request a meeting in terms of this article, it shall not be lawful for the administrators or the association to dismiss, retire or otherwise limit or reduce the rights of those members until after the holding of the requested meeting.

Administrators.

53. (1) Unless otherwise stated or implied by the statute it shall be presumed that the administrators must be members of the organisation except in the case where the administrators are engaged under a contract of employment.

(2) The provisions of article 35 of this Schedule shall mutatis mutandis apply to administrators of associations.

Members.

54. (1) Members of associations are those persons who:

- (a) subscribe to the purposes of the association;
- (b) meet the personal status or qualifications for membership as set out in the statute;
- (c) provide the necessary membership details;
- (d) pay such membership fee as may be applicable or otherwise fulfil such conditions on participation as may be required by the statute or rules of the organisation; and
- (e) are otherwise admitted by the membership committee or a committee authorised by the general meeting of members to admit new members, if any.

(2) Every person who is a member of an association shall be free to leave the association and such member cannot be subjected to any liability, other than for unpaid fees, on leaving an association:

Provided that in an unregistered association, when a member leaves the association, this does not affect his liability under the applicable law for the period while he was a member but he shall not be liable in relation to any activities of the association after such time.

(3) If the number of paid up members of an association falls below three, the administrators are bound to proceed with a written call for payment of dues to the members informing them that non-payment will lead to termination under this provision and on the lapse of the said period, with the termination of the registration of such association in terms of this Title.

(4) Any expulsion procedure in a statute, except for failure to pay membership fees or to comply with other purely formal conditions of membership, should cater for:

- (a) the non-participation of persons with an interest in a dispute, in the decision to expel;
- (b) the right of the member whose expulsion is sought to make submissions to the persons who are empowered to decide.

(5) If the statute of an association does not provide for the procedures mentioned in subarticle (4), the administrators shall be bound to implement a procedure which respects the rules stated in the previous subarticle:

Provided that when an organisation's administrators are involved in the dispute and cannot find independent members to adjudge a motion of dismissal, reference shall be made to the Court on such issue.

(6) The membership of a person in an association established for a social purpose or as non-profit making is not transferable or subject to inheritance.

(7) Members may not have patrimonial rights to the assets of an association established for a social purpose or as non-profit making and are not entitled to any compensation on retirement or expulsion or on winding up of the association.

55. (1) The provisions of article 34 of this Schedule shall apply to endowments to associations. Endowments.

(2) Membership fees are not endowments and shall not be treated as such nor shall they be refundable except as expressly stated in the statute.

56. (1) An association shall exist until it is terminated in accordance with the provisions of its statute or in terms of this Title unless the members, upon being given thirty days' written notice of termination by the administrators, amend the statute to establish other purposes to which the property of the association may be dedicated. Termination.

(2) The termination of an association shall not affect or invalidate lawful acts already carried out nor interrupt lawful acts in progress. Nor shall termination affect lawful commitments made and not yet fulfilled. Termination shall be suspended until such time as the administrators certify to the Registrar that all lawful commitments have been fulfilled.

(3) In the case of associations established for a social purpose or as non-profit making, any assets on termination must be donated by the administrators to another organisation with similar purposes and failing such action, subject to the power of the Court to give directions, they shall be disposed of in favour of such organisation as may be designated by the Minister responsible for social policy by notice published in the Gazette which shall apply the same to a similar purpose or as may be provided in applicable law.

(4) Termination of registration shall not imply the termination of the association which shall occur only upon the express determination to that effect by the members in accordance with the statute of the association or, in the other cases of termination, as is provided for in this Schedule.

Title IV

OF WINDING UP OF ORGANISATIONS

Termination of registration.

57. (1) An organisation may request the termination of its registration by means of a written request signed by all its administrators or as otherwise required by its statute, and rendering a statement of accounts, declaring the assets and liabilities of the organisation and stating how they are to be dealt with on termination of registration.

(2) The termination of registration shall not imply the winding up of an organisation. Organisations may continue as unregistered organisations subject to the application of the relevant rules of this Schedule.

(3) Any interested party or any competent authority may, in accordance with the provisions of this Title, apply to the Court for the termination of registration and, or the cessation of an organisation.

(4) The termination of registration of an organisation on the order of the Court, on the basis of grounds which imply that the organisation may no longer operate, shall include an order by the Court requiring the cessation of such organisation as a legal person and as an organisation. In such a case such organisation may not continue to exist as an unregistered organisation.

Winding up.

58. (1) An organisation may be wound up voluntarily or by order of the Court.

(2) In this Sub-Title, the term "organisation" includes both those organisations which are registered and those which are not.

Winding up voluntarily.

59. (1) An organisation is wound up voluntarily by following the procedures laid down in the statute of the organisation. Unless otherwise stated, the winding up of an organisation shall require the support of a majority of all members, in case of an association, or a majority of all administrators, in case of a foundation.

(2) A certified copy of a winding up resolution shall be delivered to the Registrar within fourteen days from when it is passed.

(3) An organisation may be wound up voluntarily only if its assets exceed its liabilities and all its debts have been paid. The administrators shall prepare a scheme of distribution of the remaining assets of the organisation which shall be notified to the Registrar and all interested parties. It shall require approval by members, or in case of foundations, by the founder or the beneficiaries, as the case may be, or in their absence the Registrar, before being implemented.

60. (1) In the absence of a clear statement in the statute of a purpose organisation, as to how assets are to be disposed of on termination of the organisation, the administrators may apply for directions and shall dispose of the assets as ordered by the Court.

Disposal of assets on winding up.

(2) In case of dissolution and winding up of any private organisation and in the absence of an indication in the constitutive act how assets are to be distributed in case of winding up, the assets shall be paid to the beneficiaries or returned to the founder's estate, after payment of all expenses, as may be determined by the Court after hearing the proposals of the administrators, the beneficiaries and any other interested persons, keeping in view the intentions of the founder. Unless the Court is satisfied that the founder intended the assets to be available to the beneficiaries, the assets shall be returned to the founder or his heirs at law.

61. The administrators of an organisation shall be bound to dissolve and wind up an organisation when the term for which it has been created, if any, has expired or if its purpose has been achieved or becomes impossible. The founder or members may amend the statute at any time, even after such event, to remove the reason for dissolution as stated by this article, in which case any determination of the administrators and any dissolution proceedings shall be terminated and shall have no effect.

Dissolution and winding up when term expires, etc.

62. (1) An organisation shall be wound up on order of the Court, upon the application from any interested party, for reasons valid at law in terms of its statute or this Schedule.

Winding up by order of the court.

(2) The Court may order the winding up of an organisation on an application to this effect if it considers it necessary in the public interest or if the provisions of this Schedule or any other laws are not being observed by the organisation and the Court considers the situation to be so grave as to merit such an order, the ordinary remedies for breach of laws not being sufficient in the circumstances.

(3) In the case of a private foundation, the power to request its winding up in terms of this article shall be exercisable also by the Malta Financial Services Authority.

(4) In the case of a purpose foundation which makes public collections, the power to request its winding up in terms of this article shall be exercisable by any member of the public.

63. The Court shall outline the reasons for any order given under the preceding article and steps to be taken in relation to all assets of any relevant organisation, including the appointment of a liquidator for such organisation. The administrators and any person interested shall be entitled to appeal to the Court of Appeal within fifteen days of any such order.

Appeal.

64. (1) If an organisation becomes insolvent or is undergoing serious difficulties which impede the organisation from operating and achieving its aims, the administrators shall cease operations and notify the Registrar who shall immediately co-operate with the administrators to appoint a liquidator to wind up the affairs in the interest of creditors, the promoters or beneficiaries of the organisation and the organisation itself.

(2) In this Title "insolvency" shall mean the inability to pay its debts when due and for three months after a debt is judicially acknowledged or admitted or if it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the organisation is unable to pay its debts, account being taken of its assets and liabilities, including contingent and prospective liabilities.

(3) If the organisation does not have any administrators for more than six months and suitable persons are not appointed by the Court on the application of any interested person, the Registrar shall proceed to demand from the Court an order for the winding up of the organisation and the appointment of a liquidator. In the case of a private foundation such power to apply to the Court shall also be vested in the Malta Financial Services Authority.

(4) Upon such order, the liquidator shall take over all assets of the organisation and shall notify all creditors, if necessary by means of public notices, and shall seek appropriate solutions to any issue which may arise. The liquidator shall have the power to dispose of all assets and pay all debts, observing the ranking order of creditors as provided by law in making payments to creditors.

(5) The liquidator shall consult the Court which shall give directions from time to time for the resolution of disputes and the distribution of assets. The liquidator and any creditor may apply to the Court at any time for orders in the liquidation. The Court shall have the power to give any orders it deems appropriate.

(6) The same rules shall mutatis mutandis apply in cases where organisations have been found to be operating illegally or are abandoned and the Registrar is unable to obtain the co-operation of the administrators or other interested persons for the formal winding up of the organisation.

Cancellation of registration.

65. On receipt of a declaration by the administrators or liquidators or on otherwise being satisfied that all assets have been appropriately exhausted as required by law and that all assets have been distributed in accordance with the approved scheme of distribution, the Registrar shall cancel the registration of the organisation which shall thereby be struck off the Register and the organisation shall thereafter cease to exist.

Revival of registration.

66. Should it result that the assets or liabilities of an organisation which has been cancelled were not determined or dealt with, distributed, paid out or otherwise liquidated, the Court shall have all necessary powers to revive the organisation, and any cell thereof, only for the purpose of determining and dealing with or distributing or liquidating such assets or liabilities.

Effects of winding up on groups of organisations and cells.

67. The winding up of an organisation shall not affect the continuing validity or effect of another organisation established by it. In such a case the role of the founding organisation, if any, shall be carried out by the successor in title of the organisation or by such person or persons as may be appointed by the Court. For an organisation to be wound up any segregated cells which may be in existence must be wound up prior to the winding up of the organisation.
